ADM. STANDLEY IS NAMED CHIEF OF OPERATIONS

Succession to Pratt Is Effective After Arms Decision at Geneva.

SWANSON ANNOUNCES 5 OTHER SELECTIONS

Promotions Due for Sellers, Upham, Reeves, Brumby and Laning.

The selection of Vice Admiral William Harrison Standley, U. S. N., to be the next Chief of Naval Operations was announced last night by Secretary Swanson at the Navy Department.

Admiral Standley, at present in command of cruisers of the scouting force, will succeed Admiral William V. Pratt, who was scheduled to retire in March but who was kept on active duty at the request of the President. In making the announcement last night, Secretary Swanson stated that Admiral Pratt would be further retained in his post until some decision is reached regarding naval armaments at the conference in Geneva, when the change in the high command of the Navy will become effective.

Five other appointments of major importance in the Navy were announced at the same time by Secretary Swanson. The list of new heads of the naval service is the first to be released by the Roosevelt administration. Further changes are expected to follow within a month. The names of a number of generals of the Army, some of whom probably will head bureaus of the War Department, will be released in a day or two.

Sellers Slated for Post.

Vice Admiral David Foote Sellers, U. S. N., now commanding the battleships of the battle force, is slated to became the new commander in chief of the United States fleet under the Swanson plan of naval reorganization. He will succeed Admiral Richard H. Leigh, U. S. N., and as first in command of the fleet will have the rank of admiral.

Rear Admiral Frank B. Upham, U. S. N., chief of the Bureau of Navigation, has been appointed as the new commander in chief of the Asiatic fleet, with the rank of admiral, succeeding Admiral Montgomery Meigs Taylor, U. S. N.

Rear Admiral Joseph Mason Reeves, U. S. N., commandant of the Mare

CONFLICT IN G. O. P. NEARING SHOWDOWN

(Associated Press.)

A conflict within Republican ranks over whether friends of Herbert Hoover shall continue in control of the party organization for the next four years appeared last night to be nearing a showdown.

It flared into the open yesterday when it became known that high ranking members of the Hoover administration had formed an organization known as "Republican Federal Associates" to work for party success in the 1934 congressional and the 1936 presidential elections.

When news of the development reached Capital Hill, Senator McNary, of Oregon, the Republican leader, told newspaper men it was "too early" to begin any plans to rebuild the party.

Old Guard forces who fought the nomination of Hoover in 1928, consider the new organization an attempt by the former President's followers to retain control. They are watching the situation closely and are ready to act when they believe the proper time has arrived.

The group is headed by Ogden L. Mills, the Hoover retary of the Treasury, and Walter F. Brown, the Hoover Postmaster General. Four other members of the Hoover Cabinet and six members of his "Little Cabinet" are participating actively.

McNary said it will be time to consider reorganization "after we determine the value of the present emergency program."

"The party," he added, "must agree on broad progressive policies of government and leadership must arise

Life-Saving Medal Given Herriot for Disaster Job

Prince Exel, of Denmark, also received a medal for saving a life in Sweden.

Ruth Judd Enters Asylum for Insane

Trunk Murderess Begins Term Substituted for Death on Gallows.

Phoenix, Ariz., April 24 (A.P.).—Winnie Ruth Judd came back today to Phoenix, where she killed her two friends, Agnes Anne Leroi and Hedvig Samuelson, October 16, 1931, and sent their bodies in trunks to Los Angeles.

Mrs. Judd saw few things to remind her of that tragedy, however, before the portals of the Arizona State Hospital for Insane swallowed her. A lunacy jury by its verdict Saturday night, substituted the asylum for the gallows.

The hospital will be Mrs. Judd's prison for the rest of her life, unless she is found to be sane again, in which case she still could be hanged. She was brought here from the State Prison at Florence, where this morning she gave vent to one of her characteristic outbursts, railing at her mother and threatening again to kill herself.

German Crown Heir Posts Marriage Banns

Bonn, Germany, April 24 (A.P.).—Banns were published in the city hall here today for the marriage of Prince Wilhelm, eldest son of the former German Crown Prince, and Dorothea von Salviati. The wedding is scheduled for the middle of May.

The bride-to-be is of Italian descent, but the family resides in Germany. One of her brothers is a Nazi storm troop leader. Prince Wilhelm, who is 26, is employed on an estate in upper Silesia.

HOUSE GROUP FOE OF HARSH RETIRING PLAN

Buchanan Busy on New 30-Year Proposal on Selective Basis.

MANY LEADERS RAP COMPULSORY PART

By ROBERT C. ALBRIGHT.

A plan to give the President discretionary authority to retire Federal workers after 30 years of service yesterday had the backing of a majority of the House Deficiencies Appropriations subcommittee.

While a redraft of the proposal was delayed, pending testimony this morning by the Civil Service Commissioners, subcommittee members were in substantial agreement on "selective" as opposed to "automatic" retirement.

The substitute for the Budget Bureau's compulsory 30-year retirement recommendation will be written by House Appropriations Chairman James P. Buchanan and submitted to the subcommittee for approval today or tomorrow.

Host of Witnesses.

It will be acceptable to the administration. The Budget Bureau plan gave the President power to exempt from retirement, but no power to specify directly those who must retire.

Decision to consult the Civil Service Commission followed testimony yesterday by a host of witnesses from employe organizations, and pleas of a number of representatives that the original budget language be modified.

Members appeared impressed with a statement by President Luther C. Steward, of the National Federation of Federal Employes, who proposed a three-fold plan, embodying the "selective" feature. He suggested first that all 30-year employes be given the right to retire if they wished, that the President be permitted to select others in this group for retirement at discretion, and that both these provisions be made applicable to 15-year employes at reduced annuities.

John Arthur Shaw, who heads the rival American Federation of Government Employes, opposed further Government dismissals, by compulsory retirement or otherwise, declaring it would add to the cost of the Government in the long run.

Dismissal Wage Studied.

If the Government persists in a policy of cutting down personnel, he said, it should provide a dismissal wage to be paid discharged employes, the amount to depend on length of service and present salary.

The subcommitte discussed several modified retirement plans. One would require employes to continue to contribute to the retirement fund after retirement until they had paid into the sum the equivalent of 30 years of contributions. Strong opposition was voiced to this proposal.

Possibility developed that the Government actually may now be in

Arrest of Foshay Trial Juror Ordered in West

St. Paul, Minn., April 24 (A.P.).—A Federal bench warrant was issued late today for the arrest of Mrs. Genevieve Clark, of Minneapolis, Foshay trial juror, when she failed to appear to start a six months' jail term for contempt of court.

She was sentenced Friday after carrying her case to the Federal Supreme Court. The contempt sentence was imposed on grounds she failed to reveal a former employment by a W. B. Foshay enterprise, and that her husband had business with two of the defendants.

Government Loses In Spain's Election

Foes of Present Regime Get Twice as Many Councilmanic Posts.

Madrid, April 24 (A.P.).—Returns tabulated tonight in Sunday's country-wide municipal elections indicated that an overwhelming tide of anti-government public opinion had struck the governmental parties.

Unofficial figures showed that about 8,500 councilmen who belonged to various combinations opposing the present regime had been elected, and that the government parties mustered approximately 4,000 seats.

The death toll in clashes incidental to the elections tonight had mounted to nine. Eight persons were killed in Badajos and one in Almeria.

Culpeper, Va., April 24.—Trapped in a fifteen-foot pit when the floodgate suddenly collapsed under the pressure of tons of water, Theodore Hitt, 26, and Quint Yancey, 31, were drowned and crushed in the turbine wheel at the electric generating plant of the Virginia Public Service Co. 12 miles north of here late today.

Before descending to the bottom of the pit on a ladder to make repairs, the men had shut off the water by closing the floodgate. When the gate collapsed under the pressure of the water, a torrent poured into the pit, smashing the ladder and starting the turbine wheel.

MAN TRIES SUICIDE BY BRIDGE PLUNGE

Police Thought Fall Was Accident Until Victim Revealed Intent.

A plunge of more than 50 feet from the east end of Calvert Street Bridge last night may cost the life of Frank R. McGowan, 38-year-old employe of the Department of Agriculture. At Emergency Hospital, where he was taken in a semiconscious condition, he is said to have told headquarters detectives that he attempted to kill himself.

Police at first believed McGowan accidentally fell while scaling a stairway leading to the bridge level from the roadway beneath.

The theory of an accident was advanced when it was pointed out that McGowan plunged from a low span and struck on the soft earth of a hillside. He suffered a possible fracture of the skull, severe lacerations to his face and body and possible internal injuries.

It was learned that McGowan had been despondent recently because of domestic trouble. Although he said he attempted to end his life, McGowan's brother-in-law, Stephen R. Gates, of 6235 Thirty-third street northwest, held the fall accidental.

INFLATION PLAN FULL OF PERILS, TYDINGS WARNS

SEES JOBLESS ARMY GREATLY INCREASED

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN.

Warning that currency inflation would condemn America to years of complete economic isolation and add 10,000,000 men to the present army of 12,000,000 unemployed, Senator Millard E. Tydings (Democrat), of Maryland, yesterday announced on the floor of the Senate his unqualified opposition to "every section" of the Moley-Thomas-Pittman greenback bill.

The measure is now before the Senate as an amendment to the Wallace - Tugwell - Morgenthau - Smith farm relief bill, to which already has been added the Wagner farm mortgage relief plan.

Republican opposition to the currency experiment will be led today by Senator David A. Reed, of Pennsylvania.

200 Billion Transfer.

In outlining the aims and purposes of the bill yesterday, Senator Elmer Thomas (Democrat), of Oklahoma, its principal sponsor in the Senate, said enactment of the measure would transfer $200,000,000,000 in wealth from creditors to the debtors within the borders of the United States. Questioned on this point by colleagues on both the Democratic and Republican sides, Senator Thomas explained that much of this wealth never had been earned by its present owners. He said such a monetary operation was essential "before there could be any recovery," and that even the transfer of $200,000,000,000 in wealth by legislative enactment "would not be complete justice to the farming and working classes of the country."

Borah Questions Legality.

Senator Thomas charged that all opponents of the inflationary measure were servants, aids and abettors, wittingly or otherwise, of the bold, bad men in Wall street who manipulate banking and currency to selfish purposes and to the ruin of the country. He was careful to avoid the implication, however, that any member of the Senate might have been persuaded to oppose the bill for a consideration, political or economic, from any particular group. He also paid the Senate the honor of acknowledging that there might be some among the membership who with clean motives and honest intentions opposed the bill on principle.

There has been no talk recently of cloture to end a threatened filibuster.

Meanwhile, a motion to strike out entirely the section which would vest

President's Help Restores Wandering Boy to Mother

Georgia Lad, 13, Found in Breadline as Result of Federal Lookout Instigated by Roosevelt on Request of Grieving Parent.

Atlanta, April 24 (A.P.).—Amidst world economic conferences, President Roosevelt took time to search for a wandering Georgia boy and today the boy was found in Atlanta, asking food of charity.

Workers in the city's relief center recognized the youth, Norbun Chandler, 13, in the breadline. United States Bureau of Investigation agents took charge of him on instructions from the President. The Chief Executive acted in response to an appeal from the wanderer's mother, Mrs. Bessie Chandler, of Athens, Ga.

The agents hurried him to a hotel, gave him a bath and a change of clothing and started for Athens, where the mother awaited him.

Mrs. Chandler was advised by telephone a few minutes after her son was found. She bubbled over with joy and sat down to think of the letter of gratitude she is going to write Mr. Roosevelt.

Norbun vanished from home April 4. He couldn't have been lost more completely had the earth opened up and swallowed him. Mrs. Chandler sent her appeal to the White House.

Forthwith, the long arm of the Department of Justice reached out over the country. Photographs of the boy were distributed and written descriptions were posted at gasoline filling stations, relief centers and other places at which he might stop for food or lodging.

Mrs. J. H. Power, registrar of the Atlanta relief center, saw the slim boy in the bread line today, then studied the photograph and ran to

U. S.-BRITISH ACCORD REACHED AT PARLEY; HERRIOT HITS REICH

Arms in Germany Menace, Former Premier Says.

HE HOLDS KEY POSITION HERE

Sees President Twice and Has Deep Talk With MacDonald.

Former Premier Edouard Herriot suddenly appeared in the international picture yesterday as the deciding factor in the negotiations now going on between President Roosevelt and British Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald. The perennial mayor of Lyons, with pipe and black felt hat, called at the White House yesterday and after making the formal acquaintance of President Roosevelt, remained with British Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald in deep conversation for almost an hour.

Last night M. Herriot returned to the White House and dramatically pointed out to the President the menace that German rearmament offers to the Washington treaty as well as the London treaty in naval armament.

He insisted the German demands for armament equality will upset the calculation of other nations for reduction of armament and will prevent France from making the cuts in her military budgets that are contemplated, unless some other form of compensation, like a consultative pact, is given.

In Advantageous Role.

Out of the present conversations may come a new approach to the problem of world disarmament which will embrace a tripartite agreement between the United States, France and Great Britain on the basis of the Kellogg-Briand Pact. Former Premier Herriot, while not a member of the present government, finds himself in a more advantageous position for that very reason. He can embark upon the discussion of many problems which to a responsible head of the state would be inexpedient.

As the apostle of French security, M. Herriot will not be able to promise the President any considerable measure of French disarmament unless the menaces of border difficulties and their results are removed by the promise of some form of consultative pact.

President Roosevelt has already informally sounded out senatorial opin-

Bank at Rockville Opens Fully Today

Farmers Trust Company Gets Cooperation of Its Depositors.

The Farmers Banking & Trust Co. of Rockville, Md., will begin operating today on a 100 per cent basis, John J. Ghinger, Maryland State bank commissioner, announced last night. Directors of the bank have secured the cooperation of the depositors, in the program which was announced at a recent meeting and will be in shape to open for the regular transaction of business.

The bank at Rockville, as well as a branch at Kensington, have been operating on a 2 per cent withdrawal basis since the State banking holidays.

Under this plan, each stockholder and depositor has agreed that 15 per cent of his deposits shall be retained in a special account which will bear interest and will be repaid with profits of the bank as they accrue. It is expected that the Montgomery County National Bank, which failed to reopen after the holidays, also will reopen shortly with the same program.

New $8,000,000 Bank To Open Today at Tulsa

(Associated Press.)

A new $8,000,000 bank, to be known as the National Bank of Tulsa, will open today at Tulsa, Okla.

Jesse H. Jones, director of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, announced last night the corporation had subscribed $4,000,000 of the preferred stock in the new bank, matching dollar for dollar subscriptions of stockholders. The subscription of this stock, Jones said, was authorized yesterday by Secretary Woodin. The new bank takes over the business of the Exchange National Bank of Tulsa.

Text of White House Statement on Parleys

The Prime Minister, the President, the British Ambassador and the Secretary of State met this afternoon with the officials and experts participating in the discussions of the last two days. They reviewed the substance of their discussions with deep satisfaction.

Among the subjects considered in these discussions were the world price level, central bank policies, monetary standards, exchange restrictions, improvement of the status of silver, and, in addition, a number of world problems relating to trade and particularly the limitation of trade restrictions.

Agreement with reference to any of these subjects has been reserved for the world monetary and economic conference itself.

It was never the purpose of the present discussions to conclude definitive agreements. They were designed to explore and to map out the territory to be covered. This purpose has been admirably served by the conversations which have taken place.

FINAL DRIVE OPENED ON HILL SHOALS BILL

House and Senate Liberals Fight to Save Measure of Senator Norris.

By J. BERNARD M'DONNELL.

Liberals of the House and Senate, as well as outside, yesterday launched a last-minute, determined drive to stop passage by the House of the so-called Hill Muscle Shoals bill and to send the bill back to the House Military Affairs Committee from which it came.

Senator George W. Norris (Republican), of Nebraska, leader of the Muscle Shoals fight for years on end, whom President Roosevelt took to Muscle Shoals for inspection trip and who has been thought to think with the President along Muscle Shoals lines, led the drive.

The veteran leader of the liberals in Congress issued a statement late in the day, after it had been conceded the House would pass the Hill bill without material amendment not later than today. The nub of the battle apparently centers about distribution of the power generated in the enormous Muscle Shoals power plant which is a part of President Roosevelt's plan for development of the Tennessee Valley. The House provision for building of Government transmission lines, Senator Norris said, is so hedged about with "red tape and conditions" as to constitute a handicap. He left no doubt that the House bill provisions were at wide variance with his Senate bill.

Judson King, director of the National Popular Government League, members of which have been actively engaged in the Muscle Shoals fight for a number of years, also issued a Naples, Italy, April 24 (A.P.).—Military authorities continued a search by air and land today in the Calabrian Apennines, unwilling to believe a woman resident of Pisciotta, who said she saw the plane, which carried seven persons, including an American, dive into Pisciotta Bay.

The missing seaplane was bringing the passengers here from Corfu, Greece. An American named John van Cleef was aboard. The seaplane was last reported flying over the Calabrian Mountains at 7:30 a. m. Sunday. It was to fly to Marseilles, France, from here.

Mutual Problems Of Finance Are Stressed.

DEBT QUESTION IS UNTOUCHED

Stabilization Held in Abeyance; Bennett Arrives Here.

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald reached a preliminary understanding yesterday on the financial problems common to their two countries in the settlement of the world's economic ills. Definite stabilization of the dollar and pound must, however, await the London conference. Considerable ground still remains to be covered by the two statesmen in the province of tariffs and trade restrictions, also, it was learned. The President emerged from his lengthy conference with the British Prime Minister, unwearied and energetic, and late last night took on the French chief of mission, former Premier Edouard Herriot, in the first Franco-American encounter between the leaders of both countries and their corps of experts.

Yesterday afternoon the President and the former premier exchanged social amenities at a White House tea party but last night more serious problems were discussed.

Formal Communique.

The fruit of the Anglo-American conference was contained in the formal communique which reflected the concentration of the two governments on problems common to the fiscal relations of both countries.

The statement said in part:

"Among the subjects considered in these discussions were the world price level, central bank policies, monetary standards, exchange restrictions, improvement of the status of silver and, in addition, a number of world problems relating to trade and particularly the limitation of trade restrictions."

Bennett Is Received.

Medalie today told the court that a superseding indictment covering both years had been returned last week, and that Mitchell was to be arraigned on this indictment tomorrow, when a date for trial would be set. The banker was not in court today.

PARTISANSHIP RULED BIDS, FISH CHARGES

(Associated Press.)

Representative Fish (Republican), New York, took the administration to task yesterday because no Republican members of the House were invited to the state dinner given for Prime Minister MacDonald at the White House Saturday night.

Asserting MacDonald was not the guest of the Democratic party, Fish said "partisanship has crept into and apparently controlled the issuance of invitations."

Fish, ranking Republican on the House Foreign Affairs Committee, who is usually invited to such functions, made the statement after he considered a decision to withdraw his acceptance of an invitation from Secretary Hull to luncheon today in honor of MacDonald. His colleagues said the refusal to attend "might be construed" as meaning he was "unwilling to cooperate on international affairs in this emergency."

"Unless the omission was due to ignorance of a time-honored and proper custom, or to inexcusable oversight," Fish said in referring to the state dinner, "then the only possible deduction is that a change has been made by injecting partisanship into the usual state dinners and receptions accorded to such distinguished guests of the Nation."

Revenue Indicates Industry Increase

Almost Quarter of Billion Collected by Uncle Sam in March.

(Associated Press.)

Beer, electrical energy, gasoline and income taxes provided the chief sources of increase in the Government's revenue collections in March, when all items totaled $242,464,384, and levies on commercial products indicated a livening in industry.

This was shown yesterday in statistics issued by the Internal Revenue Bureau on which beer appeared for the first time, and which showed the Government had received $702,300 from the $5 a barrel tax and $18,508 from license.

The month's total collections compared with $90,715,108 in February, but the $176,259,367 of income tax representing the first quarter's collections on tax on 1932 incomes and the beer tax left $65,484,209 collected from all other sources. March taxes were $10,634,134 more than those of March a year ago, when none of the new levies made in the billion dollar tax bill were in effect.

HERRIOT MAY BE KEY IN DECIDING ISSUES

ion in various quarters and has found no determined opposition as yet to some such measure of international agreement based on the principles of the pact of Paris.

M. Herriot, in his lengthy discussion with the President last night, reviewed most of the problems outstanding between the two countries, but while debts were only broached in the most informal manner, an almost irreconcilable difference developed between the two statesmen on this point.

Disarmament Outlook Brighter.

The hope for disarmament, however, is the likeliest outcome of the present conversations, at least between the United States and France. France feels that the American lapse from the gold standard presented certain obstacles to the logical and reasonable development of French trade which will only be removed by the adherence once more to the high monetary fixed standard by the American dollar. Adjustment of tariff difficulties of revision of trade agreements under the present conditions are regarded by the ever logical French as impossible of agreement.

The consultative pact idea is not a radical departure in American foreign policy, as Secretary Stimson himself invoked it on occasion of the present Leticia unpleasantness between Colombia and Peru. The extension of this same agreement to cover incidents outside this hemisphere is argued by the French as a logical development and extension of the inherent principles in the pact.

M. Herriot was able to give the President certain optimistic assurances on the reaction in Paris to such an agreement in Paris for a satisfactory adjustment of the outstanding disarmament treaty. In his conversation with Prime Minister MacDonald at the White House yesterday, the French statesman developed the trend of disarmament to the practical exclusion of other themes. As the author of the latest attempt to solve the armament fears of the world, Mr. MacDonald is known to favor the adoption of the consultative pact idea.

Herriot Is Pleased.

M. Herriot was visibly pleased with his reception at the White House when he returned to the Hotel Mayflower, his official home, yesterday afternoon. "I was so touched," he explained to his compatriots. "The President, he came himself to greet me and he introduced me to Mme. Roosevelt, a charming lady, and there was a very smart tea (the mondain)." Then he again exclaimed: "I was indeed very much touched."

Last night the French former president of the council returned to the White House. He and the President held an extended conversation, which was a development of the previous talk with the British prime minister, both by the President and M. Herriot. At this meeting the possibilities of some tripartite agreement on a consultative pact was talked of at some length, but no definite result was attained. It seemed definite, however, last night that the only measure of accomplishment that can be made at these present conferences will be in the sphere of disarmament.

The disagreement between the theses of the three experts in all that concerns monetary problems is so decisive that no results are expected and the success of reaching some sort of compromise on implementing the Kellogg Pact may compensate for the lack of results in other fields.

INFLATION—WHAT IT IS

Vast Credit Would Be Provided

(Editor's note—This is the third of a series of stories by J. R. Brackett, Associated Press staff writer, explaining inflation in terms which appeal to the layman.)

By J. R. BRACKETT.

NEW YORK (A.P.).—When no one else can borrow, the Government can—and it is on this premise that the administration's projected inflationary program largely is based.

The purpose of inflation is to raise prices by cheapening the dollar. The dollar can be cheapened either by lowering its gold content or by issuing more dollars.

The proposed new law gives the Government power to do both, with the use of between $17,000,000,000 and $23,000,000,000 in money and credit for increasing the money supply.

Increasing the money supply means increasing the total of bank deposits and actual cash money, since both are used as money.

1. The Government may retire $3,000,000,000 in bonds held by the public and banks with a special issue of currency.

2. The Federal Reserve Banks may buy $3,000,000,000 in bonds on the open market.

3. The Government may borrow between $2,000,000,000 and $6,000,000,000 for public works.

4. The Government may hurry the opening of closed banks containing between $4,000,000,000 and $6,000,000,000 of bank deposits.

5. The Government may allow foreign nations to pay part of their debts in silver, issuing silver currency in payment of internal obligations.

6. The Government may spend about $1,000,000,000 more in various projects.

Government borrowing increases the supply of money because the money it borrows is placed to its credit in the banks, increasing total bank deposits.

The direct purchase of Government bonds with special currency puts $3,000,000,000 more in the hands of the banks and the public. The purchase of the same amount by the Federal Reserve banks also changes bonds into money. Most of this money goes into the banks, which must lend it if the banks are to be profitable. They are held likely to lend it because much of the security they receive for their loans may be lent in turn to the reserve banks if necessary.

The money which the Government borrows for public works will be spent directly.

In addition to the sums listed above, new laws would authorize the Federal Land Bank and the Federal Home Owners Loan Corporation to employ $4,000,000,000 in bonds to unfreeze farm and home mortgages. This is inflationary in effect since it frees borrowers from the pressure of heavy debts, and gives lenders bonds with guaranteed interest in place of frozen mortgages.

The general effect of all these items is to ease credit because loans are more easily incurred and paid, and they further are likely to increase the rapidity with which money is spent.

The total of between $17,000,000,000 and $23,000,000,000 does not mean that much money expansion. It means the Government has these resources to increase and ease credit. Theoretically it might expand the currency and bank deposits by the amount of all, except the mortgage items, but such an expansion is not expected.

Another major proposal is the reduction of the gold content of the dollar by as much as 50 per cent. This has the effect of cheapening the dollar; therefore, requiring more dollars to buy goods, and forcing prices up.

How U.S. May Use CREDIT to INFLATE
1. ISSUE $3,000,000,000 IN CURRENCY TO PAY OFF BONDS
2. ORDER RESERVE BANKS TO BUY BONDS
3. BORROW UP TO $4,000,000,000 FOR PUBLIC WORKS
4. OPEN CLOSED BANKS
5. ACCEPT SILVER IN PAYMENT OF WAR DEBTS
6. SPEND BILLION FOR VARIED PROJECTS

BANK REFORM BILL DIFFERENCES FADE

(Associated Press.)

A virtual agreement between President Roosevelt and senators drafting permanent banking legislation apparently prepared the way yesterday for enactment of a bill at this session providing for insurance of deposits.

Differences of opinion which had appeared at times almost insurmountable were largely removed at an hour's White House conference between the Chief Executive and members of the Senate Banking subcommittee drafting bank reform legislation.

The President suggested several modifications in the committee's plan for setting up a $2,000,000,000 fund to insure deposits in Federal Reserve Banks, but his proposals would not drastically change the project and were satisfactory to the senators.

One of them would limit the 100 per cent insurance of deposits to accounts of $10,000 and less, with partial insurance for bigger deposits.

Differing with the committee, the President recommended that branch banking be restricted to county limits, but this conflict did not appear impossible of solution. Members of the committee indicated they would stick by their plan of permitting State-wide branch banking in States which allow their State banks that practice.

Chairman Glass and members of the committee were elated over the results of the conference and one member said there were now ten chances for the bill where there was one before the White House visit.

Glass would not disclose details of the conference, but said the President "suggested some modifications of the insurance deposits feature of the bill which the subcommittee thinks wise and valuable."

He added he thought these modifications will be adopted.

The subcommittee will meet again in a day or two, Glass said, and consult with an actuary who has had experience in the insurance of deposits.

CUMMINGS TO CUT COSTS $8,500,000

Economy of $1,000,000 Is Claimed This Year by Attorney General.

The Department of Justice will attempt to reduce its expenditures in the next fiscal year by $8,500,000, although it will be required to show "unexampled activity" in the prosecution of banking irregularities, Attorney General Cummings said in a radio address last night.

The department has already saved about $1,000,000 out of this year's appropriation of $45,986,000. Next year's appropriation was cut to $41,550,000, but the extra economy may be possible "through careful management, strict economy, limited expenditures, reduced personnel and savings in other directions," the Attorney General said.

Commenting on the course of prosecution to be undertaken by the department, Mr. Cummings said:

"Financial crimes which have been committed in high places, growing out of banking irregularites and income tax evasions, will require unexampled activity upon the part of the Department of Justice. Conditions too long concealed, some of which lie at the very heart of our present difficulties, must be brought to light and corrected. We have reached a stage where we want to know the worst and must know it before the remedy can be applied. Already extensive investigations are under way along the lines indicated and their developments will be made known in due course.

Gamblers Must Abdicate.

"I have said before and I say again that those who have considered it legitimate to gamble with other people's money must abdicate their leadership and those who have thought that the center of our Government is located in the financial districts must learn that its proper seat is at Washington. This is not a program of partisanship, it is a program of patriotism which I am confident the people of America, without respect to previous party affiliation, will welcome with glad hearts."

"I would not be frank if I did not say that I am amazed at the extent of the dead wood in the Departm nt of Justice," the Attorney General went on. "An amount in excess of $200,000 has already been saved by the elimination of a large number of totally unnecessary employes both in Washington and in the field. This process of elimination I expect to continue. Substantial savings can also be made in the offices of practically every United States District Attorney. These savings will have to do with the number and compensation of assistant district attorneys and employes in the offices of United States marshals, as well as in the limitation of fees paid to jurors and witnesses. Those who remain in the service will have to work a little harder and at a lower remuneration, but, if they are made of the right stuff, they will realize that they are taking part in a constructive and honorable way in a great regenerative national program and I shall expect their hearty cooperation and support."

Sees Drop in Rum Cases.

Another expected economy, Mr. Cummings said, arises from fewer liquor prosecutions due to the return of beer. This will give not only a direct saving in the cost of enforcement, but indirect savings in the costs of courts and the maintenance of prisoners. He also declared war on racketeers who are attempting to prey on the beer industry.

The elimination of unnecessary employes does not mean that those who are giving efficient and faithful service will be indiscriminately removed from the service, the Attorney General assured his audience. He pointed out that lawyers employed by the department must have a specialized knowledge of the law of government administration, and said all removals will be only for the betterment of the service.

CHICAGO TEACHERS IN SIEGE OF BANKS

Gen. Dawes Heckled When He Tries to Tell Pay-less of Difficulties.

Chicago, April 24 (A.P.).—Five thousand militant school teachers, getting near the boiling point over this business of working without pay, laid siege to the big Loop banks today.

Wearing arm bands to show they were 10 months behind in salaries due from the Chicago School Board, they stormed the doors of the banks demanding help toward the resumption of regular pay days.

Impromptu orators harangued them from street corner boxes. Doors of some banks rolled shut and only customers with passbooks were allowed access through the crowd. Police helped at the doors, but made little effort to force the teachers to move on; the police pay checks are in arrears too.

The demonstrators insisted the banks should buy more tax anticipation warrants from the school board.

At the City National Bank a delegation of 500 swarmed in the street shouting, "We want Dawes; we want Dawes!"

Dawes Answers Hecklers.

After a half hour the doors to the lobby suddenly swung open. Through the entrance the teachers jammed, and down the lobby came Brig. Gen. Charles G. Dawes, chairman of the board, to meet them. A corps of uniformed guards was behind him, blocking the teachers from penetrating beyond the lobby.

"Well, here I am," said Gen. Dawes as the crowd surrounded him.

"I'm not going to talk to you from behind barred doors. I know you are all good American citizens.

"You want to get something done. That's what you're here for. Well, so do I want to get something done. I know the tax warrant situation as well as you do."

As he advised them to give the new mayor a chance, hecklers started interrupting. Dawes frowned, tried to continue, and as the interruptions persisted he turned with a flash of Dawesian brusqueness and shouted at his hecklers: "To hell with trouble-makers." Then he went on with his speech, telling the teachers the banks would take all the tax warrants they could, but that only when taxes were being paid regularly could the banks feel investments in tax warrants safe.

At the Northern Trust Co. Bank the teachers succeeded in gaining access in small groups, then suddenly donned their teachers' armbands and demanded to see the officers. They were ushered out without an audience.

Another Bank "Occupied."

A parade of 1,000 teachers marched through the lobby of the Continental-Illinois Bank, and when "scouts" could not find James R. Leavell, the president, the teachers appropriated parking space on bank desks and announced they would camp there until Leavell arrived. He did, after a while, and conferred with a delegation of eleven.

Informing the teachers his bank could not accept a proposal that it seek a loan from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to buy teachers' warrants, Leavell added that the bank had "a new hope" that might work out but he could not reveal the plan at present.

The First National Bank and the Harris Trust and Savings Bank were also picketed. Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First National, received a delegation and told them the banks must keep faith with its customers and depositors and could take no more tax warrants so long as the public failed to pay taxes.

HELP OF RED CROSS ASKED BY VETERANS

Need caused by the elimination of veterans' benefits as defined by the economy act must be met by the American Red Cross and other similar organizations, Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, veterans' administrator, told the annual convention of the Red Cross last night.

"Distress," he said, "will unquestionably ensue through the denial or reduction of pensions hitherto received, regardless of its form or amount. If distress comes it will largely center around those veterans whose disabilities arose outside the military service and who, after June, will to a great measure be no longer compensated."

Gen. Hines addressed the day's closing event which was held in the United States Chamber of Commerce and followed the registration of delegates, an opening adress by John Barton Payne, and several round-table conferences.

Commander Johnson Speaks.

Louis A. Johnson, commander of the American Legion, who followed Gen. Hines on the speaking program called attention to the legion's support of President Roosevelt's economy slashes and declared, "In the past year the American Legion has faced the severest test of its existence. It has been slandered and libeled by half truths and no truths at all."

"Upon its shoulders has been heaped sole responsibility for laws with which it had nothing to do and whose authorship it disavowed from the beginning. We were not unconscious of the need for economy in government, nor were we blind to the fast that our own interests as well as the Government's demanded drastic revision of the then existing laws."

He said that the need of veterans would be increased in the next few months and would place an additional burden on the Red Cross and the legion's national rehabilitation committee which he described as one of the greatest agencies for good and mercy in this country.

Every Field of Relief.

The last year's accomplishments of the Red Cross in every field of relief were described by James L. Fieser, vice chairman in charge of domestic operations. He declared that in some respects the present emergency eclipses war.

"Perhaps such adventures in beneveolence as these of the Red Cross," he said, "play their part in giving to this country some of the spiritual strength which will indirectly provide additional elements of leadership and inspire our citizenship to new efforts on the main issues of reemployment and economic recovery."

At the opening session of the 1,000 delegates President Roosevelt asked the organization to prepare to take a part in the national relief program now under consideration in Congress. He gave assurance that he would aid in every way the work of the organization.

Hitler Followers Gain Control of Brunswick

Brunswick, Germany, April 24 (A.P.).—Followers of Chancellor Adolf Hitler have gained complete control of Brunswick, first of the Nazi-governed states, by the decision of the Nationalists to join the National Socialist party.

The Brunswick Diet will henceforth be wholly Nazi in composition, as the four Nationalist members are expected to follow suit. No other parties are represented.

Henderson Gets Peace Award.

To Hague, Holland, April 24 (A.P.). The Carnegie endowment awarded today a prize valued at £2,200 ($8,450) for "promoting peace" to Arthur Henderson, president of the disarmament conference and former British foreign secretary.

LONDON PREPARING FOR WORLD PARLEY

Organizing Committee Is Summoned by Foreign Secretary Simon.

London, April 24 (A.P.).—Foreign Secretary Sir John Simon today summoned the organizing committee of the world economic conference for a meeting here Saturday—a move interpreted in London as the first big result of the MacDonald-Roosevelt discussions in Washington.

London hailed the action as meaning that the gathering of the nations to remedy the world's economic ills at last is under way after hanging fire more than a year.

With Norman H. Davis coming from Geneva to represent the United States, and with the other major powers represented on the organizing committee, the foreign secretary is expected not to allow the committeemen to leave London until a date for convening the conference has been set. Expectations are that he will do this under direct orders from Prime Minister MacDonald.

Whether the opening can be before early July depends on whether Japan will insist upon two months' notice of the date of the first session.

Until Mr. Davis arrived in Europe recently with President Roosevelt's speed-up instructions, the official view in London was that three months' time would be needed between the setting of the opening date by the organizing committee and the actual convening of the conference.

Mr. Davis gained an agreement to cut this time to three weeks, but Japan wanted two months to get her delegation here from Tokyo.

Sir John Simon will preside at the organizing committee session in Downing street on Saturday.

State Department May Get Protests

Foreign Service Students Agitated by Report of No Test This Year.

Considerably agitated by reports that no examinations for the foreign service would be held this year by the State Department, students of Washington foreign service schools last night were debating the question of filing a formal protest with the department.

About 400 students, it is estimated, are affected by the cancellation of examinations, many of them at the Georgetown University Foreign Service School.

There was some sentiment among the students yesterday for the examinations to be held, even without the chance of an appointment. One group held that inasmuch as they have spent a year or more of study and some money in preparation for the examination they should be given a chance to compete for appointments. It was pointed out that competition in the examinations would give the students hope and that a few of them might be found eligible.

Roosevelt Parles Own French in Herriot Talk

(Associated Press.)

To the amazement of the tradition-following State Department, President Roosevelt is abandoning the rule of having an interpreter in conversations with the French statesman, Edouard Herriot.

The State Department tried to insist upon it, but the determined President, who is proud of his ability to speak French, waved the precedent aside to talk alone with M. Herriot.

Mr. Roosevelt said he didn't think his French was perfect, but he believed that he and M. Herriot, who speaks a little English, could make themselves understood.

UNDERSTANDING IS REACHED AT WHITE HOUSE MEETINGS

Prime Minister arrived at 4:20 p. m. and went at once to the Canadian Legation, where he will be a guest until tomorrow. On that day the British Prime Minister goes to New York en route to London and the Canadian statesman will be the guest of the President at the White House.

The necessity of financial understanding between the two English speaking countries overshadowed all other considerations in yesterday's meetings. The disturbed condition of international trade emphasized in the eyes of the technicians of London as well as those of the Department of State the necessity of an equable agreement between the two countries at the earliest possible opportunity. However, the fact that France has not yet indicated her position in regard to the new stabilization scheme makes any decision by either the United States or Great Britain impossible until the third great gold possessing country of the world has declared itself.

Debts Still Untouched.

This phase of the world talks was actively explored last night at the White House, where the President and M. Herriot were able to concentrate on the factors of international politics affecting the relations of the two countries. The President and the former premier will endeavor to cover all the problems on the agenda of Franco-American relations, while Mr. MacDonald, on his part, will make a similar effort here for the solution of the same problems in their relation to Great Britain. Out of the tripartite conversations is expected to come the basis for a broad understanding on disarmament, with special emphasis on some sort of consultative agreement between nations, and a general attack on the restrictive forces on world trade.

The problems of debt hangs over the conference like the sword of Damocles. Mr. Hull explained yesterday that debts had not yet entered the discussions, but every one realizes that some sort of accord on the debt problem will, in the last analysis, be necessary.

The fact that the financial discussions have overshadowed the more theoretical, but none the less important, exchanges on purely economic problems does not detract from the force of the Secretary of State's thesis which has been the interrelation of all the problems and their concurrent study and simultaneous agreement.

Difficulties Are Many.

The British economists feel that this new approach to the world's ills is the most adapted to the new scheme of world trade and world finance. The discussions that have been entered into so far have been confined to many aspects of the financial problems of the nations, but none so exhaustively as the relations between the currencies of Great Britain and the United States and the gold backing that their respective money should have.

When the experts of the two countries endeavored to work out a common denominator in the exchange of their currencies they encountered a score of difficulties not only within their own special nationalistic fields but to a greater degree in the foreign financial relations of their respective business men and traders.

The British economists feel that the pound should be stabilized at a point where it will be possible for it to remain without fear of being jolted off by some economic disturbance as yet unforseen. The American economists, speaking on behalf of a dollar that has only relatively slightly fallen from the grace of the gold standard, are unwilling to permit their currency to be depreciated still further even to make agreement between the two moneys possible.

Woman Loses on Appeal Of Hotel Blaze Lawsuit

Special to The Washington Post.

Frederick, Md., April 24.—A verdict for the defendant in a suit brought by Miss Gertrude Roueche, of Washington, against the Hotel Braddock Co. for $700 for loss of clothing and personal injuries in a fire, returned by a jury in the Howard County Circuit Court, was sustained by the Maryland Court of Appeals, it was announced today.

Miss Roueche was a guest at the hotel when the building was destroyed by fire August 12, 1929. She entered suit in the local court and later requested that the case be removed to Howard County, where it was tried before a jury. Miss Roueche then appealed to the court of appeals. Miss Catherine Cunningham and Miss Gertrude Haislip, also of Washington, guests at the hotel at the same time, entered suits for the same amount against the hotel company.

Curb on Airplanes Offered at Geneva

Four Powers Submit Plan to Prevent Misuse of Craft in War.

Geneva, Switzerland, April 24 (A.P.). Concrete measures to prevent misuse of civil airplanes for military purposes have been presented by the United States, Canada, Argentina and Japan to the disarmament conference, which resumes tomorrow.

Many European delegates are showing a tendency to await the outcome of President Roosevelt's conversations in Washington before reaching any big decisions.

The United States, Canada, Argentina and Japan say they are unable to accept internationalization of civil aviation or international control over it, but if Europe wants such a scheme for Europe they are willing to apply to themselves certain measures of control in the hope of allaying misgivings in Europe that civil aviation elsewhere might be dangerous.

Vasco Girl Awaits Operation on Eye

Parents Consenting, Judge Places Child in Care of Specialists.

Yonkers, N. Y., April 24 (A.P.).—Helen Vasco, whose parents have finally consented to an eye operation necessary to her life, was given tonight into the care of Judge George M. Smythe, of the Children's Court.

The 2-year-old girl, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Vasco, once barricaded their Hasting-on-Hudson home to keep out welfare workers, was placed in a hospital, the name of which was not announced.

Judge Smythe said the wishes of the parents would be learned tomorrow in the selection of an eye specialist to perform the operation to remove a tumor from the left eye that is gradually pressing against the brain.

Arlington's Baby Mystery Unsolved

Police Press Search for 2 Men as Foundling Is Being Cared For.

Mystery still surrounds the finding of a 6-week-old infant by B. E. Jordan at his home, 88 Lawton avenue, early yesterday morning.

Mrs. Mae E. Jacobs, superintendent of child welfare, who was notified by police, is still in search of the two men who are said to have boldly walked into the home and left the child.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Putnam, who live next door, stated that they noticed two strange men stop at the Norris home Sunday afternoon. One of them, they said, was carrying a large bundle and after entering soon came out and drove away in an automobile. Other than to say that the child was being cared for, Mrs. Jacobs last night refused to say where the child had been taken.

U. S. Judge Denies Beer "Protection"

Stories Quoted Him as Saying Federal and State License Sufficient.

Special to The Washington Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., April 24.—Judge William E. Baker, of Elkins, who presides over the United States District Court for the northern district of West Virginia, which embraces half the State, today denied stories recently circulated that he had promised complete protection to persons selling or seeking to sell beer if they hold Federal and State licenses.

"I can not pass upon the law until cases come before me in the regular way," he stated, "and then only when the transactions are in my jurisdiction."

The judge added that it is not his province to present violators of Federal laws to the grand jury for investigation, as that duty belongs to the district attorney. "In this Federal district," he stated, "I, as judge of the court, am arbiter between the Government and the persons accused, and not the prosecutor."

Whether a Federal court ruling on the beer situation in the northern half of the State is in early prospect depends, therefore, upon the action of Arthur Arnold, of Piedmont, United States district attorney, at the opening of the Wheeling term next week.

Speech on Budget Today in London

Shadow of Parleys Here to Be Cast on Talk of Chamberlain.

London, April 24 (A.P.).—The shadow of President Roosevelt's economic talks in Washington will be cast across the House of Commons tomorrow when Chancellor of the Exchequer Neville Chamberlain will make the budget speech without the prime minister in his accustomed place on the front bench.

It will be one of the few occasions in parliamentary history with the head of the cabinet absent from Westminster on budget day.

War debts may be relegated to the background in Washington as Prime Minister MacDonald continues his conversations with the President, but political quarters here expect a pronouncement from the chancellor in regard specifically to the payment due the United States in June and on the debt problem in general.

statement criticizing the House bill and asking that it be sent back to committee so that it might be brought more in line with the Norris Senate bill.

"As it stands," Mr. King said in describing the House bill, "it is too friendly to the power trust and has provisions which inevitably will lead to trouble and lawsuits and delay and will jeopardize the success of President Roosevelt's whole Tennessee Valley plan."

Vote on the bill in the House had been expected yesterday. It was not had because at the last moment its opponents discovered there wasn't a quorum which could be mustered on the floor. The debate on the bill ran the course of all of the usual arguments which have been said again and again about the project except for the sharp attack launched by Representative John E. Rankin (Democrat), of Mississippi. Sponsors of the bill had urged its passage as a part of the President's emergency program.

"The President can't be for both this and the Norris bill," the Mississippi liberal declared. "My information is that the President favors the Norris, and not this, bill."

Representative John J. McSwain (Democrat), of South Carolina, chairman of the committee, said the President had not written a line of either of the bills and urged that the protestants wait until the bill came out of conference between committees of House and Senate. He inferred that the President would prefer the House bill.

Although Representative Rankin gave notice he would move to have the bill sent back to committee it did not seem likely it would be. The House leaders are anxious to get legislation out of the way as fast as possible. They want to make a good record for the President even though they may be willing to accept a materially different measure from the conference committee.

FINDING OF 2 BODIES DIRECTED BY SLAYER

Confession Follows Trail of 14 Months Through Dozen States.

Albuquerque, N. Mex., April 24 (A. P.).—A slayer's trail that led officers through half a dozen States on a 14-month man hunt ended under a big live oak tree in the rugged timbered country of Catron County, N. Mex.

Albert Butler, 38, confessed slayer of Ray Stotts, the son, thus pointed out yesterday the grave where Victor Stotts, 67, and his 36-year-old son were buried on February 26, 1932.

Officers, reconstructing the disappearance and killing of the two men, gave the following story:

On February 26, 1932, Stotts and his son, looking for a homestead location, were camped near the home of Albert Butler, his wife and two little boys.

On the morning of February 27, a family camped a short distance from the Stotts camp found all signs of their neighbors gone. Near the camp site lay a bloody ax.

Investigation by oficers revealed that the Albert Butler cabin was vacant.

Sheriff Frank Balke, of Catron County and C. B. Harvey, of Clovis, son-in-law of the elder Stotts, were convinced a crime had been committed.

The son-in-law received a tip that took him to Joplin, Mo., former home of Butler. There he found most of the articles taken from the Stotts camp. They traced Butler, overtaking him in Louisiana where he attempted to hang himself. Under questioning of Federal agents he confessed to shooting the son, but declared the older man had been killed by three other men to prevent exposure of a narcotic ring.

Mrs. Roosevelt Is Hostess To Mariners of Gloucester

By VYLLA POE WILSON.

Thirty-four Captains Courageous of the Master Mariners representing American fishing, the oldest industry in this country, visited the White House yesterday and were taken on a sight-seeing tour around the historic mansion by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The White House went "salty" as Mrs. Roosevelt and the skippers swaped sea yarns and told of fishing adventures. Then the gracious First Lady said "follow me" and they had a close up view of President Roosevelt's collection of naval prints and the private living quarters of the Presidential family on the second floor.

"Gosh!" said one veteran, "to think of being shown around the White House by the wife of the President. I am certainly proud of that!"

And so were his comrades, judging from their smiling faces and the eager way in which they listened to every word of the impromptu lecture Mrs. Roosevelt was delivering on America's most famous house. They were escorted to her own Lincoln room workshop, to the work room of Prime Minister MacDonald set up in the Monroe room and she pointed out the closed door of the President's study where an international conference was in progress.

The skippers had arrived in Washington on the good ship Gertrude L. Thebaud to ask Congress to stop foreign fish from entering this country and to invoke a high tariff.

Capt. Ben Pine, who sailed the Gertrude L. Thebaud in the international fishing boat race, presented Mrs. Roosevelt with a handsoms silver fish service. Capt. James P. Mesquita, of the fishing schooner Elsie, gave Mrs. Roosevelt an etching "The Elsie" by Gabriel Clemons showing the picturesque schooner in Gloucester Harbor. A photograph of the Elsie in a storm was also presented to Mrs. Roosevelt.

The captains were much interested to find former Gov. Nellie Tayloe Ross, vice chairman of the Democratic national committee and Mrs. Mollie Dewson, national organizer of Democratic women, deep in conference in Mrs. Roosevelt's study. Mrs. Dewson won the hearts of the master mariners by telling them that she too hailed from Massachusetts and they stopped to greet their fellow statesman, so to speak, as they hurried after Mrs. Roosevelt.

Mrs. Roosevelt's busy day began with a horseback ride in the morning, then came her press conference with the newspaperwomen, followed immediately by a luncheon for the Monday Morning Sewing Class of New York of which Mrs. James Roosevelt, mother of the President, is an active member. This sewing class was organized 60 years ago. In the afternoon Mrs. Roosevelt received some old friends before the tea for nine or ten out-of-town visitors with their children.

That the time has come when we have to find a basis of cooperation between the peoples of all nations, was the theme of the newspaperwomen's conference with Mrs. Roosevelt. Mrs. Roosevelt pointed out that today much progress may be made by women in taking an interest in international questions. She advised the women to take every opportunity to talk to women of other nations and get their viewpoint on problems.

In the press conferences with Mrs. Roosevelt and Miss Isabel MacDonald it was discovered that these two women, leaders of the feminine thought of their countries, travel along much the same lines and each put special stress on education as a means to the solution of problems of politics, labor and international understanding. Mrs. Roosevelt's interest in education is based on its effect on the country and future of the world, it was learned.

Miss Mollie Dewson, famous for her work with the women in the Roosevelt campaign, was present at the conference but did not make any comments.

Before the conference broke up Miss Isabel MacDonald came in to the room but would not be interviewed, making an appointment with the newspaper women, instead, for 3 p. m., just before she leaves for New Haven, Conn.

Mrs. Roosevelt has told those in charge of the arrangements for the tourists and visitors to the White House to allow as many of them to see as much as possible, so there is a constant stream going through the state rooms and even the grounds. For the first time in many years they use the main entrance of the White House for an exit. Yesterday Mr. MacDonald was crowded in the doorway by just plain Americans who did not know that they were jostling the prime minister at all.

Most of the tourists have note books, so that accurate information will doubtless be forthcoming in high school essays and club and organization meetings all over the country, of just what the White House looks like and what is going on there. Whenever possible, Mrs. Roosevelt greets the delegations of sightseers in person.

Mrs. Myra B. Lord Dies.

Worcester, Mass., April 24 (A.P.).—Mrs. Myra B. Lord, 71, widow of Edward O. Lord, of New London, N. H., publicity director of the Woman's Liberty Loan Committee during the World War and a widely known writer, died today at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Robert L. Moore.

MISS ISHBEL BUSY WITH SOCIAL ROUND

As Guest Today of Miss Perkins, She Will See Labor Machinery.

(Associated Press.)

In and out of a White House teeming with varied activities, Ishbel MacDonald went many times yesterday, checking off social engagements so that today she can turn to the subject in which she is most seriously interested—labor.

Secretary Frances Perkins, of the Labor Department, is to be her hostess this morning, showing her how the machinery of the department functions in the Federal scheme.

Accompanying her father, Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, Ishbel had breakfast at the home of Senator Borah, luncheon at the Canadian Legation, tea at the home of former Secretary of State Stimson and dinner at the British Embassy.

Briefly she visited Mrs. Roosevelt's regular Monday morning press conference in the upstairs sitting room where she herself was interrogated by the press Saturday.

Parallel Experiences.

However, Miss MacDonald was not present to hear the high compliment Mrs. Roosevelt paid her, saying she was a "perfectly charming person." Neither did she hear the analysis the President's wife made of their conversations together.

Mrs. Roosevelt commented on the similarity of her own experience with that of Miss MacDonald, both having become interested in labor through an interest in politics, which had arisen from an interest in education. Mrs. Roosevelt spoke too of the similar routes taken by the two Anglo-Saxon countries during times of depression.

She crystalized her belief in the need for international understanding as follows: "I feel very strongly we have reached the point no longer to say we'd like to find a basis—we've got to find a basis!"

Although Ishbel MacDonald was "invited out" for every meal, she had ample opportunity to see a complete cross section of life in this democracy just by going back and forth through White House rooms to her own room upstairs.

Fishermen Are Visitors.

Foreign statesmen were fairly treading on each others heels there—but there also was time for Mrs. Roosevelt to receive and show through the White House the Gloucester fisher friends that she and Miss MacDonald made after their sail on the yacht Sequoia Sunday.

Aristocratic gray-haired women lunched in honor of the President's mother. Children were coming in just because their mothers had asked if they could see Mrs. Roosevelt and the White House.

Miss MacDonald during the day met Miss Mary Dewson, called the feminine "big Jim Farley" because of her political ability, who Sunday was made a Kentucky colonel.

Two teas were being held simultaneously and Mrs. Roosevelt talked to a French journalist because she believes it important that journalistic visitors from abroad get the correct impression of this country.

One Slain, 20 Hurt In Fur Trade War

Men, Armed With Knives, Guns and Pipe, Raid Union Meeting.

New York, April 24 (U.P.).—Warfare broke out today in the fur industry when a dozen men, armed with revolvers, knives and lead pipes, opened fire on a group of fur workers in a meeting room of the Needle Trades Workers Industrial Union, killing one man and wounding a score. The fight was between representatives of the right and left wings of the union, the right wingers attacking the meeting.

The invaders walked casually past three policemen doing strike duty in front of the building. Between 50 and 100 men and women were in the meeting room on the second floor when the armed group entered.

Witnesses said at least 75 shots were fired. Men jumped from second-story windows into the street. Many were injured. More than 40 persons were rounded up for questioning.

Nazi Mayor Urges New Shipping Plan

Hitler Is Asked to Dissolve Pact Between Hamburg and Lloyd Lines.

Berlin, April 24 (A.P.).—The terms of an agreement for the reorganization of German ocean shipping, the main feature of which is abrogation of the existing union between the Hamburg-American and North German Lloyd lines, were presented today to Chancellor Hitler.

The two lines would continue operating under a new working agreement without pooling profits and losses. Provision is made to allot each a fixed number of passengers in the South American traffic.

The terms of the plan were submitted to the chancellor by Carl Vincent Krogmann, the new Nazi lord mayor of Hamburg.

The scheme also would provide for independent operation for affiliated companies trading with Asia and Africa, freeing them from financial and bureaucratic restrictions on the theory that sole financial authority now rests with the federal government.

MEDIUM INFLATION URGED BY CONDON

Tells Spalding Council K. of C. Power Should Go to President.

Inflation is as dangerous and extreme as deflation and a happy medium must be struck if some degree of prosperity is to be restored to the American people, Representative Francis E. Condon, of Rhode Island, declared last night at the thirty-fourth anniversary celebration of Spalding Council, Knights of Columbus, at the K. of C. Hall, Tenth and K streets northwest.

If possible, President Roosevelt should be given power to expand the currency gradually and conservatively, the Rhode Island House member said.

"Each one of the present extremes means the road to ruin," he warned. "A controlled expansion will put us back on the road to prosperity quicker than anything. The President is the proper person to handle the job—it is not a proper function of a parliamentary body."

T. J. Quirk, master of ceremonies, introduced Mr. Condon. An address of welcome was given by J. Fred Brady, grand knight of Spalding Council.

Jack Caugher, of Newport News, a charter member, sang and a wrestling bout was staged by Bernard McGarr and Edwin Karovich, of Catholic University. John McGovern, vocalist, was accompanied by Arthur McCreight. William Crane, treasurer of the Democrat Veteran Association, was among the guests of honor. Washington Council will hold a celebration tonight.

Estelle Taylor Awarded $25,000 in Auto Case

Los Angeles, April 24 (A.P.).—A jury tonight awarded Estelle Taylor, film actress, $20,000 from Frank Joyce, theatrical agent, and his chauffeur, Noel L. Scott.

The actress, former wife of the former heavyweight champion, Jack Dempsey, had asked $150,000. She said she was badly hurt when Joyce's machine, driven by Scott, struck a palm tree as Joyce was escorting her home from a Christmas Eve party and that she lost thousands of dollars through inability to proceed with motion picture work.

Trinidad Citizens Rap Curb Begging

Association Requests Ban on Carnivals Showing in Northeast.

Charging that panhandlers abound on the streets of Washington and often direct insults at citizens when requests for money are refused, the Trinidad Citizens Association last night voted to call the attention of Superintendent of Police Ernest W. Brown to the situation with a request that stronger watch be kept on the curb solicitors.

The association also asked that carnivals be prohibited from the residential section of northeast. A boulevard stop at Trinidad avenue and Queen street northeast, where two children were recently killed, was asked. Need for relief for the destitute in the District will be called to the attention of House and Senate District committees.

Improved traffic light system at Florida avenue and West Virginia avenue northeast was asked. April 30, President's Day, was indorsed. George J. Cleary, president of the association, presided. The meeting was held at the Wheatley School.

MISSING BOY FOUND BY PRESIDENT'S AID

Robinson invited the boy into his office, meanwhile telephoning Agent A. Paul Kitchen, of the Bureau of Investigation.

Young Chandler showed no hesitancy in admitting his identity to Kitchin and told of his wanderings since leaving Athens. He professed amazement at "so much fuss" being made over him.

Norbun has done a lot of traveling since April 4. First, he caught a freight train to Atlanta. Then he proceeded to Chattanooga, Tenn., by the same mode of travel. He journeyed from Chattanooga to Birmingham, Ala., thence to Jackson, Miss., and on to Houston, Tex.

He grew a bit homesick and started East, but stopped in New Orleans. He thought of shipping on an ocean freighter, but changed his mind and came to Atlanta. He was about to start back to Athens when they found him.

Mrs. Chandler's message to the President, sent through the Athens Banner-Herald, which newspaper sent her original request, read:

"Dear Mr. Roosevelt: My boy, Norbun, is coming home tonight, thanks to you. I read in the newspaper every day how you are having plans adopted that will help the whole world to get back on its feet. I know you are a mighty busy man, but you have shown you are a human man by giving me back my son. I have seen pictures of your own boys in the newspapers. I remember the one that showed you in a flop hat in a sail boat with your boys. You were smiling. I knew then that you loved boys, my son and other mothers' sons, as well as your own boys.

"Somehow, I have felt a little warmer since you and Mrs. Roosevelt and your happy family have been in the White House. You are just folks, and although you are busy every day, I know you will be just as glad as I am that my son has been found. By finding him you have made me feel like the Government is close to me, closer than it has ever been. Please thank the Department of Investigation and any others who have helped in bringing back my boy. You all have really given me a new deal of happiness."

Mrs. Chandler several days ago wired the President asking his aid in restoring her son, as well as thousands of other boys to their parents, giving their mothers a "new deal in happiness."

The Federal Diary

By GEORGE D. RILEY

IF you play golf and are in the Government service, you're eligible to enter the Federal Diary's first annual golf tournament, to be played on Indian Springs course May 25, a month from today. And there're no strings tied to it, either.

Following the plans of former Federal Diary social features, entrants in the golf tournament can enroll and play without a cent expense. The list of contestants will be limited to 200, or 50 foursomes.

J. LELAND ACUFF.

J. Leland Acuff, Prohibition, is chairman of the Diary event. Mr. Acuff is selecting his committeemen to perfect all details to assure complete success of the affair. He and his committee will unfold their plans day by day. All news of the tournament will run in The Federal Diary column, the names of entrants, and so on. We suggest you watch this column that you miss none of the news of the tournament in which The Federal Diary seeks to determine who are the best golfers in Government service.

The Washington Post, through The Federal Diary, will present a handsome cup to the winner. There will be other worthwhile prizes, of course.

It will be a handicap tournament, Mr. Acuff explains. If you belong to a club your qualifying score can be obtained through that source. For those not affiliated with any club, the committee will devise a method of qualifying. The tournament will be for one day only, May 25.

The first 200 men to send the entry blank to The Federal Diary will be enrolled in the tournament. No fees. Just bring your clubs and balls. Then show your skill.

"The committee in charge will group entrants as far as possible so they will meet new faces, contestants from other sections and bureaus," said Mr. Acuff.

MUCH has been said and written of the delight of an early morning before-breakfast walk. But have you ever set out on a late afternoon stroll following dinner when you felt at peace with the world? Try it once. You'll do it again.

Select a walk preferably on the outskirts of Washington, along the water front, through Rock Creek Park, or other open expanse. Walk toward the setting sun. See how the city's lights blend with the diffused sunrays. Occasionally look over your shoulder. See the darkness in the east as contrasted with the West's lingering light.

And to those west of here they still have daylight. To those beyond the vast Pacific a new day is dawning, 24 hours ahead of the one expiring before our eyes.

Where except from the hand of the Master Painter have you seen the tints in the western sky? What work of man has ever approached such hues? If you saw the same shades on a canvas, you would exclaim, "Impossible! Nature was never like that!"

Be sure pace is leisurely, even to a snail's pace, the more time for reflection. Why hurry? Haven't you hurried most of the day, to breakfast, to work, to lunch, from work? Haven't you done most everything you did during the day—even to thinking—rapidly? Remember evening is time for relaxation. Take it easy.

And as twilight's last faint rays blend into the blue of the evening canopy, it is time enough to retrace your steps, perhaps a bit faster than they were made. It is time then to say within yourself:

"Now, sleep will come surely. I returned to my shell fortified for another day's routine. I have had time for reflection. The cares of one day seem as small as an ant hill I passed only a few minutes back. Tomorrow is another day. I view it as such. A new day, new life and new hope."

I used to be inspired by spring, ecstatic verse I wrote; but this year not a mediocre thing—I sorely need a "swagger" coat.

Last spring, o'erwhelmed by Nature's cheer, I sang the charm of vale and flat; but this spring only brings a tear, because I have no saucepan hat.

IS THE Administration going wild on departmental personnel? To force people out after 30 years of service without giving them a few years in which to prepare for such separation especially under present conditions is nothing short of a crime. Clerks have helped out friends and relatives to the extent permitted by reduced salaries and high rents. Many would take advantage of a voluntary 30 years service retirement on present annuity.

Our most capable representatives and senators are almost without exception well above 60 years of age. The many services planned to be curtailed are of great assistance to business men, farmers, &c., including ordinary citizens who will resent such action. Let's have nothing but reasonable, sane economy all along the line, and keep our feet on the ground.

pair, it was impossible to stop the wheel which started and crushed the bodies.

Three fire companies from Culpeper rushed to the plant, owned by F. G. Hitt and leased to the Public Service Co., but efforts to repair the gate or stop the wheel were unavailing. Frenzied attempts were also made by various means to recover the bodies, but at a late hour tonight none had been successful.

Both men were married. Hitt had two small children, and Yancey had five.

WILLIAM J. SPENCER, LABOR LEADER, DIES

Secretary of A. F. of L. Unit 27 Years Had Been in Failing Health.

William J. Spencer, 65, secretary of the building trades department of the American Federation of Labor for the past 27 years, died suddenly last night at his home in Wheaton, Md. He had been in failing health for some time.

A native of Canada, Mr. Spencer spent most of his life in this country in the interests of labor organizations.

He was a former member of the executive council of the American Federation of Labor and an organizer and later general secretary of the United Brotherhood of Plumbers, Steam Fitters, Sprinkler Fitters and Gas Fitters International Association of the United States and Canada.

He is survived by a son, Lou, and a daughter, Mrs. William King, both of Washington.

Funeral arrangements had not been made last night, but at the federation headquarters it was said many high labor officials would take part in the services.

Inflation Is Discussed At Teachers College

The trend toward inflation was discussed by Leifur Magnusson, American representative of the International Labor Office, at a faculty dinner of Wilson Teachers College at the American University Women's Club last night.

The talk was one of a series being given by the teacher college faculty out of which they hope to evolve some form of philosophy for the college. The dinner was sponsored by the philosophy committee of the college of which Miss Bessie Lacy is chairman. W. H. Higbie, president of the Teachers College, was a guest of honor.

Capital Cyclist Hurt In Virginia Accident

Special to The Washington Post.

Culpeper, Va., April 24.—Thurston Moses, 14, 1620 Buchanan street street northwest, and Joseph M. Serio, 23, of Fredericksburg, Va., were seriously injured early tonight when their motorcycle left the highway on a turn between Lignum and Brandy, about 15 miles from here, and crashed into a fence.

Moses suffered severe cuts and bruises about his head and body, while Serio's right foot was almost severed and right arm fractured. They were treated here by a private physician and then taken to a hospital in Fredericksburg.

Redfern's Survival Tale Now Doubted

Supposed Explorer Seized on Charge of Deceiving Flier's Relative.

Para, Brazil, April 24 (A.P.).—Hopes that Paul Redfern, missing American aviator, might be found alive among the Indinas in the Rio Madeira region faded away today with the arrest of Tom Roche, supposed explorer whose story had revived the Redfern search.

Police are investigating whether Roche's activities in behalf of the hunt for Redfern were bona fide, and also whether he obtained money from Redfern's uncle in the United States. The aviator, who came from Georgia, was lost in an intercontinental flight in August, 1927.

Roche presumably departed from Para in December en route to the Rio Madeira section, but Manaos and other Amazon points did not report his arrival en route.

Police said that a year ago Roche, claiming he was an unemployed sailor, asked aid at the American consulate and subsequently sailed for the United States, where, the authorities understand, he told Richard Redfern, of Rochester, N. Y., an uncle of the aviator, that he could guarantee finding Paul in Brazil.

Assault on Prince Georges Policeman Is Charged in Road Affray.

The clash with the Prince Georges County police occurred Saturday night near Riverdale, Md. When County Policeman Walter Action approached the car, the woman is alleged to have struck him in the face, inflicting cuts and bruises which required first aid treatment.

President Will Use Powers With Care, Robinson Says

Senator, Addressing Annual Meeting of Associated Press, Says Policies Are All Based on Principle of Balanced Budget.

New York, April 24 (A.P.).—Before hundreds of newspaper publishers at the annual Associated Press meeting today, Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, declared that whatever authority is given President Roosevelt by Congress will be employed "with prudence and caution, and, I trust, with promptness."

The Democratic Senate leader said that prompt action on the administration program was necessary so that "the uncertainties which have contributed so much to the hesitancies of our business world may be ended, and a great dawn of a new day may break on our enraptured vision."

The senator brought applause from the vast audience which filled the Waldorf-Astoria ballroom when he said the administration's future policies are all based on the fundamental of a balanced budget.

"The measures intended for the relief of destitution and to guide and revive business and industry will prove fatal in the long run, however noble experiments they may be," he said, "if the Government is permitted to pursue a policy of spending more revenue than it receives, and this is a fundamental principle underlying all the policies that are being advanced."

He said Federal economies already "are within sight" which will reduce the Federal budget by nearly $1,000,000,000.

Senator Robinson was introduced at the annual Associated Press luncheon by Frank B. Noyes, president of the Associated Press.

Mr. Noyes led the gathering in drinking a toast to President Roosevelt, and then read a letter from the Chief Executive.

"Please convey to all those present * * * my cordial greetings," the President wrote, after explaining that his conversations with foreign representatives prevented acceptance of an invitation to address the luncheon.

President Noyes, in explaining the functions of the Associated Press before introducing Senator Robinson, said:

"We believed and believe today that the safety of the American newspapers—and of their readers—depends on the maintenance of a mutually owned and directed newsgathering agency that can not be the instrument of any private ownership. It matters not what this private ownership is for the moment. The very possibility of our newspapers being subject to mere opinion of any private ownership as to what is good or bad in legislation or election is a peril, and if the menace becomes that of a dominant privately owned newsgathering organization with sinister motive the menace becomes a monstrous one.

"Faced with the alternative of agreeing to the control of their news sources—their very life blood—by a private ownership, the newspapers of this country chose to fight for their self-respect and founded the Associated Press. This was 40 years ago. The principles back of that organization are those of today and we now find more than 1,300 newspapers bound together in a mutual, non-profit-making organization pledged to exchange news with each other and gather for the joint benefit of its members the news of the world. The news so gathered must be nonpartisan in its highest sense; must have no tinge of bias, whether political, economic or religious. It must neither advocate nor oppose causes. It must be simply the servant of its member newspapers in their purpose to obtain for themselves the news of the far-flung world as expeditiously as is compatible with accuracy.

"This is the sole mission of our organization."

New York, April 24 (A.P.).—A resolution was adopted at the annual meeting of the Associated Press today which stated that "it is the sense of this meeting that the board of directors shall not allow any news distributed by the Associated Press, regardless of source, to be given to any radio chain or chains."

The resolution also provided that no member newspaper of the Associated Press shall be allowed to broadcast other than brief bulletins.

The board of directors was empowered to promulgate rules covering such member broadcasting and to fix a schedule of assessments to be paid by member papers doing such broadcasting.

The full resolution, as adopted, reads:

HOUSE UNIT AGAINST HARD RETIRING PLAN

debt to the retirement fund to the extent of about $100,000,000. The independent offices bill appropriates $20,500,000 toward the fund. The subcommittee was advised by one actuary that the annual contribution should be nearer $38,000,000.

Among members of Congress who went before the subcommittee yesterday were Representative McCormack (Democrat), Massachusetts; Healy (Democrat), Massachusetts; Boylan (Democrat), New York; Keller (Democrat), Illinois; Jeffers (Democrat), Alabama), and Vinson (Democrat), Georgia.

Informally, House Democratic Leader Joseph T. Byrns placed himself on record in opposition to compulsory retirement of 30-year employes, but in favor of some plan whereby the President may select those who might best be retired without injury to the service. Probability that this plan will be substituted for the Budget Bureau's plan was exclusively stated in Sunday's Post.

Witnesses favoring optional 30-year retirement, or other modifications in the budget recommendations, who asked to be heard included William R. Vallance, president of the Federal Bar Association; William V. Hushing, of the American Federation of Labor; James H. Windsor, of the Plate Printers Union; Patrick J. O'Neil, of the United National Association of Post-office Clerks; Edward J. Gainor, president of the National Association of Letter Carriers; Mrs. Margaret Hopkins Worrell, of the League of the American Civil Service, and representatives of nearly a score of other employe organizations.

Chairman Buchanan's subcommittee marked up part of the independent offices measure following yesterday's hearings. Hearings will be concluded today, and final changes written into the bill tomorrow.

PLOT AGAINST U. S. CHARGED TO SOVIET

Princess Cantacuzene Says Moscow Is Determined to Destroy America.

Declaring that the Soviet Union is determined to destroy the very foundations of America, Princess Cantacuzene last night urged the National Society, United States Daughters of 1812, to throw its strength against Soviet propaganda "to protect religion and our homes."

Speaking at the first night assembly of the forty-first Associate Council at the Willard Hotel, the granddaughter of President Grant charged the Soviets "have done nothing constructive in Russia for fifteen years and have destroyed all those who have risen against them."

"And here in this country they would destroy all we hold sacred and uproot the foundations of our Government," she said. "It is our duty as women of America to see that this insidious propaganda has no effect upon our country and that it does not reach our children."

Old Russia U. S. Friend.

The princess, for twenty years a resident of Russia before the regime of the Soviets, charged that Communism was injected into Russia by an "enemy country" and that the "old Russia" was and still is friendly to the United States.

Speaking on national defense, Princess Cantacuzene urged the society to continue its program of promotion of the enlargement of the Nation's defensive powers.

"Thousands of our soldiers were sacrificed and the World War was extended one year because of our unpreparedness," she said.

Flag History Traced.

Gen. D. R. Williams, U. S. M. C., eulogized the principles of the society and traced the history of the flag through the different wars of the United States.

"To the Army, Navy and the Marine Corps, the flag is the living spirit of the country," he said.

The colorful meeting was presided over by Mrs. Robert J. Johnson, president national. Invocation was by Mrs. Samuel Williams Earle, chaplain national. Presentation of colors was by a detail of marines. Music was furnished by the United States Marine Band Orchestra.

The annual banquet will be held tonight at the Willard. Among the guests of honor will be Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt, the committee announced.

Speeder Snips Leg From Man's Pants

Driver of Car Booked for Recklessness Following Chase by Police.

Harry Brown, colored, 742 Morton street northwest, was arrested yesterday by Montgomery County Policeman Windsor Poole on charges of reckless driving and exceeding 60 miles an hour. He was released on bond of $500 to appear in county police court May 13.

Poole had stopped a taxicab operated by Junious Jenkins, colored, 2022 Ninth street northwest, in which William Edmonds, colored, 1362 Florida avenue northeast, was a passenger. While he was talking to the driver, Poole saw a car approaching at high speed, apparently about to strike the rear of the cab. He shouted and jumped to the side of the road. The passenger also jumped from the cab. The car swerved and passed to the right of the cab on the wrong side and tore a trouser from Edmonds.

Poole gave chase at more than 60 miles an hour and managed to halt the car after several miles.

from men in whom the public has implicit confidence."

Among the purposes of the organization, as outlined in a letter sent out to prospective members, is "maintaining the national credit and integrity of the national currency."

Within the past few days, Mills has been active in opposing President Roosevelt's inflation program. He was one of the signers of a Republican statement assailing the administration's fiscal proposals. Incidentally, it was not signed by McNary.

The letter said the plan of organization "contemplates a select group of members in each congressional district throughout the country, who will work actively in their several communities to promote the objects of the organization, including the nomination and election of candidates who will support Republican principles both before and after elections."

U.S. JUDGE REFUSES CRAWFORD'S RETURN

Says Ilsley Double Murder Suspect Would Only Get "Illegal Trial."

Boston, April 24 (A.P.).—George Crawford, 34, Negro, wanted in Virginia for murder, was freed today on a writ of habeas corpus by Federal Judge James A. Lowell, who said the Supreme Court would nullify a conviction of the defendant in Virginia because Negroes did not serve on juries there.

Carrying out the thought of his prediction, Judge Lowell said, "if eventually, why not now?"

Pending action on an appeal to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals by the State of Massachusetts, Crawford later was held in $25,000 bail at the Charles Street Jail.

Crawford was charged with slaying Mrs. Agnes Boeing Ilsley, wealthy sportswoman, and her maid, Mrs. Nina Buckner, in a lodge on the Ilsley estate in Middleburg, Va., in 1932. He was arrested here for breaking and entering and later was identified as a fugitive from Virginia. Gov. Joseph B. Ely ordered his extradition.

Judge Lowell said:

"Why send this Negro back to Virginia when I know and everyone knows the supreme court will say the trial is illegal. The only ones that would get anything out of it would be the lawyers. The whole thing is absolutely wrong."

Judge Lowell said admissions have been made by both the State and defense that Negroes did not serve on juries in Virginia. He said that while the statutes of that State did not discriminate against Negroes as jurymen, in practice they were never drawn.

In explanation of his divergence in opinion from Gov. Ely, Judge Lowell said:

"Why shouldn't I, sitting in this court, have a different outlook than the governor who simply made sure the papers were properly drawn?"

Richmond, Va., April 24 (A.P.).—Attorney General John R. Saunders, of Virginia, commenting upon the decision of Judge James A. Lowell, of a Boston Federal court, granting a writ of habeas corpus to George Crawford, Negro, wanted in Virginia on a murder charge, said the Boston judge "is completely in error as to fact."

"Under his ruling it would be illegal to try a Negro before a Virginia jury on any offense," the Virginia attorney general said. He added that he was "amazed that any such distorted picture of Virginia justice should have been presented to or believed by a Massachusetts jurist."

Gov. Pollard expressed surprise at the decision, but declined to make any comment, asserting it was a judicial matter.

BALL GETS 2½-YEAR PENITENTIARY TERM

Former Arlington Officer Is Given Delay on Sentence to Permit Appeal.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST, Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Denying motions for a new trial, Judge Walter T. McCarthy in the Circuit Court of Arlington County yesterday sentenced former County Treasurer E. Wade Ball to two and a half years in the State Penitentiary on a charge of misuse of county funds. Ball was convicted by a jury on April 1. On motion of defense counsel, the execution of the sentence was suspended to permit the preparation of a writ for an appeal to the State Supreme Court of Appeals.

Capt. Crandal Mackey and Frank L. Ball, brother of the defendant, Wade Ball's counsel, made three motions to the court, submitting them without argument. One asked the arrest of judgment on the grounds that the indictment, charging Ball with the misuse of county funds totaling more than a half million dollars, did not charge a crime, and that the place of the alleged offense was not proven.

The second motion asked that the verdict be set aside and judgment entered for the defendant, on the ground that he was not an officer of the county at the time the offense is alleged to have been committed.

The third motion requested a new trial on the grounds set up in the other two motions and on further grounds that the jury was prejudiced by a letter written by T. Coleman Andrews, State auditor of public accounts, which accidentally got into the hands of the jury and which was claimed to be highly prejudicial to the defendant.

After passing sentence Judge McCarthy ordered Ball to furnish a new bond of $5,000 in addition to existing $5,000 on a pending indictment making total bond of $10,000.

INFLATION FULL OF MENACE, SENATOR TYDINGS DECLARES

President Roosevelt with plenary authority over the gold content of the dollar gained new adherents yesterday in every Senate group. Senator Borah, of Idaho, a leader of the Republican insurgents, openly questioned the constitutionality of the section, as did Senator Vandenberg, of Michigan. Two motions to strike out this section are now before the Senate, ready to be called up at any time. One is by Senator Patterson, of Missouri, the other by Senator Reed.

Senator Tydings opened the assault for the sound-money Democrats yesterday in a two-hour address which commanded the close attention of both sides of the chamber. He stressed the conflicting policies set forth in the bill, of seeking international monetary stabilization at the very moment of launching the country into a sea of paper money which possibly could not be stabilized for twenty years to come.

Sees Threat of Deflation.

"What is the purpose of the conference now being held to stabilize international exchange, if we are to lift our domestic price level by inflation?" he asked at one point.

He added he could not bring himself to sending the country into another crash of deflation such as would surely occur should the value of the gold dollar be reduced after a brief session of greenback inflation.

"And such a crash would be inescapable," he said earnestly. "Why, even the discussion of inflation here has sent prices of stocks and commodities surging upward. The ink would not be dry on this bill before such a boom would start in the stock exchange as would take the roof off the building. Then, if the economic conferences were successful there would be a new era of stabilized money. Prices would crash to the new dollar basis—and we would have exactly the same condition we are seeking today to correct, only it would be immeasurably worse."

Would Postpone Action.

Senator Tydings said America could not walk the road of inflation and complete economic isolation with one foot, and the path of world economic collaboration with the other. Either she must work earnestly for world stabilization, or she must definitely select the path of absolute economic self-sufficiency. Through the loss of export markets, the latter course, he added, would soon bring America's army of unemployed to 22,000,000.

"Are you ready to raise taxes to care for that many in the Federal bread line?" he asked.

Questioned from the Republican side whether it might not be the course of wisdom to postpone the whole question of inflation until after the world economic conference, Senator Tydings said, "Yes," and added that the failure of the present international conversations and the world conference might easily precipitate an "economic dark ages."

"I dislike to utter such thoughts," he said. "I am not looking at the darkest aspect of the picture. But if the channels of international trade can not be opened, then every nation eventually will become a water-tight compartment. Economic nationalism will run wild, to the most fantastic extremes. I can not close my eyes to Russia, to Germany, to Poland. I would like to save my country from that distress, from that folly.

Blames Loss of Exports.

In his analysis of America's industrial stagnation and agricultural distress since 1929, Senator Tydings said that the loss of foreign markets alone would account for no less than 10,000,000 of today's total unemployed of 12,000,000.

"Get back your $5,000,000,000 of exports annually and you will put 10,000,000 men back to work," he shouted. "Close off our exports entirely and you will increase the agricultural surpluses by 22 per cent a year and the unemployed will be 22,000,000 men. Are we ready to do that? That's what we are talking about in this bill."

America is in the same boat with the rest of the world in this depression, he continued. "You can't cure a sick man by mending his broken thumb. And you can't mend a sick world by inflating America. This depression is world-wide. We are all going to die together, or else we are all going to get well together. Inflation is a policy of isolation."

Senator Thomas opened for the inflationists with a three-hour statement raking the Federal Reserve system, the bankers, the international money changers, and all the forces of evil, including the Republican party, as represented by virtually all the sound-money senators on the Republican side. Often for stretches of five or ten minutes at a time Senator Thomas would chant almost word for word the statements of the late William Jennings Bryan in the campaign of 1896. But obviously he had not taken his arguments from Mr. Bryan, for on the record, the Commoner's defense of flat money was superior in both logic and oratorical appeal.

Senator Thomas began with the suggestion that his bill presented probably the most important issue ever brought before the American Congress, or any parliament in the world for that matter, he added as an after thought. He embellished the point with the hint that not in all the 6,000 years of human history had a better bill been framed with a view to meeting a worse situation.

Developing this thesis, Senator Thomas said that the farmers' purchasing power has been so drastically reduced since 1929 that it now takes $2.44 in farm products to buy a gold dollar for exchange or trading purposes. As a direct result of this situation, many farmers are unable to pay their taxes and interest. Therefore, country banks fail and county governments go broke.

Foresees Quick Remedy.

This whole situation might be vastly relieved in a very short time by enacting a measure which would, in effect, transfer $200,000,000,000 of wealth from the present ownership to the hands of those who should have it. This would not be complete justice in the present situation, but it would be a help. He denied that hoarding of currency was not the seat of the difficulty.

Questioned by Senator Tydings as to whether world revalorization of gold might not bring on another big smash after the inflation experiment, Senator Thomas said he would not enter into any discussion of what foreign nations might do.

Questioned by Senator Reed whether President Roosevelt would use the permissive inflationary powers sought in the bill, Senator Thomas said he could not presume to speak for the President. It was entirely possible nothing would be done by the President, but Senator Thomas, for his own part, felt entirely confident that a great deal would be done in the right direction once the necessary authority was granted the President.

Padded Cell Suggested.

Senator Thomas ridiculed the suggestion that the lack of confidence was the cause of the disastrous shrinkage during the last two years in credit deposits. No banker could risk a loan until the "currency question" is definitely settled, he insisted.

At one point Senator Thomas hinted broadly that President Roosevelt had shown displeasure over the recent management of the Federal Reserve System, and had stepped in to force a change in credit policy. From this Presidential inquiry, Senator Thomas suggested, had flown the reports of the imminent resignation of Governor Eugene Myers.

At another point Senator Thomas looked out of the corner of his eye in the general direction of Senator Reed and said any one who compared the proposed American inflation with the experience of Germany "ought to be put into a padded cell in St. Elizabeths."

Senator Reed then read from the Congressional Record of last May an excerpt from an address by Speaker Rainey, to the effect that inflation in the United States would condemn the country to the disastrous experience of Germany in 1922-24.

After reading the Rainey statement, Senator Reed gave the date and the page of the Record, adding:

"And I do now nominate the Speaker of the House, Mr. Rainey, for padded cell No. 1 in St. Elizabeths, and I will apply for padded cell No. 2."

Seizure of Beer Cargoes Upheld by Virginia Courts

Fairfax County Judge Rules Bills of Lading Showing Out-of-State Destinations Must Accompany All Interstate Truck Shipments of Beverage.

The right of Virginia police to seize beer being transported in the State of Virginia was upheld yesterday by Judge Paul E. Brown, of the Fairfax County Trial Justice Court. Judge Brown held that all interstate shipments through the State must be accompanied by proper bills of sale or bills of lading showing the destination outside the State.

The ruling was delivered in the case of Joe Councilman, 30, of Sanford, N. C., who was arrested last week on the Washington-Richmond highway by State Prohibition Inspector Virgil Williams, of Fairfax, Va., with 45 cases and a keg of beer. When arrested Councilman was unable to show any evidence as to the origin or destination of the shipment. He was held for investigation under the Virginia prohibition law which classes 3.2 beer as ardent spirits, and illegal.

Diffie Buchanan, owner of the drugstore in Sanford, N. C., for whom Councilman was hauling the beer, appeared in court yesterday and produced papers to show that he had purchased the beer in Baltimore and was sending it to North Carolina to be stored until May 1, when the sale of beer in that State will be legal.

On the evidence of the owner the charges of transporting ardent spirits in Virginia were immediately dismissed by Judge Brown, who upheld the right of interstate beverage shipments in truck loads.

WORLD CONFIDENCE.

President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald and M. Herriot have had an opportunity to exchange views on disarmament as a necessary preliminary to restoration of world confidence, upon which rest the issues of peace and commerce.

The conclusion of all statesmen, stripped of qualifications intended to protect national interests, is that world confidence can not be restored except by an agreement relating to armaments, whereby every nation will be reassured as to its safety without being compelled to exhaust its resources in preparing to defend its existence.

Commercial restrictions are merely an element in the universal effort to make sure of survival in case of war. The nations are wasting their wealth in armaments. In the endeavor to avert revolutions resulting from overtaxation and pauperism the governments squeeze out every possible cent in tariffs, quotas, embargoes, &c., meanwhile running more deeply into debt and debauching their currencies. These restrictions upon commerce reduce trade and revenue, whereupon higher taxes must be imposed. The nations will not quit expenditures for armaments because they think they dare not.

Thus, instead of entering into convalescence from the last war, the nations bleed themselves in anticipation of the next war.

Expenditures for past and prospective wars have knocked the nations off the gold standard and caused them to paralyze commerce in the attempt to raise more money to spend on guns and warships; not that they covet guns and ships, but because they fear that unless they possess them they will be annihilated.

There is reason for their fears, when the mightiest Asiatic power, mighty on sea and land, tears up peace treaties and embarks upon a vast invasion of a peaceful neighbor. The repercussions of Japan's aggression agitate every capital in the world. No nation can be sure that it will not be drawn into war in spite of all its efforts to remain at peace.

Viscount Ishii is soon to come to Washington on the invitation of President Roosevelt. The true welfare of Japan rests upon peace and commerce, both of which are threatened with destruction by her war on China. President Roosevelt is in a good position to ask Japan to co-operate with other nations for the restoration of universal confidence, so that commerce and prosperity may be resumed. He has a right to ask Japan to return to the policy of honoring treaties. He is now obtaining the views of other governments, through their visiting representatives, in the hope of finding means of averting the Asiatic war that threatens to extend to western nations. All nations have denounced Japan's aggressions and treaty violations. They may be compelled to do more than expostulate. If necessity drives, they will take one step after another to bring Japan to a realization that it is antagonizing the whole world when it violates a world treaty which renounces aggression and war.

The tweedledee and tweedledum of balancing currencies and dickering in tariffs are good matters for "experts" to haggle over, but the men responsible for world peace and recovery can not afford to waste their time on such subjects when the nations are under the threat of war. Unless the world's statesmen are utterly unable to profit by the lessons of recent history they will avoid the stupidity of those statesmen of 1900-1914 who chattered over trifles while war came and rolled up the nations like a scroll.

WHY WAS GOLD FORSAKEN?

One week after suspension of the gold standard by the United States the underlying cause for that action remains a mystery. Several explanations have been made by statesmen of the highest authority, but they are so conflicting that the public does not know what to believe.

Secretary Hull is very anxious that the gold embargo should be interpreted as a purely domestic measure intended to cope with a desperate economic situation within the United States. European statesmen were alarmed because they feared that this country were merely trying to strengthen its bargaining position in the current negotiations. Secretary Hull hastened to dispatch telegrams to American embassies in London, Berlin, Paris and Rome to correct that impression. In these telegrams he says:

> It is important that our recent monetary action be understood not as a step in international contest or conflict; and not as a move to get a weapon in the scheduled international conversations. It was a measure required by circumstances and designed to enable us in this country to work out an improvement in prices which was essential.

Secretary Hull is especially interested in what other countries think about the inflation movement. But members of Congress who are equally close to the President have to give attention to what Americans think about it. Senator Robinson, Democratic leader in the Senate, rather sharply disagrees with Secretary Hull in discussing the subject before a New York audience. His explanation runs like this:

> It is to implement the President for these negotiations that the legislation under discussion is sought, as well as to provide for prompt expansion of credit to the extent found imperative in behalf of our commerce and trade.

Later on he adds another significant paragraph, as follows:

> The first and immediate purpose of the legislation is to empower the President to negotiate effectively for the stabilization of these foreign currencies which by reason of depreciation have given the governments issuing them great advantage, not only in foreign markets, but also in markets of the United States, over American producers and manufacturers.

Prime Minister MacDonald was willing to accept the statement that the inflation program is an essential domestic measure, but Senator Robinson will not have it so. Apparently he thinks an explanation which will appeal to the American people is more important than an explanation which is pleasing to the distinguished foreign visitors.

Of course, these visitors are at liberty to test the credibility of the Hull statement by comparing it with Senator Robinson's disclosure.

AMATEURS FOR REGULARS.

While the administration is seriously considering a cut of 4,000 officers from the regular roll of the Army, orders are being issued through the various corps area headquarters calling to active duty a group of Reserve officers to train and head the Civilian Conservation Corps.

Thus the War Department is faced with the loss of a large number of its veteran officers while a similar number of comparatively inexperienced civilians will be put into uniform to carry on military work.

Disregarding the question of national defense, no justification for this move can be found. The officers cut from the rolls must be furloughed, and will draw a good percentage of their regular pay. Meanwhile they will be giving no service to the Government, which has invested so heavily in their training and would rely so much on their experience in case of emergency. On the other hand, when reserve officers are called in to carry on the training of the Civilian Conservation Corps it is necessary to draw them from civilian life, where they have carried on with no expense to the Government. The reserves then become regulars, and draw the pay and allowances of regular officers of the Army.

From the viewpoint of efficiency not even the most enthusiastic reserve officer would be so rash as to say that his experience gained in a military school or college can compare with the experience and the value of a trained regular Army officer.

Exactly 4,500 officers are needed to carry on the work of the Conservation Corps as it is now designed. More may be needed later. It is not believed that with this increased need for officers the administration or Congress can be giving any serious consideration to the thought of cutting a like number of trained officers from the Army and replacing them with meagerly trained civilians.

It is rather believed that the administration and Congress will recognize the broad demands, both military and non-military, being made upon the Army, and that the idea of cutting further the Nation's armed forces will be dropped.

THE ALASKAN HIGHWAY.

The project of a highway to Alaska, which has long been under consideration, was pushed into the background by the necessity of national economy. Now again it comes to the fore, being urged this time not only as a means of linking this distant section for the benefit of tourists, but because of its economic advantages. The highway, it is believed, would bring into existence another Klondike, by opening up gold and other mineral lands now virtually inaccessible.

About half of the projected roadway has been built here and there to serve local needs, but the full 2,200 miles from northern Washington to Fairbanks, Alaska, would penetrate comparatively unexplored sections. The cost of completing the project is estimated at $14,000,000. The highway would pass through some of the boldest scenery on this continent, through deep valleys and across mountain ranges of superb beauty, which at present are practically unknown.

The commission appointed by President Hoover to study the question of the highway, after two years' work, expects to presents its comprehensive report before the end of the present fiscal year. The commission, which counts among its members three Canadians, has estimated that 1,400 miles of the road would be in British Columbia, 520 in Yukon Territory, and 200 in Alaska. There exists already a fine road from Seattle to Hazelton, British Columbia, a distance of 928 miles. The next stretch from Hazelton to the Yukon is wilderness. Of the 530 miles across the Yukon Territory there are 350 miles of passable road, while 90 miles of the Alaska section forms a part of the Richardson Highway, which is a good gravel road. The linking of these stretches would bring the United States into direct contact with her northernmost territory and would complete a section of the proposed Pan-American system.

BREAKING CONTRACTS.

The right of contract is sacred in American tradition. It has been carefully guarded in the Constitution and upheld by the courts. Everywhere in the United States a contract is regarded as a binding agreement on all the parties thereto. Modern business practice would be wholly impracticable if the validity of contracts should not be upheld.

In view of this strong tradition and the reliance of the economic world on contracts, it is extremely disquieting to find in the independent offices appropriation bill a provision that would give the President authority to cancel or modify any contract in which the United States is a party. It reads as follows:

> Whenever it shall appear to the President that the interest of the United States will best be served thereby, he is hereby authorized, in his discretion, to modify or cancel any contract to which the United States is a party and which was executed prior to the enactment of this act.

The next paragraph, allowing the President to compensate the injured party when any contract might be upset, and allowing the injured party to sue the United States for further damages, softens the severity of this proposed statute to some extent, but it still constitutes a departure from sound policy.

Presumably this provision is aimed at ocean and air mail contracts. But it would also permit the President to set aside contracts for building construction amounting to about $50,000,000, naval contracts, and leases for post offices and other property. In any of these cases it would be an unreasonable procedure. Ocean mail contractors have made their plans on the basis of definite agreements with the Government. How could those contracts be honorably set aside? It is unthinkable that President Roosevelt is planning an attack upon the American merchant marine in this manner.

Surely a contract with the Government ought to rest on a stable basis. If in some cases there has been fraud or corruption in the leasing of post offices, such contracts may be voided. But it would be an atrocious policy for the Government to make a practice of breaking contracts. It may be that some of the air mail contracts should be modified in view of lower commodity prices, &c. But this could undoubtedly be accomplished through negotiations. The companies that are carrying mail are too anxious to maintain a good standing with the Government to be unreasonable about any adjustments that might seem desirable. But there could be no justification for arbitrarily terminating an agreement into which both the Government and the carriers entered in good faith.

It is doubtful whether the Government could save money by this policy. If Uncle Sam should establish a precedent of evading contracts legally made, reliable firms would raise the price of their bids for carrying mail or performing other contractural services. They would be compelled to charge a premium for entering into an agreement that might be repudiated, thus loading upon them the expense of suing the United States.

"COLD" LIGHT

From the Manchester Union.

A revolution in lighting methods appears on the immediate horizon if all that the scientific magazines are saying lately of the new glow lamps is borne out by the facts. The advance made in the gas glow lamp is sufficient to warrant the illumination of some of the Chicago Century of Progress buildings, so that we may believe that such lamps will soon be on the market for household and industrial use.

Their appearance will be an advance on present lighting means to a tremendous extent, if their proponents are to be believed. First, there will be a marked reduction in lighting costs, since the amount of electric current necessary to actuate the gas in the lamps, which are merely tubes of varying length and shape, is only infinitesimal compared to that required for the present filament lamps, which the scientific assert are heating units rather than means of illumination.

The character of the lamps is forecast by the familiar neon signs now so prevalent along our streets. The improvement on the neon lamp comes in the fact that various gases are found to be available which can give any shade of light desired, even to an exact duplicate of sunlight, violet rays and all. This means not only better and cheaper light, but light in such form as can be used for all manner of decorative purposes in homes and public buildings, and the elimination of windows if desired. In fact, the new glow lamps are said to be a greater step forward than was the present filament lamp over the first dim and uncertain electric lights which seemed so wondrous—and were—to an older generation.

Lighting engineers have sought for a long time to develop the ideal "cold" light with which lesser creatures such as the glow-worm have been provided by nature. The present filament lamp had about reached all the development possible. It will be cheerful news that victory has been achieved in a matter so important to the comfort and well-being of the public.

Back Again!

POST HASTE.

Never mind why M. Herriot and Sig. Jung want to stress political questions, it is a useful contribution just now.

The House has swallowed a good many big doses whole, but it decides to look into the formula of the 30-hour week bill with its admixture of minimum wage and industrial Stalinism.

Self-liquidating public works are next on the program, while the self-liquidating public works to increase beer revenue.

Of course, Germany can have Hitler if she wants him, but at the cost of world confidence.

Every set of inflationists in history thinks it is smarter than those who went before, but even in our own World War inflation it took wages four years to overtake the rise in prices.

Before the depression is over one figure will have to be revised—the estimate of the average life of an automobile.

Some of those who complained loudest about an imaginary rubber dollar are now quite willing to establish a gutta-percha base for the Constitution.

In offering its bargain sale of bonds with basement small lots the Treasury outdoes department store fractions by offering a 2½ per cent rate.

There are some congressmen who would like to apply the gag rule to the quips applied to themselves.

If that German scientist really demonstrates that he can make gold from iron by the ton, silver will become so valuable that Senator Wheeler will have nothing to do with it.

Japan's attempts to justify her acts in China by citing precedents set by other nations is as out of date as a Eugenie hat. Imperialism is no longer fashionable.

The pictures of M. Herriot's greeting to Miss Liberty in New York harbor look as though he were delivering an invitation to return home.

When Friend Ramsay saw that presidential yachting was reduced to the Sequoia it must have been better than a lecture on our retrenchment necessities.

In the thick of the new glory Hitler doesn't realize that he is spreading himself too thin.

Opposition to inflation in the Senate was as futile as the defense of Jehol, but "they seen their duty and done it noble." PAUL HUDSON.

"Be full content small plot to dig
And don't attempt to grow too big.

"Who climbs too high is apt to fall,
Be satisfied with profits small;

"Be honest; be content to work—
In speculation dangers lurk.

"Though roads seem smooth, don't go too fast.
Remember boom times never last."

And they will wisely smile and say:
"The poor old fogey's had his day!

"He's just a feeble good old scout

You Can't Bring Back the Spilled Milk, But You Can Go A-Milking.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

JAMES TRUSLOW ADAMS, the historian, wrote this description of after-war conditions: "For a while the farming and laboring classes had shared in the war-time prosperity; the farmer had got war-time prices and the laborer's wages had risen rapidly as the scarcity of labor had increased. * * * But when the bubble broke, all of these classes suffered severely. Taxes had risen rapidly with the debts contracted * * * General business fell off sharply. The price of farm produce crashed. Many of the laborers and farmers had to abandon their homes. There was a severe decline in the price of farm land, many foreclosures of mortgages, lawsuits for debts which wiped out all equities."

That sounds modern and familiar, doesn't it? But Mr. Adams was describing conditions that followed the French and Indian War.

That struggle was merely a by-product of the Seven Years' War that engaged the whole of Europe and left civilization bankrupt. The colonies played an unimportant part but shared the common ruin.

Now history repeats itself, for economic laws have not changed.

After the artificial prosperity of the World War came the inevitable collapse of 1921. That was the beginning of our "depression."

It was then that banks became insolvent. It was then that "frozen loans" tied up capital. Then was the time to take inevitable losses and start again from scratch.

But the world found a way to fool itself. It postponed the fiddler's bill. It made times good—supreme folly of the ages!—by borrowing.

Borrowing didn't change things. Frozen loans and debts remained. But these were forgotten as the world ate up its accumulated capital, lived on credit and mortgaged the future. Apparently mankind was to escape the hard business of paying for war's destruction.

But payment was merely postponed. When borrowing ceased, the inevitable postwar collapse continued. This "depression" merely uncovers conditions that were kept hidden for eight years. War's bill must be paid to the last bitter farthing.

Back in 1760 the colonials found a way out. The bankrupt headed west into virgin country to begin a new life. They found "relief" by facing the dangers of a new frontier and breaking new sod.

It is the only way. The past will never come back. Don't hope for it. The individual's one chance is to face the truth, give up hope of heavenly manna, and grimly begin at the bottom to build a new life. If you must make war, you must pay for it.

POLITICAL COMMENT

Success Story.

Minneapolis Journal.

Washington gossip has it that there is a deep undertone of grumbling over the submergence of the patronage business by the engrossment of the administration in the legislation of the New Deal. The grumblers should take a cue from Kansas' former Governor, Harry Woodring. He was one of the army of faithful that converged on Washington for the inaugural. And he stayed right there. Through all the projections of plans and relief measures, through all the convocations of best minds, Woodring sat tight. His may be one of the best minds, too, but apparently he did not lend it to problems other than his own. And look what he got out of it.

The new Assistant Secretary of War is Harry Woodring. It took a month, but he made it. And what was his system? He bought a one-way ticket to Washington. And he stayed on the job.

No Inflationary Runaway.

Boston Transcript.

Inflation is a difficult and dangerous horse for any man to ride, but President Roosevelt has acted at just the right moment to bring the animal under control. In the Senate as in the House there are some men who have no intent to use any restraint in handling the issue. Their whole idea is simply to cast off the bridle, drive in the spurs and let the animal bolt. They are clamoring for specific inflationary schemes, with or without any real merit, and with no broad and deep regard to the question whether the cures they propose are not much worse, in their economic results, than the disease they would remedy. In that class of nostrums are comprised any and all of the wild schemes to debase the dollar by legislative fiat, or to dilute the currency by the turn of a spigot which would let in a flood.

A Long-Tailed Cat.

Portland Express.

This tax cat has a very long tail. Taxpayers are wondering more and more where all the money has gone and is going. They are meeting the emergency with characteristic good will, but doing a heap of thinking nevertheless. It's not enough to say that taxes are needed to pay the bills when so little is being said about the bills themselves. After making such sacrifices as are being demanded taxpayers are inclined to go back and take a look at those bills and see what all the trouble is about. When they get around to taking a good look there may be plenty of embarrassment for a lot of people.

So not everything in sight can be taxed with impunity nor a new tax devised every time there is a deficit, regardless of how the deficit may have been caused.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Mystery of Money Puzzles One Who Doesn't See It Long at a Time—Safety the First Thing.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: If there is anything experts don't know half as much about as they think they do I guess it must be "money." I learned a long time ago that it is a circulating medium and that is about as far as I ever got. And perhaps it is as far as anyone ever gets. The wherefores of it, more or less expert, are so many and conflicting that they have always had me very much puzzled. This is not as strange as it sounds, inasmuch as I have had to keep mine circulating to such an extent that I never could give it more than the once over from one pay day to another. But at least I have learned that—for instance, if you want to borrow $5 or $10—it does not always circulate as freely as you would like. That is all right; no one should be expected to circulate it without feeling pretty sure there will be some sort of sufficient comeback. And no matter how much the experts do or do not know about it, one thing is certain. There should be a safe place to keep it when not in circulation—some place safer than a household cache. The money I mean in this connection is that of the great majority of people who can never save much more than a surplus for a rainy day—the little spenders, as I would call them, who furnish the life blood of big business through the channels of retail activity when times are good. From this point of view, the work of the experts, if they really are such, seems simple enough. If, in their new deal national banking legislation, they can provide a dependable plan for the safekeeping of the food-and-clothing money, the house-rent money, the house-lighting-and-warming money, the home-purchase money, the doctor's-bill money, the tax-bill money, the gasoline money, the movie money, the vacation-trip money, the Christmas savings money, and the rainy-day money of the little spenders, I expect that in a few years the problem of permanent prosperity will have settled itself.

JACOB RADKE.

Why Not Prohibit Intoxicants of Less Than 15 Per Cent?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The idea of a correspondent that beer, as a "minor intoxicant," should, in behalf of true temperance, be continued as our only legalized alcoholic drink, reads well, but seems to me a bit academic.

The regular drys claim that beer produces an appetite for something stronger. If so beer-drinking could not be limited to that alone, but would finally furnish a very profitable patronage for hard-liquor bootleggers. Whisky and other "major intoxicants" would be drunk in large quantities by people with no inborn inclination to alcoholic indulgence in the first place.

Judging by the experience of the past few years, it looks as if alcoholic beverages in some shape are necessary. If the wets as well as the drys would only be guided by common sense instead of their emotions perhaps a satisfactory arrangement would be possible.

But, excuse me, I have no plan to offer only a mere suggestion. Let the sale of beer, or any intoxicant of less than 15 per cent alcoholic content, be prohibited, and at the same time legalize the major intoxicants.

With nothing alcoholic except hard liquor on sale, those with weak stomachs would not be likely to develop an alcholic thirst in large numbers and indulgence in strong drink might thus be limited to those who are constitutionally fitted to stand up under it. OLD SOAK.

Mrs. Peabody Renews Assertion That Officers of the Titanic Were Drunk.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Will you kindly allow me space to reply to P. O. J. (who withholds his name). He questions my statement regarding the sinking of the Titanic, which went down April 14, 1912, after a drinking party in which certain officers were reported to have taken part. The horror of the tragedy was intensified by the fact that Maj. Archie Butt lost his life that calm night when the steamship Titanic struck the iceberg and sank with a loss of more than 1,500 lives. The summer before, Maj. Butt had taken our home in Beverly, Parramatta, for President Taft as the summer White House, and we were especially interested to learn why his life was sacrificed. The facts were well-known at the time, but memory and judgment are affected by alcohol.

We are more concerned at present, since our "Ship of State" now sails near the rocks under men who have established a drinking place in the Capitol of the United States, where clear thinking and sobriety are vitally important. This sale of 3.2 per cent (4 per cent by volume) beer, which is intoxicating, is directly in defiance of the eighteenth amendment to the Constitution of the United States, which these men are sworn to support and defend. The Supreme God of divine justice has an inflexible law and inflicts penalties.

Cutting Teachers' Pay Discourages Enthusiastic Workers in an Arduous Field.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It is now very popular for school boards to cut their teachers' salaries. Isn't this going to discourage the best teachers? It has taken a long time for the salaries to get where it pays one to prepare for the teaching profession. I believe our teachers are more interested in building character than big bank accounts. It is worth something to take other people's children and give them vision and high ideals. Why repay them with a pittance for their good work? Theirs is not an easy task. PARENT AND TAXPAYER.

Happenings of Interest in Washington Society

White House Having Heavy Program in Entertaining.

MRS. ROOSEVELT ENTERTAINED at luncheon yesterday for the members of the Monday Sewing Class, composed of prominent New York matrons and their daughters, who are in many instances descendants of the original members of the class which was founded about sixty years ago to meet at regular intervals to sew and lunch together.

Mrs. James Roosevelt, mother of the President, who is visiting Mrs. Frederic A. Delano, though not among the founders of the class, is one of the older members and annually entertains the group.

Mrs. Roosevelt received, at 4 o'clock, the captains who came to Washington aboard the Gloucester fishing schooner Gertrude L. Thebaud.

At 4:30 o'clock Mr. de Chartier, who is one of the French newspaper men who are accompanying M. Edouard Herriot, was received by the First Lady and immediately following the President and Mrs. Roosevelt met M. Herriot and the members of his party on the front portico to escort them to the family sitting room on the second floor where tea was served.

Still later in the afternoon the President and Mrs. Roosevelt received the Minister of Canada, Mr. William Duncan Herridge, who presented the prime minister of Canada, Mr. Richard Bennett. At the same time Mrs. Roosevelt received a small group of callers.

Today the First Lady will go to the Capitol for luncheon, and in the afternoon a small group will gather at the White House for a farewell tea for the Prime Minister of Great Britain, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, and Miss Ishbel MacDonald, at which the newly appointed United States Ambassador to Great Britain, Mr. Robert W. Bingham, will be present, as illness of Mr. Bingham prevented their meeting at the state dinner at the White House Saturday evening.

Congressional Club's Founders To Be Honored This Week.

Mrs. Roosevelt heads the list of distinguished honorary members who have been invited to join with the active and association members of the Congressional Club of Washington in honoring the original founders of that group at a silver anniversary breakfast on Friday at noon.

Other honor guests will be Mrs. John Nance Garner, Mrs. Henry T. Rainey; both Mrs. Garner and Mrs. Rainey are founders and their names appear among the original incorporators; Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Mrs. William Howard Taft, Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, Mrs. Herbert Hoover, Mrs. Thomas R. Marshall, Mrs. Charles G. Dawes, all honorary members of the club. Others on the list are Miss Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor, Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, Minister to Denmark, all of the wives of the Supreme Court, of which Mrs. George Sutherland is a founder; Senator Hattie Caraway, although Mrs. Caraway was not a founder her name appears a few years later as treasurer; Mrs. Cordell Hull, Mrs. William Woodin, Mrs. George H. Dern, Mrs. Homer Cummings, Mrs. Claude A. Swanson, Mrs. James A. Farley, Mrs. Harold I. Ickes, Mrs. Henry A. Wallace, Mrs. Daniel C. Roper.

After the breakfast Mrs. Clarence C. Dill, wife of Senator Dill of Washington and president of the club, will make the welcoming address.

Responses will be made by Mrs. Herbert Parsons, in whose home the club was organized, and Mrs. Frank Lowden, of Illinois, who is making a special trip to the Capital for the event.

Greetings will be by Mrs. Finis J. Garrett, who is chairman of this committee and also a founder. Mrs. Garrett will read many letters and messages from absent founders. Representative Florence Kahn, of California, another founder who has gone far in the Nation's Capital, since that day, will pay a tribute to the founders. Mrs. Henry T. Rainey, wife of the Speaker of the House of Representatives, will tell of "Our First Home," which was 1432 K street northwest. Mrs. John Nance Garner will introduce the honor guests. This will be followed by a musical program and a tea.

Mrs. Finis J. Garrett is chairman of the entertainment committee. Her assistants are Mrs. William E. Humphrey, Mrs. Frank W. Mondell, Mrs. John H. Small, Mrs. Irwin L. Lenroot, Mrs. James F. Byrnes, Mrs. Lindley H. Hadley, Mrs. Porter H. Dale, Mrs. James S. Parker, Mrs. Henry W. Keyes.

Among the events planned by this committee is an early morning motion picture show at Keith's Theater on Saturday morning. In addition to the members and their guests the husbands are invited to this entertainment. When the representatives and senators wend their way to Capitol Hill at 10:30 o'clock, the wives and guests will go to the White House where Mrs. Roosevelt will greet them. Upon leaving the White House they will go to Fredericksburg for luncheon and to view the historic gardens of Virginia, returning in the evening for a buffet supper at 8.

Mrs. Curtis B. Dall, who is visiting her parents at the White House, will return to New York to attend the luncheon to be given Thursday by the Westchester Women's Democratic League, at Westchester, N. Y.

Mr. MacDonald Dined At British Embassy.

Robinson, Senator and Mrs. Key Pittman, the Minister of Canada and Mrs. William Duncan Herridge, Representative and Mrs. Sam B. McReynolds, the Undersecretary of State and Mrs. William Phillips, the former Secretary of State and Mrs. Henry L. Stimson, the Assistant Secretary of State, Mr. Raymond Moley; Mr. and Mrs. Warren Delano Robbins, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Baruch, Mrs. Robert W. Army Show to Feature Riding and Jumps.

There has been an argument raging for years. Now it can be settled. That is the method of riding a horse over the jumps. The Army has a method which they claim unbeatable, while the fox-hunting civilians have another which they claim to be without peer and moreover natural. The discussion has ranged from New England to California and even beyond the seas.

Washingtonians will have the opportunity to decide on the merits of the two schools next Saturday at Fort Myer Garden, just north of west approach to Memorial Bridge, where civilian riders will compete with the best from Fort Myer and the War Department.

This show is for the benefit of the Army Relief. There will be thirteen classes as follows: Junior horsemanship for children 10 years and under, novice hunters, junior jumping for children 16 years and under, ladies' hunters, enlisted men's jumping, junior horsemanship for children 16 years and under, open jumping, junior hunter for children 15 years and under, ladies' horsemanship, Riding and Hunt Club hunters, park hacks, hunt teams and a final championship class and booby prize for jumpers.

The show ring has been built in a splendid location among the woods, with outside courses over rolling hills, all in view. Jumps are those found in natural hunting country. All that remains is the weather; the chaplain and the Weather Bureau are working on that. The show will be in two sessions, 10 a. m. and 2 p. m. Post entries, so bring your horse and prove it.

Joseph O'Donnell will offer a group of Irish songs and ballads.

FEATURES FOR WOMEN

The Meanderer

Finds Protective Coverings for the Gardener's Hands; New Garden Tools; New Method Photographs for Mother's Day.

Telephone questions on The Meanderer's column to The Washington Post, National 4205, Extention 19; or address The Meanderer, The Washington Post, inclosing self-addressed, stamped envelope for reply.

"The invisible glove" is a short description given to a paste newly manufactured for protection of the hands when working in the garden or garage. A small amount of the paste—a quantity about the size of a marble—is sufficient when applied on dry hands to protect them not only from garden soil, but from oil and grease. Fast-drying lacquers are easily removed from the hands if they are protected with this new paste. The Meanderer suggests that this paste be kept on hand for the many needs to protect the hands during the spring gardening, cleaning and redecorating. It sells in sizable cans for 50 cents in a big hardware store on G street.

Three sizes of heavy leather, washable gloves for women are useful also for gardening, painting and housework. The gloves are soft and pliable, as well as durable. For men also, these leather gloves are in three sizes, 50 cents a pair.

Metal labels for the flower or vegetable gardens that are indestructible, and therefore usable year after year, sell for five cents each in large quantities, or for six cents each singly or in small lots.

Sets of gardening tools, including three or four pieces, such as trowels, cultivators, spading fork and transplanting forks, are priced from 25 cents up in this large hardware store. A particularly sturdy set of such tools is 75 cents.

Electric hedge trimmers in other years have been prohibitive in most households because of their expense. This year an electric hedge trimmer costing not more than one-third of the cost heretofore asked is featured at $13.75 in the hardware store the Meanderer visited on G street.

A cotton broadcloth dress, ideal for wear in the garden, as well as for golf and tennis, is made in tailored fashion in white, blue, green and peach color. Its feature is its two-piece construction. The foundation resembles a blouse attached to tailored shorts in matching color—and the skirt is detachable in wrap-around effect. The wrap-around skirt provides a shadow-proof effect, making a petticoat unnecessary. This practical, washable dress, a complete summer costume, is just $2.95 in a large F street women's wear shop.

Glimpses of oneself at many angles at the same moment are all a part of the plan for making the most effective photograph possible of the mirrored person, a photographic plan that is very new and attracting much attention in the F Street women's wear store just mentioned. The glimpses of oneself are reduced by special mirrors to approximately photograph size, so that the sitter will know just about what the picture to be made will be like, and he may even arrange himself in the view he would like most to have photographed. When he has posed himself satisfactorily he tells the photographer, and thus the self-conscious ordeal ordinarily gone through in photograph taking is eliminated. Large portrait studies made after this new method that have regularly cost $4 are now $2 for a limited time.

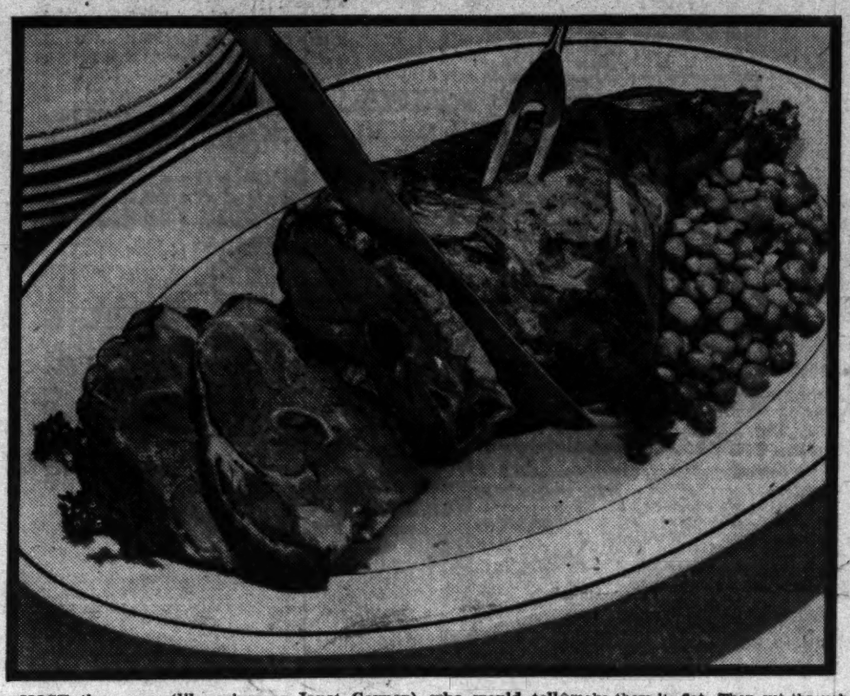
WHAT'S GOOD TO EAT

LAMB WITH PEAS AND MINT SAUCE SEASON'S FAVORITE COMBINATION

By ANN BARRETT



THOSE there are (like winsome Janet Gaynor) who would tell you any time of year their favorite dish is roast lamb—brown outside, juicy inside—served with mint sauce, green peas and plenty of mashed potato.

But this time of year, when real spring lamb is in season, this is such a pet combination I decided to go back-stage and spot all the little tricks that bring a roast of lamb out perfect.

Success starts first with the choice of meat—to make sure you've caught your lamb this side of mutton. Beyond this—for a real choice roast—you'll select leg, loin, rib, or ribs made into a crown roast.

Cooking Tips.

The next thing to look out for is the seasoning. There are those who like just the delicate flavor of the meat itself, and so just rub it well with salt and pepper before roasting. (By the way, if you're sure you have lamb and not mutton, it's a good thing to leave the caul (parchment-like skin) on the meat. It helps hold a leg of lamb in shape, and gives it a nice glaze when it's cooked.)

Other people like to rub a cut onion over the surface of the meat. Or put a good-sized quartered onion in the roasting pan. Others take a still stronger course and smuggle into the pan a section of garlic. Still others hanker after the more novel effect of ½ teaspoon ground ginger mixed with the pepper and salt that is rubbed into the meat. It's yours to choose!

The third important matter is oven temperature—and this is important. Lamb should go into a hot oven (450 F.), and be roasted at that temperature till nicely browned (about 15 minutes). Then reduce heat to 375 and continue roasting till meat has been in oven 15 minutes for each pound, plus 10 minutes extra. To keep the meat juicy and fine-flavored, baste it every 10 minutes with drippings in the pan. Or baste it with fruit juice—such as pineapple—combined with drippings.

Roast Lamb Accessories.

To be at its best when it comes to table, roast lamb needs the support of something tart. Such as mint, currant or guava jelly. Plum or mint-pineapple jam. Or ginger pears.

Innumrable sauces add to the glory of roast lamb, too. Two of these—mint and currant-mint sauce—I think you might like to have right now.

For mint sauce, just dissolve 2 tablespoons powdered sugar in ½ cup mild vinegar. Add 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 4 tablespoons finely minced mint leaves, and set saucepan on back of stove to steep (not cook) for 30 minutes. Serve this right along with nice brown gravy if you like—it's being done!

Currant-Mint Sauce.

For currant-mint sauce, pour off all the nice brown fat and settlings from your roasting pan—except 2 tablespoons. Set pan on fire and blend in 2 tablespoons flour, letting it brown but not burn. Then slowly add 1 cup water or meat stock, stirring constantly, and cooking till smooth and thick. Next add ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ cup currant jelly, 1½ tablespoons finely chopped mint leaves and 1½ tablespoons grated orange rind. Heat through and serve.

Lamb Steaks, With Plum Sauce.

In case you'd like to do something completely different with a leg of lamb, here's a recipe—lamb steaks with plum sauce—I coaxed the other day from a New York chef. It's so extra-elegant I hope you'll try it.

From the thick end of the leg (use the rest for a de luxe stew or lamb curry), have the meatman cut you four steaks (from ¼ to ½ inch thick). Have him give these a whack with the flat side of his cleaver to make them lie flat. Then cut through the fat around the edge of each slice so it won't curl up in cooking. Next melt 2 tablespoons fat or drippings in heavy fry pan, season steaks with salt and pepper, and brown them in fat (allowing about 6 minutes cooking to each side). Serve these on hot platter, covered with plum sauce made as follows:

First soak ½ pound prunes overnight (unless they are the new, quick-cooking kind). Drain them and put them on fire in saucepan with ½ cup cooking wine, ¼ cup sugar and ¼ teaspoon cinnamon. Cover and cook gently 10 minutes, or till prunes are tender. Then take out prunes and remove pits without breaking fruit. To remaining liquid in pan add ¼ teaspoon salt and ¾ cup rich meat stock or bouillon. Cook over quick fire for 20 minutes. Add prunes and simmer gently 5 minutes more. Pour over lamb steaks as directed. It'll be a gala day in your house when you serve that!

Send for More Recipes.

Of course there are many more ways to make lamb a winner. Stuffed lamb chops, de luxe curry of lamb, lamb fricassee, lamb in some of the foreign dishes the Greeks have a word for (but I can't pronounce it). Many of these dishes utilize the less expensive cuts that we all like to economize on. All these in a new lamb bulletin that's yours for a 3-cent stamped, addressed envelope and the coupon below.

1—Mr. Schenken considers an Opening bid of five clubs, but finally prefers the waiting policy.
2—The distributional strength of the hand warrants opening the bidding.
3—A sound Overcall.
4—Still preferring to bid slowly and await developments.
5—Obviously a sound raise to game, even over an Overcall.
6—The bidding has gone too quickly for Mr. Lochridge to consider a Rebid, particularly since he is void in his partner's suit.
7—At this point Mr. Schenken is not entirely sure whether he is attacking or defending, but it seems as though the bid must be made.
8—Mr. Watson is not sure whether five clubs can be made, but he endeavors to push West 1 trick higher.
9—West accepts the challenge.
10—A close Double, but the Ace of diamonds is a certain trick and it looks as though either a heart or a spade must be made.

In the play Mr. Jacoby opened the Ace of diamonds and thereafter the hand was a lay-down for six clubs. The only Opening that would have defeated the contract was that of a spade, which is an extremely Double-Dummy play. With this Opening, the Queen would have been finessed immediately, Declarer's hand reentered by ruffing a heart, and a diamond led. At this point the Ace of diamonds would have won, and the King of spades would have driven the last reentry out of Dummy.

TOMORROW'S HAND.

If West is playing a contract of three notrump against which the Opening lead is the Knave of spades, which is worn by the Declarer and two rounds of diamonds taken, after which West shifts to a club, what lead should South make to defeat the contract?

South, Dealer.
North and South vulnerable.

North: ♠ J 10 9 7 5 ♡ K 10 7 6 ◇ A 7 5 ♣ 9

West: ♠ A Q 3 ♡ Q 9 ◇ Q J 10 4 ♣ K Q 6 3

South: ♠ 4 ♡ J 8 5 3 2 ◇ 3 2 ♣ A J 8 7 2

The hand will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

SCARED STIFF.

Mrs. A. B. L. writes: Several years ago you wrote that flashes of light and floating specks might mean epilepsy as one of a list of possible causes. Until then I had thought that epilepsy was always accompanied by convulsions. I had flashes and specks, and what you wrote scared me stiff. I was terrified and, while I can now be philosophical, I am still scared.

I found that in my case the symptoms were due to neuritis involving my eyes. I had some teeth drawn, and another trouble I had, colitis, was cured. The symptoms disappeared. I have since learned that acidosis can cause these symptoms and alkalis will cure the acidosis and stop the symptoms.

In answering questions about specks and flashes why not say nothing about epilepsy? Nothing can be done for that, whereas the other causes are curable. You might be right, but why scare others as you did me.

REPLY.

You may be right. It takes lots of folks and of many minds to make a world. But don't be too harsh on epileptics. Many are curable. Many have been cured.

E. H. writes: Does empyema cause pulmonary tuberculosis? If so, how long after?

REPLY.

As a rule, it does not, although there are exceptions. Empyema is purulent pleurisy. Purulent pleurisy is usually caused by pneumococci or pus cocci. Tubercle bacili causes a pleurisy with watery effusion.

A New Yorker AT LARGE

By MARK BARRON.

NEW YORK.—It was little more than a year ago that the Federal officers issued a list of New York's "public enemies."

That list must be considerably altered now. "Legs" Diamond, Vannie Higgins, Vincent Coll and Larry Fay have all been killed since then. Owney Madden has been sent back to Sing Sing Prison, and Dutch Schultz is in hiding from Federal reserve agents who want to talk to him about his income tax.

Funny about Schultz. A police bulletin has been broadcast asking that he be held. There are rumors that he is somewhere in Europe, but detectives believe he is still right here in New York. It is, they point out, really the safest place to hide. Finding a man in a community of 7,000,000 people is a tough task, indeed.

For him to try to depart via ship or train would be practically walking into police hands. The officers merely try to keep him bottled up on this island, knowing that he is certain eventually to let down his guard and pop up in one of his old haunts. Then he's trapped.

Pistol-Toting Perils.

Getting a permit to possess a pistol in New York is no easy task. And this State is extremely severe to those who decide to own a gun without this necessary permission. That comes under the well-known Sullivan act.

A reputable person can get permission if he has a good reason for owning a pistol, but the law says it must be a very, very good reason. If you live in a city you must pay $2, but in rural districts you have to pay only 50 cents. A person who has been convicted of a crime is barred automatically from a permit.

You'd be surprised how many illegal pistols the police turn up. Once a year they destroy all such seized weapons. And there are always enough to fill a tug boat when they are taken out to sea and tossed overboard.

Bigger But Fewer.

Taxi drivers report a unique consequence of the depression. Times must be better now, they argue, because passengers are giving them larger tips than they did during the previous two years. That is, people who used to tip them nothing or only a dime, are now giving them 15 or 25 cents.

But the kick is that fewer people are riding in taxis. It seems that New Yorkers, during the lean months, got out of the habit of taking a cab every time they went more than ten blocks. They've gotten used to walking.

Speaking of transportation, they've revived the subject of tearing down the Sixth avenue elevated railway. But the newest plan is that if the line is discontinued, the city will transform it into an elevated street for automobiles.

Guiding Your Child

By MRS. AGNES LYNE

UNCERTAINTY to a child, as to the rest of us, is exhausting.

When we don't know what to expect or when to expect it, we suffer under a nervous tension, become irritable and tend to oppose whatever finally takes place.

Even more is this true with a child whose whole existence is bounded by powerful grown-ups who determine every last detail of his daily life. His adults have the power either to surround him with confusion and subject him to many sudden changes or they can provide him with a pleasant, dependable routine of living.

How unsettling for the child, for instance, it is to have his bath come one day in the evening and another in the morning.

Perhaps he misses it in the morning when he has learned to look upon it as the natural beginning of his day. Now suddenly when he is deep in play he is dragged away much earlier than usual merely because today suits mother's convenience.

His more or less vigorous protests she regards as naughtiness, and in overriding them gives herself credit for being very patient indeed.

Again, when a child wants very much some particular privilege, how unnecessarily distressing it is not to know until the last minute whether it is forthcoming.

He spends his time wishing and teasing when he might either have tucked the happy promise into the back of his mind or made peace with the coming disappointment and gone on with his play.

Cheerful cooperation with the day's routine, good whole-hearted play and the ability to take "no" for an answer—these are only possible to the child whose mother does not spring surprises on him or keep him in uncertainty about things that to him are important.

Field and Health Day Scheduled at Culpeper

Special to The Washington Post.

Culpeper, Va., April 24.—All of the high schools and grammar schools of the county will participate in field and health day exercises at the ball park here May 5. The feature will be the baseball games for the girls' and boys' county championships.

A "queen of health" and her court of honor will be selected, and other attractions will include the May pole dance, scarf dance, flag drill, dance of spring, singing, games and stunts.

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

A lovely ice-blue lacquered satin makes the oddly draped skirt of this evening gown, whilst the bodice is cocoa-brown velvet oddly finished at the neck. (Seen in a Fifth avenue shop window.)

WELL, I guess we'll have to discuss the long and short of it again! I, for one, don't think we will ever come to the end of it. It is just like pajamas—give the modern woman something practical and comfortable and becoming, and then try to pry her loose from it—just try.

Continental women continue to cut their hair—to wear it short and sleek, and to swirl little flat curls all around the forehead. And, strange to say, American women aren't following the same idea, but are instead wearing their hair longer and doing everything in the way of curls at the back of the neck.

And if a pompadour, even the least little hint of one, is becoming to you, then you may start training your hair to brush up into one. But if you do, give up the curls either in the front or the back of the neck, and, instead, curl your hair into a tight knot in the back.

Wonder what the jewelers are going to say about it when milady takes to wearing jewelry made out of fabrics? There has been quite a movement in that direction for a long time—beads designed for boudoir wear, for instance, made out of satin and chiffon. But until lately they have always been very much of a novelty, and not taken seriously by any one. But this season the Paris dressmaking houses have made some really lovely things in the way of jewelry out of braid.

* * * *

You can have a new dress a day, every day in the summer or every summer night—if you just have an assortment of jacket things! I call them this because the little extra garment into which my lady slips her pretty arms, or which she throws over her shoulders, has so many shapes and sizes and forms and colors this spring that it has lost both its identity and name. And, of course, they are easy to make after you know how, because almost all of their work is in the planning. So I've planned a leaflet for you, and all you have to do is send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Post for this illustrated leaflet, which tells you how to make them—choose the one you want, and go right ahead and make it or have it made. A jacket a day keeps the cobby-woobies away—and keeps you happy and gay, no matter what the status of your wardrobe allowance.

Au Revoir.

What Today Means to You

"TAURUS."

IF April 25 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 6 a. m. to 8 a. m., from 11 a. m. to 12:20 p. m. and from 4:45 p. m. to 5:50 p. m. The danger periods are from 9:30 a. m. to 10:30 a. m. and from 8:10 p. m. to 9:30 p. m.

The opportunity may present itself on this date for you to "get away" with something. It may amount to no more than the opportunity of "putting one over" on someone or perhaps the opportunity of "pulling a fast deal" of some kind. Regardless of its nature, turn to your conscience for guidance or otherwise you will reap a severe penalty sooner or later.

The child born on this April 25 may have to be ruled with the rod. It will be inclined to "talk back" to its parents and elders and may quite possibly be very disobedient. Take care, however, not to break its will in disciplining it. Learns quickly and forgets as quickly.

If April 25 is your birthday, your life won't turn out to be a bed of roses. You will probably have a goodly share of hard knocks and setbacks throughout the course of your life, but you will face them all with unwavering courage and unfaltering step. Your road may prove a little rougher than the average, but your success would seem to be assured.

Born on April 25, it is probable that you are possessed of a very frank countenance; you look a person in the eye squarely, and you give a firm handclasp. You are sincere, utterly frank and direct in your contacts with others. Withal, there is a great feeling of kindliness which radiates from you to others.

Successful people born on April 25:
David Hale, journalist.
William Deering, manufacturer.
Felix Morris, actor.
Mrs. Burton Harrison, author.
Thomas S. Clarke, sculptor and painter.

Radio Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL

IF the old saying, slightly modified as to place, "When in Texas do as Texans do," prevailed, the Federal Radio Commission might find itself with its hands slightly more full than they are. Reports from the Lone Star State have it that there are approximately 30 unlicensed radio stations operating within the borders.

The stations use from 1 to 15 watts of power and are scattered all over the State, according to reports from the radio office down there. The commission has a thorough investigation under way and the data will be turned over to the Department of Justice.

Prof. Elizabeth Brandeis, of the University of Wisconsin, and Dr. William T. Foster, director of the Pollak Foundation, will discuss "Unemployment Insurance" tonight (WRC, 7:15 o'clock.)

Thrilling experiences from the life of James Norman Hall, author, who as a lieutenant in the famous Lafayette Escadrille, was shot down after bringing down an enemy plane, will be recalled during the broadcast of "Lives at Stake" (WRC, 10 p. m.).

Hall, who is now living on the Island of Tahiti, was known only as an author until his role of hero was recalled by accident. Local authorities ordered each white resident to appear at a Bastille Day celebration in any uniform he might own and with every medal and award in evidence. Hall's exploits became known when he appeared in uniform, his chest covered with medals.

H. I. Harriman, president of the Chamber of Commerce U. S., will speak over WJSV at 11 o'clock tonight.

IRENE BORDONI will inaugurate a new series of programs tonight (WMAL, 7:45 o'clock).

Assisted by Emil Coleman and his orchestra, Miss Bordoni will be heard each Tuesday and Saturday evening.

Miss Bordoni appeared with success in Paris prior to making her first appearance on the New York stage at the Winter Garden in "The First Affair." She made her debut in London two years later at the Palace Theater in "L'Impresario." Upon returning to New York she played in "Miss Information."

The "contrast program" which Dr. Walter Damrosch and his Symphony Orchestra will present tonight over WRC at 10:31 o'clock, will compare the form and harmony of the two great Russian composers, Tschaikovsky and Stravinsky.

Clark and Verdi, Italian dialect comedians who have been appearing in vaudeville for many years, will be guests of Julia Sanderson and Frank Crumit on the Plantation Program over WRC at 8 o'clock tonight.

They will offer a comedy sketch, and Miss Sanderson will present a new song by Bernice Petkere, entitled "Stay Out of My Dreams."

ONE of the most unique radio "spot" programs, broadcast by a Washington station—the announcement of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway's air-conditioned train, the George Washington—will round out its first anniversary on the air tomorrow.

Broadcast nightly at 6 o'clock by WRC, the resounding call of "All Aboard the George Washington" has won a large listener following here, according to reports to the railway and the radio station. The program also includes a realistic reproduction of a train's departure from the Union Station with the locomotive's clanging bell and whistle and the click of the cars' wheels on the tracks.

IT may be a lucky break for the fishermen in the radio industry that Frank M. Bell, former secretary to Senator Dill, of Washington, has been made commissioner of fisheries. Senator Dill has been concerned with radio legislation for years, is coauthor of the radio act, and in that way most every one of consequence has become acquainted with Mr. Bell.

As is the case with John Carson, with Senator Couzens, who has also had many radio matters before him, Bell has always been far more than a secretary in the ordinary sense of the word. Efficient, courteous, accommodating, Bell is very much missed by those having radio matters to attend to at the Capitol. Nevertheless, as was said in the beginning, it will doubtless be a lucky break for the fishermen in the industry to find themselves personally acquainted with the new Commissioner of Fisheries.

Jeannie Lang, petite comedienne in the Musical Grocery Store, says she met an extra girl in Hollywood who thought a buttress was a female goat.

A program made up of the compositions of Secretary Woodin will be given tonight by the Navy Band, led by Lieut. Charles Benter. The concert is to take place in the ballroom at the Navy Yard. Secretary Woodin and Secretary Swanson have been invited to be present.

Because of the ban, caused by the protest of organized musicians, the Navy Band program tonight will not be broadcast.

The Library of Congress Chamber Music Festival brings the world premiere of Bohuslav Martinu's String Sextet, played by the William Kroll String Ensemble. The American premiere of Gustav Straube's Wind Quintet, played by the Georges Laurent Wind Ensemble, follows, and the concert ends with a performance of Arnold Schonberg's famous "Verklarte Nacht" (WJSV, 11:15 a. m. to 1 p. m.).

SENATOR L. J. DICKINSON and Representative D. M. Jacobson, both of Iowa, will be heard, speaking from Washington, in the dedication of the new 50-kilo-watt transmitter of Stations WOC-WHO, Davenport and Des Moines.

The broadcast will then shift to Des Moines, where Gov. Clyde L. Herring and Col. B. J. Palmer will speak briefly, after which the Davenport Crescent Concert Orchestra, the Wennerberg and Oriole Choruses, the Des Moines Studios Dance Orchestra and the Central Concert Orchestra will close the program (WRC, 11:30 p. m.).

Radio listeners who used to like the theme song of the "Torridheat" hour (WMAL) will be interested to know that Rudolf Schramm, local conductor, pianist and composer, has another song ready to launch on the air. Marguerite Cromwell, popular soprano of the Wilkins Coffee Hour, will sing it as her feature number on Tuesday, April 25 (7:30 p. m.). The song is entitled: "You Press Your Lips to Mine!" Rudy's Orchestra will accompany Miss Cromwell.

In order to describe more fully the three-jeweled Easter eggs which the late Czar of Russia gave his queen, Lowell Thomas had the eggs, valued at $250,000, brought to the studios during his broadcast. The three diamond-studded eggs, about the size of baseballs, are now in a New York display.

Two armed guards and two detectives accompanied the eggs to the studios and waited for Thomas to finish describing them.

LOUIS BROWNLOW, former District Commissioner, now director of the Public Administration Clearing House in Chicago, will talk on "Reducing the Cost of Local Government" (WMAL, 3:30 p. m.).

Three-Day Sculpture Exhibition.

The Hill School of Art will hold a three-day exhibition of sculpture, oil paintings and etchings from 3 to 6 p. m., beginning tomorrow. The Eastern Art Association will convene here those days.

Stocks Defy Profit-Takers In Steady Price Advances

Market Rises 1.2 Points as Sales Volume Totals 4,805,340 Shares.

New York, April 24 (A.P.).—The turn into a new week found financial markets strong and active today.

Profit-taking tended to keep stocks on a seesaw after a 1 to 3-point rise at the opening, but "inflation bulls" kept their ranks well recruited and closing prices were mainly higher, though under the best.

Buying in stocks swung from group to group. Oils, motors, aircraft, utilities and rails had their turns at market-leading and new highs for the year were numerous. Steels were inclined to rest a little, nor did fresh buoyancy in silver offer much attraction for shares related to that metal. Net gains for a number of favorites were fractional, though others closed 1 to 2 higher. Sales totaled 4,805,340 shares.

Allied Chemical, Case, Harvester, National Biscuit, Western Union, General Motors, Chrysler, Continental Can, Bendix, Reynolds "B," Liggett & Myers "B," Du Pont and Union Carbide were up a point or two. American Telephone, among the day's most active stocks, held 1¼ of a 3⅜-point rise. Socony Vacuum turned over briskly at a 1-point advance. U. S. Smelting, Anaconda, Kennecott, International Nickel and American Smelting were slightly mixed by closing time. Net changes in rails were largely fractional, while for U. S. Steel, American Can, Consolidated Gas, Bethlehem, Westinghouse and General Electric improvement was of similar extent.

With the administration's inflation making its debut in Congress, Wall street was still virtually single-minded in its belief that an expansion, either of credit or currency—perhaps both—is coming and the desire to anticipate such a step plainly held over from last week. Speculative fires are being fanned to some extent by current trade reports, though hardly by earnings statements. Several industries feel more cheerful than in many a month, but a rather considerable period of expanding business would be necessary to bring back profits and dividends to numerous lines.

Tomorrow's first quarter report of U. S. Steel Corporation is expected to show a deficit, since most of that period was particularly lean. Nevertheless, the more recent pick-up has indicated to brokers that the company will probably be willing to go into surplus again for some payment on the preferred stock.

March railroad earnings are so far running heavily under those of 1932, but the market is more interested in looking forward to the time, which it hopes will not be long delayed, when freight traffic will begin to top last year's. The roads seem to have reached a point where slack can no longer be reduced by cutting operating expenses. Washington coordination plans, however, may bring more savings in operations.

BONDS AGAIN HIGHER ALONG WIDE FRONT

Gilt-Edge and Speculative Issues in Rise; Sales, $18,338,000.

New York, April 24 (A.P.).—High-grade and speculative bonds joined forces today, pushing prices up 1 to 3 or more points over a wide front.

Strength of the rails was the feature of the session, although the utilities rallied substantially and the industrials were firm. United States Government securities again moved up in moderately active trading and leading foreign obligations generally improved.

Sales totaled $18,338,000, par value, a still much larger than normal aggregate, and the average for 60 domestic corporate loans advanced seven-tenths of a point. This was the fifth consecutive average gain.

Considerable institutional, as well as speculative buying was reported during the day which probably accounted for the improvement in "gilt-edge" issues. The rails reflected improved car loadings reports, advancing commodity prices and a pick-up in industry.

The more active carrier gainers of 1 to around 5 points included some issues of Santa Fe, Canadian Pacific, Baltimore & Ohio, Chesapeake Corporation, Chicago Great Western, Chicago & Northwestern, St. Paul, Erie, Great Northern, New York Central, Pennsylvania, Frisco, Southern Pacific, Southern and Union Pacific.

American Bankers Offer Plan of Financial Reform

New York, April 24 (A.P.).—A broad program of banking reform designed to stimulate business and to safeguard depositors is recommended by the economic policy commission of the American Bankers Association in a report issued today. Leonard P. Ayres, vice president of the Cleveland Trust Co., Cleveland, is chairman of the commission.

Among the proposals is one to bring banks generally into the Federal Reserve System on a broadened basis of admission that would take in numerous State-chartered commercial and mutual savings banks not now in the system.

The report recommends branch banking privileges, uniform within States, for all banks whether holding national or State charters; reasonable limitations to control the sudden shifting of large commercial deposits; restraint on real estate speculation which "would probably prove to be a safeguard to American banking comparable to that which would result from a restriction of speculation in commodities or securities."

"Consideration should be given," said the report, "to a change in our Federal Reserve act by which a minimum required relationship would be established between our stock of monetary gold and the combined total of our reserve notes and our bank deposits. This would nullify most of the dangers inherent in the hoarding of currency."

CURB PRICES CLIMB IN HEAVY REALIZING

Commodities Attract Buyers as Turnover Drops to 526,000 Shares.

New York, April 24 (A.P.).—Curb stocks adhered to their upward course today, but the late trading brought heavy realizing and a cancellation of some of the earlier gains. Volume amounted to 526,000 shares compared with 717,000 on Friday.

While the commodity issues continued to attract buying, the utilities were not overlooked. Improvement running from 1 to 3 points was registered in Columbia Gas & Electric preferred, Consolidated Gas of Baltimore, Electric Bond & Share, and American Gas & Electric.

Inquiry for a number of specialties found offerings light and prices rose. Mead Johnson, Great Atlantic & Pacific, Axton Fisher, A. O. Smith, National Dairy "A" and Novadel Agene rose 1 to 6 points. Metals met profit-taking which brought a 2-point reaction in Newmont Mining and a drop of 1½ in Lake Shore. Pittsburgh & Lake Erie rallied 5 on light volume. National Sugar duplicated its previous high and was 1½ net.

Silver Continues Rising; Selling at 37 1-4 Cents

New York, April 24 (A.P.).—Silver resumed its advance in lively trading on the National Metal Exchange today.

Bar metal rose 1¾ cents an ounce to 37¼ cents, the best price in nearly 3 years. Futures were also strong, quotations at one time being nearly 3 cents higher, although the rise met profit-taking.

WHEAT VALUES RISE ON INFLATION DATA

Advance Is Rapid, With All Grains Up; Provisions Begin Climb.

Chicago, April 24 (A.P.).—Like zigzag lightning, grain markets flashed irregularly upward today and pierced all obstacles, including huge speculative offerings, and immense sales to realize profits.

Wheat, corn, oats and rye overtopped season high price records, and closed at or near the day's peak. News of inflation developments at Washington dominated the trading pits, and virtually excluded every other factor.

A sensational fresh outburst of buying swept over the wheat market in the final moments, and prices closed buoyant, 1½ to 2 cents above Saturday's finish; corn, ¾ to 1⅜ up; oats, ¼ to ¾ advanced, and provisions showing 12 to 32 cents gain.

Sentiment of Traders.

In some quarters, sentiment of wheat traders was at times much modre conservative than recently as to the immediate upward trend of the market, but conservatism was thrown to the winds by the majority at the last. What was construed by many wheat traders as ruh-away symptoms shown by securities in New York was in progress during the late dealings in grain, and this with continuance of inflation fever whirled wheat values upward anew after hours of violent changes that at times almost wiped out fresh gains. At no stage, however, did wheat today go below the pinnacles attained Saturday.

A decrease of 2,845,000 bushels in the United States wheat visible supply total today, was larger than expected and gave added force to the upward flight of prices at the last.

Corn, oats and rye were mainly governed by wheat action.

COTTON PRICES GAIN IN SPITE OF SELLING

July Closes at 7.65, With General Market Up 1 to 8 Points.

New York, April 24 (A.P.).—An early advance of about $1 a bale in cotton today was followed by reactions under Southern selling and rather active realizing.

July contracts after selling up to 7.62, or 23 points net higher, eased to 7.65 and closed at that level, with the general market closing barely steady at net advances of 1 to 8 points.

The opening was 13 to 24 points higher on relatively steady Liverpool cables and the early strength in grain and stock market.

There was a good deal of realizing from the start and some Southern selling thought to be partly against sellers call cotton. At 7.65 for May and 8.04 for October, or about 17 to 24 points higher, the market met increased offerings and sentiment was more in evidence during the afternoon.

May sold off 7.47 and October to 7.87, or about 16 to 18 points from the best, and closing quotations were the lowest for the day.

Houses with Liverpool and continental connections were among the buyers here again in the early trading. Liverpool reported a steady market. Only scattering sales of cotton cloths were reported in Manchester, with a good trade there awaiting economic developments.

FESTIVAL OF MUSIC HEARS BUSCH GROUP

Enthusiasm prevailed at both concerts held yesterday in the Library of Congress as part of the Chamber Music Festival under the auspices of the Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge Foundation now in progress there.

Yesterday morning those present were privileged to witness the first appearance in America of the Adolf Busch String Quartet of Vienna with its celebrated musicians in a concert rarely equaled in this city for pure musical achievement. The artists who made up the quartet were Adolph Busch, first violin; Gosta Andreasson, second violin; Karl Doktor, viola, and Hermann Busch, violoncello.

Storms of applause greeted the Quartet in D by Ildebrando Pizzetti, with which the program was opened. Its four movements brought into splendid relief both the excellent ensemble tone and the outstanding beauty of the individual instrumental voices of the quartet. There was a unity of attack, a delicacy of phrasing and a melodious coordination of the instrumental values that explains why this quartet has gained such a wide reputation throughout Europe.

A pleasing feature of the program was the playing of nine pieces by Adolf Busch, founder of the quartet which bears his name. These are excellent chamber music material and were well-handled by the men. Beethoven's Quartet in E-flat with its fascinating four movements, the lovely Adagio and entrancing "Scherzando vivace" ending the program.

The night concert was a special treat by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

The conductor, Serge Koussevitzky, in a program of compositions by Bach, Copland, Stravinsky, Ravel and Hindesmith made a profound impression upon the Nation's leading musicians and critics. His dynamic personality and leadership was as effective in this chamber music auditorium as it is when he is leading the full Boston Symphony Orchestra in a vast hall. It was the soul of music produced through the magic of his baton, especially in the Bach Suite in B Minor, played by flute and strings with the dainty haunting music of the harpischord leading the audience back into another musical age and in Stravinsky's Octuor, in which the wind instruments had their moments of glory.

The concluding concerts of the festival today will include the morning one, with the String Sextet by Bohuslav Martinu, which won the Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge Prize in 1932, played for the first time in public, and the final concert tonight when Adolf Busch and Rudolf Serkin will give a sonata recital for violin and piano.

The Sonata in G, by J. S. Bach, one of the big features of this concert, will be played after the original manuscript which is cherished in the State Library at Berlin.

Miss Rous Discusses Child Music Training

Musical education should be based on the principle of developing the latent talent in children, declared Marion Rous, director of the Greenwich Music Settlement School in New York, in addressing a meeting of the Musicological Club, of Washington, yesterday afternoon at the Phillips Memorial Gallery.

Inspired by Sunday's presentation of Cimarosa's "The Secret Marriage," Miss Rous spoke on "What Makes a Cimarosa: A Recipe for American Musical Education." In a world, only recently weaned away from the idea that music is only for the rich, there still remains, the speaker said, much to be done in making music truly democratic in its appeal and in developing the talents of those whose financial status is not such that the highly endowed conservatories can be patronized.

Miss Rous outlined the conditions obtaining in Italy at the zenith of her musical history, the development of conservatories, where orphans might be trained in religion and the fine arts, and the difficulties of establishing similar institutions in England; and expressed the hope that such schools may become more widely established in the United States.

Sade C. Styron, well-known authority of Elizabethan music, introduced the speaker.

By NELSON B. BELL.

Probably on the theory that the charming feminine members of their troupe will have garnered their full share of the laurels by the end of the National's "little season" anyway, no matter what they do about it, the Messrs. Stephen E. Cochran and Clifford Brooke inaugurate the ninth season of their National Theater Players with a "mystery" comedy which the male members of the cast distinctly dominate.

To be sure, Kathryn Givney—and this recital, like the printed program, will catalogue them in the order of their appearance—is the garrulous Mrs. Ward, who discovers the murder; Adelaide Hibbard, as a cook who disapproved of her mistress' promiscuity, makes it pretty tough for the innocent young man by whom Dr. Tindal's wife seems to have been done in; Ona Munson discharges a considerable chore as the sister of the accused, and Leona Powers appears now and again as the hard-boiled moll of a very tough egg, but it is Romaine Callender, husband of the deceased; Donald Woods, the detective McKinley; Forrest Orr, Kirk, the reporter; Freddie Sherman, the framed young man, Burke Clarke, Frank Peck and Karl Nielsen, who bear the brunt of the socking and buskining.

"Riddle Me This" is an excellent choice for the opening bill, not only because it affords some opportunity, no matter how meger it may be in some instances, for the entire roster of the Players, but also because it is a spirited and amusing melodramatic comedy that lets the audience into its secret at the outset and then permits them to examine the sagacity, stupidity, persistence and wit of those engaged in its solution on the stage.

The play has never before been presented on a Washington stage, although Paramount produced it as a screen starring vehicle for Victor McLaglen and Edmund Lowe, under the title of "Guilty As Hell," a picture that met with much local acclaim.

The piece was played last evening at the brisk tempo it demands and with a crisp and biting incisiveness—which it also demands. In addition to those familiar and well-loved Players who already have been named, Helen Shields, as the mortuary figure of the murdered wife; Ted Tenley, in the considerably more than "bit" part of Dr. Sully, and John Sikken, as a junior plainclothes man, recruited from Mr. Brooke's Academy of Dramatic Arts, acquitted themselves with high credit.

It would, of course, be the trite thing to say that this is "old home week" at the National, but that is precisely what it is, so it might as well be said. In addition to practically the entire personnel of last summer's company—Raymond Bramley alone, I believe, is missing, Mr. Sherman having supplanted Owen Davis, Jr., about midway of the season—last night's audience had the pleasure of welcoming back Romaine Callender, an absentee of recent years. It was as if he had never been away.

For particularly effective performances last night, Donald Woods, Forest Orr, Mr. Callender, Miss Munson, Freddie Sherman and Mrs. Hibbard were perhaps accoladed a bit above the others, but following the final curtain it was demonstrated to the full membership of the organization, including Charles Squires, whose settings are always impeccable, in what affection and esteem they are held by an appreciative and loyal following. Following a few felicitous words by Mr. Brooke, each member of the cast was singled out for a tribute of friendship and welcome.

And so was launched the ninth consecutive season of the National Theater Players, a spring and summer interval of road-show attractions at depression prices that promises to outdistance even its distinguished predecessors in quality and up-to-dateness of plays, brilliance of performance and that intangible bond that reaches across the footlights to bind players and public together in a warm and enduring alliance.

GAYETY

"PROSPERITY GIRLS." Jimmy Lake presents a new burlesque entertainment, featuring "Bimbo" Davis and Joe Yule, with Connie Fanslau, Tangara, Joy St. Clair, Byron and the Worth Sisters, Bob Sandberg, Charley La Vine and Lee Hickman. Reggie (Tassels) White, guest star. Reviewed Monday night by George H. Barrows.

With Joe Yule carrying the burden of comedy, ably supported by Bimbo Davis and Lee Hickman, Jimmy Lake's new burlesque stock company gets away to an auspicious start, under the title of "Prosperity Girls," this week.

The perennial favorite of local burlesque patrons, captivating Joy St. Clair, again features many of the feminine interludes, while Connie Fanslau, Nora Murray and "Reggie" White, the girl with the loosely articulated backbone, present a number of specialties which meet with the pronounced approval of the connoisseurs of femine pulchritude down front.

The Worth Sisters with Freddie Byron present some novel dance steps featured by Maestro Byron's headlong dive from the stage into the aisle, where he lands on his hands—a stunt that has seldom, if ever, been paralleled.

The new chorus reveals many well known faces—and may we say forms—but under the able direction of Paul Kane has developed a new and pleasing proficiency. A new system of many, but short, appearances on the part of the chorus gives an impression of unusual "pep" and vivacity.

The high spot of the show, however, is emphatically Joe Yule's appearance as the 14-year-old boy paying a visit to the fire station. A masterpiece of makeup, well worth anyone's money to see and laugh at!

CHAPLAINS SOUGHT FOR FOREST CAMPS

Church Leaders Meet Here to Devise Religious Facilities for Men.

Twenty church leaders from all the major Protestant denominations participated in a meeting of the general committee on Army and Navy chaplains at the Cosmos Club yesterday afternoon to discuss methods of providing proper religious and moral care for the men in reforestation camps and the conditioning camps, as well as in the Army and Navy. Out-of-town members attending included those from Maryland, Tennessee, Pennsylvania, Delaware and New York.

It was pointed out by the Rev. Roy B. Guild, of New York, that fifty camps are now being set up, that more will be arranged, with about 200 men to a camp, and that practically no provision for their religious care has been made.

Col. J. E. Yates, chief of chaplains of the Army, stated that the War Department does not have sufficient Army chaplains for the regular posts and can not be expected to provide additional Army chaplains for the reforestation camps on account of the recent reduction of the budget.

The committee appointed a committee on the forestry camps to assist the Government and to cooperate with other church and interchurch bodies, such as the Y. M. C. A., and the National Playground and Recreation Association, that may be in a position to assist in the spiritual, recreational and social life of the camps.

(Associated Press.)

Army corps area commanders yesterday were authorized by Robert Fechner, director of the Roosevelt emergency conservation program, to move 37 groups of 200 men each from Army conditioning camps to work camps in forest areas.

Authorization was given for shifting 21 groups of men from Baltimore and Philadelphia, now in eastern Army camps, to State forest projects in Pennsylvania, four groups from Fort Monroe, Va., to Pennsylvania forests; one group from Fort George G. Meade, Md., to Pennsylvania, and three groups, totaling 500 men, from Fort Washington, Md., to Virginia forests.

District Subcommittee Of Senate Meets Today

Repeatedly postponed because of the press of Senate inflationary legislation, another meeting of the Senate District appropriations subcommittee, to write final changes in the District bill, is scheduled for this morning.

Chairman Elmer Thomas, who is sponsoring the administration's inflation amendment to the farm bill, hopes to complete subcommittee action on the District measure, unless the stress of national matters forces another postponement.

"THE BIG STAMPEDE." Vitagraph picturization of a story by Marion Jackson, costarring John Wayne and Duke the wonder horse, with Noah Beery, Mae Madison, Luis Alberni and Paul Hurst. Directed by Tenny Wright. Reviewed Monday evening by W. A. Whitney.

Out in the wide open spaces of the great Southwest, in the days when slowness on the draw was tantamount to another tombstone, "The Big Stampede" recreates the New Mexico of a day when life was one continual round of fights with cattle rustlers.

Although this offering is a quite western Western, it lacks, fortunately, the particular brand of melodrama that is the small boys' delight and substitutes in its stead a simple story, quickly told.

Of course, there is an occasional lull in the fighting, and the deputy sheriff, being an active young fellow, must have something to occupy his time. Well, there is a very charming young lady for that. Then, too, there must be a Mexican cattle thief, but there was never so unusual a Mexicano as this one—he is deputized for finally corralling the Gringo rustler. And Sonora Joe turns out to be the right sort of fellow, after all.

In making this picture, the producers have been quite unconcerned with filming a story. It would seem that they started out with the thought of having Gov. Lew Wallace (Berton Churchill) initiate a campaign of law enforcement. Once started, the yarn just flows along, and after the stampeding cattle are rounded up, the hero and heroine go into a clinch—and the picture ends in exactly 53 minutes.

But, withal, it is an entertaining yarn, with John Wayne and his wonder horse, Duke, aided by Luis Alberni and Mae Madison, upholding righteousness against Noah Beery and Paul Hurst, a pair of precious desperadoes. Miss Madison and Sherwood Bailey, as her small brother, with an unerring aim with a slingshot, offer brief respites between the rides and the fights.

Heading the diversified list of shorts is "The Pharmacist," with W. C. Fields in the title role and doing it like no other person could. The other auxiliaries are "Romeo and Juliet," a Terry-Toon satire that has a happy ending; "Women of Many Lands," a Hodge-Podge travelogue that's just that, and a release of the Paramount News.

ABOUT THE SHOW SHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

JUST as she closed "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" in New York long before public interest in that extraordinary play was exhausted, so Katharine Cornell will bring the New York engagement of Sidney Howard's "Alien Corn" to an end in the Belasco Theater on Saturday night, May 13, so that she may take the play to the Century of Progress Exposition in Chicago and also present it in Philadelphia and Boston this season with the New York cast unchanged.

Miss Cornell has been influenced in changing her announced plan to act "Alien Corn" in New York until hot weather, according to latest advices from Ray Henderson, her erudite and indefatigable Mercury, by the many letters she has received from the Midwest, urging her to appear in Chicago during the World's Fair.

Although it is not mentioned in Mr. Henderson's communique, a report emanates from New York that Miss Cornell is abrogating her lease on the Belasco Theater, in New York, effective with the close of the run of "Alien Corn" in that theater. During her control of the famous playhouse she has personally appeared in it in only two productions, the ill-starred, but artistically notable, "Lucrece" and Mr. Howard's "Alien Corn."

Since the lease still has some time to run, it is understood that its cancellation entails an appreciable cash outlay on Miss Cornell's part.

It just goes to show the variant tastes at opposite ends of the continent. I mean that on the very day "Mussolini Speaks" is closing at RKO-Keith's in Washington a letter should arrive from Corbin Sheild, well-known former Capital theater man now located in San Francisco, reading in part as follows:

"Just a note to tell you where I am located. Am back in San Francico, managing the President Theater. This is the house in which Terry Duffy, also formerly of Washington, ran his stock company.

Perhaps the fact that San Francisco, out of a total of around a million, has an Italian population of approximately 100,000 may have had something to do with it.

One gathers further that Mr. Sheild, although under duress he will admit that Los Angeles and San Francisco are very elegant cities, like all staunch Washingtonians, would infinitely prefer to ply his trade of theater-running on the banks of the Potomac than at the edge of the Golden Gate!

In conjunction with "The World Gone Mad," opening at RKO-Keith's today, Manager Hardie Meakin is presenting a picturized excerpt from one of the "Lambs Gambols," such as is to be presented here in the National Theater for a single performance next Sunday night. It is called "Hear Them and Weep," and consists of a revival of old favorite songs staged under the direction of Joseph Santley in a manner that is said to make it a real sentimental tear-jerker.

Speaking of RKO-Keith's, as we seem to have been practically continuously ever since we started, the powers-that-be of the RKO-Radio organization apparently have contracted the revival fever from Universal.

Universal, as you will, of course, recall, has been on the verge of re-releasing Paul Whiteman's "King of Jazz," still held by this column to be the most colorful and most imaginative of all the screen revues, for a long time now, although, it must be confessed, nothing seems to happen.

A similar project has now been embraced by Radio with regard to "Rio Rita." The only impediment standing in the way of the scheme is the exorbitant cost of new prints, much of "Rio Rita's" footage being in Technicolor. But then, so is all of "King of Jazz." Which is probably what is delaying that, too.

Whatever the economic aspects of the case may be, both should prove profitable experiments. "King of Jazz" ought to profit by the renaissance of the musical film and "Rio Rita," at least locally, ought to be able to pick up where it left off after one of the longest continuous runs in the history of the Fifteenth street house. Or maybe not—I wouldn't be sure.

An air of great mystery is being thrown about the identity of the headline feature of the stage program at the Earle Theater for the week beginning Friday, April 28. Promising a definite announcement not later than Thursday, the management will not at the moment commit itself beyond the statement that no positive announcement will be made until arrangements have been completed by the organization under negotiation to make changes in future bookings, lay plans for broadcasting over a coast-to-coast network from Washington and actually sign contracts.

It is made known, however, that this attraction has appeared in Washington many times, its name is well known to every theatergoer and at present its music and comedy entertainments are heard on millions of radio speakers.

I know, the Crandall Saturday Nighters!

KUHEL LEADS NATS TO WIN OVER YANKS, 11-10

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

BUXOM BABE RUTH, the Yankees' $52,000 investment out there in right field, is paying about as much dividends this season as a counterfeit ruble in a snowbank.

To say that the Babe has slowed up to a walk would be flattering him. Ruth gets about these days with all the speed and alacrity of a guy in the last stages of rigor mortis. Those spindly underspinnings which have always been far out of proportion to a man of his heft are groaning aloud at the Babe's increasing girth.

At the rate he has performed in the Yanks' two games at Griffith Stadium with the Nats raining base hits into the wide open spaces of the territory Ruth is supposed to protect, the Babe will have to hit a million in the batting averages to enable the Yanks to carry him.

Ruth's Days as Regular Numbered.

New York baseball writers are of the opinion that the Babe's days as a regular are numbered, and there was puh-lenty of evidence to that effect both yesterday and Sunday when base hits dropped at the Bambino's feet like a rajah's manservant in obeisance.

The turtle-necked, Clark Gable sweater that Ruth has been sporting since the season opened is evidence of the fact that the Babe is not in the best condition, but at the Babe's age he's supposed to be more susceptible to ailments. But a cold in the head is no reason for Babe to refuse to run out his grounders or look about for his valet to chase the balls hit in his direction.

But I am reminded that they have been singing Ruth's requiem for a half dozen years only to be confounded when the Babe came back to act as kittenish as a two-year-old. He may snap out of his column of type just so much waste, present lethargy and make this but at least we have seen Ruth at his worst.

When Ruth grounded to Cronin in the first inning with Sewell on first, Cronin had time to run over and tag second and throw out the Babe by approximately 60 feet. Ruth hit the ball and broke into a jog after several seconds reflection.

Cronin was the most interested spectator in the park when Jack Russell warmed up to relieve Stewart. The Nats' manager stood on second base to get a good look at Russell's form in the box before he signaled for play to start.

Manager McCarthy must have forgotten to remember the Washington batting averages. He has ordered Bluege intentionally walked once in each game.

Dave Harris didn't click as a pinch hitter for Sewell in the seventh, although he was safe after Lazzeri's error. "I'd have gotten a hit if they hadn't been playing out of position for me," said Dave.

Fred Walker, the Yankee pinch hitter in the ninth, is the son of Dixie Walker, who pitched for Washington in 1912. He pinch hit for Frank Crosetti, who is rapidly working his way out of the shortstop job in favor of Bill Werber, the Washington lad.

Goose Goslin got his only hit of the day off a slow ball that Pennock pitched him in the seventh, rattling it against the right-field fence. They've fed the Goose so many slow balls in recent years that he's learned how to hit 'em.

Foxx's Homer Helps A's To Win

Hits Third of Season as Red Sox Bow by 16-10 Count.

First-Sacker Drives in 7 Runs; Hits Every Time Up.

BOSTON, April 24 (A.P.).—Jimmy Foxx, clouting first baseman of the Philadelphia Athletics, hit his third homer of the season, had a perfect day at bat, and accounted for seven runs today, as the A's defeated the Boston Red Sox, 16 to 10, in a free-hitting struggle.

Foxx hit his four-bagger with two men on base. In addition, he had three doubles, a single and a base on balls.

Foxx's Homer Puts A's in Front.

The A's were trailing, 3 to 1, when they came to the fifth inning. They managed to put one counter across and had two runners on the sacks when Foxx came to bat. His blow, made off of Paul Andrews, cleared the right-field fence and put his team in the lead, 5 to 3. They were never headed.

Brooklyn Beaten, 4 to 0, by Giants

New York, April 24 (A.P.).—With Carl Hubbell turning in a four-hit pitching performance for his second successive shutout, the New York Giants defeated the Brooklyn Dodgers, 4 to 0, today.

Timely hitting in the second inning by Homer Peel, the Texas League recruit batting in the clean-up position, Vergez and Mancuso sent the Giants away to a two-run lead, and after that it was clear sailing for the Giants' southpaw, who has allowed only one run in the last 30 innings he has pitched.

Manager Bill Terry of the Giants was hit on the right arm by a pitched ball in the fifth inning and was forced out of the game. He is expected to be out of the line-up for two or three days.

Indians Again Lose To Chicago, 5 to 4

Chicago, April 24 (A.P.).—Chicago's White Sox broke up a ninth-inning rally by Cleveland today to win, 5 to 4, and sweep the three-game series. Coupled with the New York Yankees' defeat by Washington, the victory put the Sox in a won-and-lost tie with the Yanks for the American League leadership, although they still trailed by percentage points.

Vic Frasier had the better of Wes Ferrell, who did his first pitching since suffering an arm injury at St. Louis a week ago, until the ninth, when he weakened and Joe Heving had to go to the rescue. Heving stopped the Indians a run short of a tie.

NATS AND YANKS IN ACTION

SARRON AND PAUL FIGHT TONIGHT

By DAVE HERMAN.

TOMMY PAUL, Buffalo, N. Y., featherweight sensation, and former National Boxing Association champion, will stake his ring prestige against Pete Sarron, of Birmingham, Ala., claimant of the Dixie title, in an eight-round fight at Portner's Arena tonight that promises to bring out some of the most spirited scrapping the Alexandria patrons have witnessed this season.

On the eve of the match, which may make or break the two gladiators as far as world's championship recognition is concerned, Matchmaker Frankie Mann crashed through with the announcement that Portner's financial backers, headed by William Moses, had instructed him to proceed with plans to bring Freddie

Phils Beat Braves In Twelfth, 6 to 5

Philadelphia, April 24 (A.P.).—Pinch-Hitter Al Todd broke up a 12-inning ball game today with a single to left with the bases loaded, bringing home the run that gave the Phillies a 6 to 5 victory over the Braves from Boston.

The Phils' burly relief catcher was signaled in from the bullpen after Hal Lee's double, a walk to Spud Davis, Mickey Finn's neat sacrifice bunt and another free pass issued to Jackie Warner.

Ball Not Behind Epidemic Of Pitching, Harridge Says

By PAUL MICKELSON.

CHICAGO, April 24 (A.P.).—There's no deep, dark mystery of a drugged or deadened baseball behind the current epidemic of pitching masterpieces in the American League, President Will Harridge said today as he chuckled over reports of suspicious baseball fans.

"The ball is just as lively as ever," he grinned. "It's just a case of exceptionally well-conditioned pitchers and frost-bitten batters. The pitchers are hot; the batters are cold. Here and there a rain-soaked playing field gives the pitchers another break as the batted balls don't take those sharp bounces that turn a poorly hit ball into a single. They are slowed up."

President Harridge exhibited samples of baseballs used last year and this season. The stitching and weight were the same.

Cover Is Same Thickness.

"Just alike," he said. "The cover is the same thickness as a year ago and I give you my word three hasn't been a change. The ball used in 1932 was a great success and there wasn't even a suggestion to deaden or enliven it this year."

There isn't any wonder that some of the batsmen and many fans are suspicious of a little mysterious "drugging" of the spheroid this season. Ever since the campaign opened, pitchers have been doing almost unheard of tricks with it for spring pitching in this era of long distance clouting. In the American League alone twelve games have been pitched in which the batsmen cracked out four hits or less. A one-hit game was pitched by Tommy Bridges, of Detroit, against St. Louis yesterday, two-hit performances have been turned in by Teddy Lyons, of the White Sox, and Irving "Bump" Hadley. George Earnshaw, of Philadelphia, and "Lefty" Gomez, of the Yanks, tangled in a great duel on April 18, in which each allowed but three hits, feats duplicated this season by George Pipgras, of New York, and Milton Gaston and Lyons of the surprising White Sox hillmen. Games with five and six hits in the American League have been so numerous this season that they've failed to cause any excitement.

Batting Slump Is Noted.

A glance at the unofficial team batting averages, including all games of April 23 in 1932 up to the same date this year shows that every team, except Chicago, Boston and Cleveland has suffered a batting slump from 40 to 19 points. Here's how the averages compare:

Club.	April 23, 1932.	April 23, 1933.	Pts. Diff.
New York	.296	.256	—40
Philadelphia	.275	.245	—30
Washington	.266	.247	—19
Detroit	.262	.222	—40
St. Louis	.250	.210	—40
Chicago	.231	.265	+34
Boston	.218	.222	+ 4
Cleveland	.205	.205	No gain

The reason for the hitting improvement at Chicago and Boston is evident because of newly recruited strength, notably with the White Sox, who have Al Simmons, Mule Haas and Jimmy Dykes in their line-up.

DETROIT, April 24 (A.P.).—The Detroit Tigers today turned in their third consecutive victory over the St. Louis Browns, 4 to 3, making a clean sweep of the series here.

Carl Fischer, pitching his first game for the Bengals, allowed half a dozen hits in 8 2-3 innings. With one run in, two men out and two on bases in the ninth, Fischer was relieved by Elon Hogsett, who fielded the second ball he pitched and outran West to first base, ending the St. Louis rally.

Uhle, Tiger Hurler, Bought by Giants

New York, April 24 (A.P.).—The New York Giants today purchased George Uhle, veteran right-hand pitcher of the Detroit Tigers, it was announced. While no purchase price was revealed, it was believed to be the interleague waiver price, $7,500. Uhle will report to the Giants tomorrow.

Uhle has pitched for Detroit for the last four seasons, being traded to the Tigers after 10 years with the Cleveland Indians. He has won 191 games while losing 159 over a 14-year period, but his best years were spent with the Indians. Last season he won six games and lost six. He is 35 years old.

Wild Orgy of Long Hits Marks 3d Straight Win; Cronin Uses 5 Pitchers

By SHIRLEY L. POVICH
(Sports Editor of The Post).

THE Nats went down twice and came up three times yesterday for a net profit of one run to beat the Yankees by the ample but close score of 11 to 10 in a ball game that fairly dripped with base hits and extra base hits and situations that made Griffith Stadium no place for the weak-hearted.

Thirty ball players found their way into the highly-combustible proceedings as lead after lead was blasted away by both teams, but all of Manager McCarthy's horses and all of his men couldn't put the ball game together again after the Nats smote Herb Pennock for three successive two-baggers in the seventh that broke a 9-9 deadlock.

The Yanks thus have accumulated a losing streak of two straight, while the Nats lengthened a winning streak to three. But, as the saying goes, it was anybody's ball game until Alvin Crowder anchored the tying Yankee run on first base in the ninth.

OLD MASTER, EVEN-MONEY CHOICE, WINS IN GRAW FEATURE

Howe Stable Star Downs Snap Back

War Stripes Winner Over Derby, Preakness Hopefuls.

By WALTER HAIGHT
(Post Staff Correspondent).

HAVRE DE GRACE RACE TRACK, April 24.—Old Master, a 4-year-old from the Howe Stable, lived up to his name here today in the feature race, the Sudbrook, and defeated the four other horses that sought the $1,000 purse over the mile and 70 yards course. Buddy Hanford must have known he had the master of this field under him, for he was content to stay a snug third while Snap Back and Don Pedro fought it out for the lead. However, once the far turn was reached, Old Master began to wear down the leaders, and at the quarter pole he went to the front, never to be headed. His margin at the finish was one of a length and a half over Snap Back, which in turn was three lengths ahead of the tiring Don Pedro. Old Master was an even-money favorite.

Racing conditions were ideal from every angle and some 8,000 turned out for the program.

War Stripes Beats 3-Year-Olds.

War Stripes, a Glen Riddle Farm nominee for the Preakness and Derby, won the Mayfield, the secondary feature, from Willis Sharpe Kilmer's Dark Winter, with Swinhaven, third. Johnny Gilbert had the mount on the winner and stayed behind the pace battle most of the way. It was at the stretch turn that Gilbert moved his mount up on Dark Winter, which had set the pace and in the drive that followed War Stripes pulled away. The race was 1 mile and 70 yards.

Mixed Party, the Strolling Player filly, the property of Admiral Cary T. Grayson, moved up on the inside in the stretch, to take the first race from C. V. Whitney's Fogbound. Kings Minstrel was third. Sonny Workman rushed Fogbound to the front at the break, but went slightly wide entering the stretch and the Dusky Simpson hugged the rail and then wore down the Whitney pair in the last quarter. Mixed Party was a lukewarm betting proposition and paid a $13.40 mutuel.

Bally Bay Fails to Stop.

Bally Bay, notorious as a quitter, merely toyed with the public's odds-on favorite in the second race and coasted home. Happy Anne, played like she was money in the bank, could not match the pace set by the Haymaker gelding and had to be satisfied with the place. Third went to Decanter, making her first start of the season. Bally Bay rewarded with an $11.20 mutuel.

On Tap, the heavily-played favorite, made every post a winning one in the third race over the 6-furlong sprint route. Hacky H, Bright Bird, Brave and Bold and Wedding Ring tried to shake On Tap out of the pace-setting honor but they all met the same fate. Wedding Ring finished second and Bright Bird third. On Tap closed at 1-2 and paid $3.20.

Eva B. won the sixth from the heavily-played Crapshooter by a length and a half at a mile and a sixteenth. Eva B. took the lead on the turn for the stretch. Daudet was third.

In the final Plutarch stayed behind the pace, went to the front just before the swing for home and was an easy winner over Ruane and Meridian Queen.

MIXED PARTY, hard ridden from the start and in close attendance of FOGBOUND, secured racing room on the inside during the final drive and, finishing stoutly, was up in the final sixteenth mile. FOGBOUND began quickly, displayed good speed, but weakened slightly when straightened into the home stretch. KING'S MINSTREL, in tight quarters for the first three furlongs, came to the outside during the final drive and closed stoutly. FIGHTING MIKE lost ground entering the home stretch and then finished with good speed.

BALLY BAY sprinted into an easy lead at once, raced restrained and was never in danger at any stage. HAPPY ANNE, slow to settle in her best stride, was stoutly urged and punished, but was unable to threaten the winner. DECANTER, forced to race on the outside, circled her field, but was held perfectly safe at the end. TUT TUT could not reach the pacemakers during the running.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ON TAP, $3.20, $2.40, $2.20; WEDDING RING, $4.00, $3.00; BRIGHT BIRD, $4.00.

ON TAP, moving into the lead at once, stalled off early contention from HACKY H. and BRIGHT BIRD, saved ground during the final stages and had enough in reserve to withstand WEDDING RING. Latter, hustled into a forward position, responded gamely to punishment and was gradually gaining on the winner during the stretch drive. BRIGHT BIRD, in the thick of contention, held BRAVE AND BOLD safe when placed to severe punishment. BRAVE AND BOLD, prominent and saving much ground, weakened in the late stages. HACKY H. was vigorously ridden the entire journey. FIDDLER went evenly all the way.

FOURTH RACE—Mile and seventy yards. Purse, $800; allowances. The Mayfield. For 3-year-olds, colts and geldings. Start good from gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:15. Off at 4:18½. Two-dollar mutuels paid—WAR STRIPES, $11.60, $6.40, $5.00; DARK WINTER, $7.00, $6.80; SWINHAVEN, $12.80.

WAR STRIPES, going greatly improved, raced under mild reserve in the first six furlongs, swung to the outside when moving to the pacemakers and, wearing DARK WINTER down, was under strong urging at the end. DARK WINTER began quickly, opened up a clear lead when leaving the back stretch and fought it out stoutly when challenged. SWINHAVEN worked his way up on the inside and finished in determined fashion. POMPOSO was outrun for the entire trip. PARITY was done after six furlongs. ENTHUSIAST broke very green and was never able to reach contention.

FIFTH RACE—Mile and seventy yards. Purse, $1,000; allowances. The Sudbrook. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:50. Off at 4:50½. Two-dollar mutuels paid—OLD MASTER, $4.00, $2.40, $2.20; SNAP BACK, $3.00, $2.60; DON PEDRO, $3.60.

OLD MASTER, taken under restraint when unable to go to the front, went around the leaders when approaching the home stretch, took command in the final furlong and was going away at the end under slight urging. SNAP BACK, racing to his best form, was rated in front while resisting repeated efforts from DON PEDRO, and then continued gamely when strongly ridden in the last three furlongs. DON PEDRO, rushed hard and kept under severe pressure from the start, began to sulk inside the last three furlongs. ANNIMESSIC was outrun for the entire journey.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good from gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 5:20. Off at 5:20. Winner, J. J. Robinson's b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—EVA B., $11.00, $3.60, $2.80; CRAPSHOOTER, $2.80, $2.40; DAUDET, $2.60.

EVA B. reserved off the early pace, reached the leaders when ready, went into an easy lead and had something in reserve at the finish. CRAPSHOOTER assumed command at the first turn when DARK AMBER ran out, was steadied in front, but could not be taken off the rail when Coucci attempted to come around the winner after being displaced. DAUDET finished courageously, but was unable to threaten the first two. IDEALIST showed a high flight of speed when rushed up on the inside leaving the back stretch, but tired thereafter. PRINCE ABBOT stopped.

Two dollar mutuels paid—PLUTARCH, $8.40, $5.60, $3.60; RUANE, $15.60, $8.00; MERIDIAN QUEEN, $3.20.

PLUTARCH, carried wide at the first turn, gained strongly when reaching the back stretch, wore MERIDIAN QUEEN down when shaken up and held RUANE safe when the final test came. RUANE, favored by improved handling, worked his way up while going wide, and then closed strongly.

Tardugnos Score In Boston Boxing

Angelo Beats Brooklyn Man; Is First Capital Entrant to Win.

Special to The Washington Post.

Boston, Mass., April 24.—Angelo Tardugno, of Washington, D. C., was the first Washington amateur boxer to register a victory tonight at the National Amateur Boxing Championships here. Tardugno, fighting in the 118-pound class, defeated Anthony Passero, of Brooklyn, N. Y., in three rounds. It was no easy bout for the victor as Passero swapped punches manfully all the way.

Determined to maintain the honor of the house of Tardugno 100 per cent, Mike Tardugno won from Alex Stewart, of Detroit, in three rounds. This was another real battle. Mike Tardugno won his bout in the 126-pound class. Stewart spent himself pretty well in the first round when his flying attack almost kept him even with his steadier and harder hitting opponent.

Savoldi Kicks Lutze To Win in New York

New York, April 24 (U.P.).—"Jumping Joe" Savoldi, former Notre Dame football star who is one of the claimants of the world's wrestling championship, tonight kicked Nick Lutze into submission and threw the California husky in 33:52 of their scheduled finish match at the Seventy-first Regiment Armory.

Using Lutze's jaw for a football, Savoldi leaped into the air and planted both feet on his opponent's chin. Lutze was floored as if hit by a pile-driver. Savoldi bounced him about on the mat a couple of times and then pushed his shoulders to the mat.

SCHOLASTIC TITLE BASEBALL SERIES TO OPEN TODAY

Eastern Nine To Entertain Roosevelt

Coach Guyon Makes Shifts in Eastern Line-Up.

By LEWIS F. ATCHISON.

WASHINGTON'S 1933 interhigh school baseball series will be rolled off the cliff today on its long journey down pennant lane with Eastern and Roosevelt cast as opponents in the inaugural. The game will be called promptly at 3:30 o'clock at Eastern by Mr. Willie Watt, of the Umpires Association, who gets paid for yelling at the athletes during games.

Lynn Woodworth, Roosevelt's Jawn McGraw, has conceded Eastern an even chance of stopping the Roughriders in the grand opening, but admits that the Lincoln Parkers will have to put forth their best efforts to cop the verdict.

Roosevelt Has Four Hurlers Ready.

Roosevelt visited National Training School yesterday and left a memento for their hosts in the form of a 4-2 defeat. It was the team's fourth victory in its seven preseries games, a very good record in view of the fact that Roosevelt teams are prone to lose the majority of their games, in and out of the series.

The starting line-up will be the same as that announced in The Post yesterday morning with the exception of the hurler. Woodworth has four in mind and he has not decided which will be permitted to stand the Easterners on their collective heads.

Charley Guyon was noncommittal on the matter, but the Eastern mentor has a habit of saying nothing and winning ball games and his silence may be interpreted as a mark of confidence in the team's ability.

Eastern defeated the Navy Plebes handily at Annapolis Saturday, and the Plebes are said to be one of the strongest yearling teams the Academy has had in recent years. Yesterday Emerson felt the sting of the Eastern attack, losing by a score of 10-2.

Guyon plans to use the same line-up today that halted the Plebes Saturday, with one shift. Joe Keegin will be sent to first base for Harry Bassin, who will assume Keegin's outfield post. A stronger defense with no loss of batting power is the motive behind the change.

Eastern, Central and Western finished in a tie for the championship last season after one of the most exciting races manufactured by the scholastics in many years. With Roosevelt and Tech strengthened and the other clubs up to par, the 1933 struggle for diamond supremacy looms as a wide-open affair and a close race.

LINKE MAY PITCH; NOTES OF GAME

the Albany Internationals are making great big hits with the fans and, if they keep on the way they have started, likely will be given another once-over at the Biloxi camp. They are Shortstop Jimmy McLeod and Catcher Gordon (Babe) Phelps, the Bowie bearcat. "Mac's" fielding is the talk of the circuit, while he also is hitting well, while Phelps is pounding the pill for great distances. The other day he smacked out a 425-foot homer. Phelps, who is built like the covered wagon, has reduced from 240 to 223, but he still is so large that his chest-protector looks like a bib on him.

Brennon walked Buddie Myer on four successive balls to open the game for the Nats. Buddie then stole the first base credited to the home boys on their own field this season.

Kuhel's homer in the third yesterday was the fifth credited the Nats this season. Goslin, with two, and Sewell and Myer, with one each, complete the list.

Dickey's hot grasser in the fifth almost tore off one of Russell's feet, but he managed to recover the ball in time to make the out at first.

Cronin made a nice leaping catch to end the seventh, robbing Combs of what looked to be a sure hit.

Yesterday's game showed practically everything possible in baseball. Off hand, it might be mentioned that the only things overlooked were a triple play, a passed ball by the catchers and a balk, hit batsman and wild pitch.

Mt. Rainier Nine Series Victor, 3-2

Hyattsville's Loss Brings Three-Way Deadlock in County Race.

Mount Rainier High School's base ball nine conquered Hyattsville High, 3 to 2, yesterday on the Mounts' field, to throw the championship race in the northern section of Prince Georges County into a three-way deadlock. As the result of the Mount Rainier victory, Maryland Park, last year's titleholder, Hyattsville and the Mounts are tied for first place at one win and one defeat each.

The contest developed into a tight hurling duel between Foster Mathias, of Mount Rainier, and Jimmy Campbell, Hyattsville's moundsman. Mathias maintained a slight advantage throughout, holding Hyattsville to four hits, all singles, fanning ten and passing three. Campbell yielded five bingles, also all one-basers; struck out six and walked none.

Mount Rainier scored one run in each of the first three innings, thereafter being held runless. Hyattsville tallied once in the fifth and again in the sixth, but could never threaten the winners in the last three frames, going down in one-two-three manner, as Mathias applied the brakes.

The next game in the northern section race will be Friday, when Hyattsville visits Maryland Park for a return game. The Parkers bowed, 2 to 5, recently at Hyattsville.

Eastern High School sharpened up its batting eye in preparation for the opening game of the championship race today, trimming Emerson Institute by a score of 10-2 yesterday.

Charley Cuozzo and Joe Keggin led the attack that produced four runs in the second and five in the eighth to assure the victory.

Terry's Wrist Broken; Foul Ball, Says Umpire

New York, April 24 (U.P.).—Manager Bill Terry of the New York Giants was at bat today in the fifth inning of the game with Brooklyn.

Pitcher Joe Shaute wound up and sent in a fast one. There was a smack and the ball bounced up in the air. Terry dropped to the ground holding his right arm.

The umpire ruled that the ball had hit the bat, that it was a foul and that Terry could not take a base for being hit. Terry retired from the game and Sam Leslie took his place at bat.

Memphis Bill wasn't officially hit, but just the same the doctors said he had a broken right wrist that will keep him out of the game for at least three weeks.

G. W. Nine Opens Season Thursday

Pep Meeting Is Scheduled Today; Gala Program Is Arranged.

Plans for the opening game of the George Washington Baseball Team's season will be furthered this afternoon at a pep meeting of the student body to be held at 4:40 o'clock. Dr. Cloyd H. Marvin, president of the university, will address the gathering.

G. W. crosses bats with Delaware University Thursday night under the arc lights at Griffith Stadium. The night will be "Shriners Night" on the program, the first of a series of features which will precede the ball games.

The drum corps, clown band and drill team of the Shriners will parade in the stadium before the game. George Washington's student band also will be on hand to enliven the proceedings.

Admission to the game will be 25 cents. All proceeds derived during the season will be turned over to the National Capital Civic Fund.

Congressional Host To D. C. Dentists Today

"Dentists Day" will be observed at Congressional Country Club today, with a golf tournament as one of the many events to be staged by the District of Columbia Dental Society.

Dr. Tom D. Webb, Washington Golf and Country Club champion and one of the favorites in the tournament, is chairman of the social relations committee and is in charge of the field day.

Trapshooting will be held this morning at 10 o'clock, to be followed by swimming, tennis, golf, bowling, billiards, cards and boxing bouts, which will bring together fighters from Baltimore and Washington. Dinner will be served at 7 o'clock. Handsome prizes have been donated for the occasion.

SARRON AND PAUL TO BATTLE TONIGHT

Paul Trains at Mann's.

Accompanied by his manager, Jack Singer, and trainer, Paul drove into Washington Sunday night. Yesterday afternoon he slipped quietly over to Frankie Mann's ancient and honorable training quarters and indulged in a brisk workout. Paul is an Italian youth and bears no cauliflower trade-marks. He skipped rope, punched the bag and shadow boxed and looked to be a bulwark of strength. He seems to have plenty of stamina, but is not quite as fast as Sarron. Paul plans to do most of his work with his left, although his right hand is a very reliable weapon.

The reports that Paul and Sarron resemble one another are not exaggerated one bit. They are about the same size and will weigh in at 126 pounds.

Record of Paul Impresses.

Paul's record is more impressive than that of Sarron's, and the Buffalo boy has been installed as a 5-to-3 favorite. Paul has licked, among others, Fidel LaBarba, Johnny Pena, Bushy Graham, Frankie Wallace, Mose Butch, Young Geno and a number of other featherweights with good reputations.

Sarron, a former member of the United States Olympic Team, has lost but two fights in his career—one to Emil Paluso, the other to Fidel LaBarba. The Southerner stamped himself as a favorite at Portner's by disposing of Frankie DeAngelo, Benny Schwartz and Miki Gelb.

Thirty rounds are on the card, with Billy Strickler, the Terminal Bulldog, who flattened his last two opponents, opposing Sam Finazzo, Baltimore's powerhouse, in a six-round semi-windup.

Joe Finazzo, Sam's brother, takes on Ken Overlin, of Norfolk, in a six, while Walter Kirkwood, the Portsmouth hard rock, collides with Billy Schwartz, the Alexandria Baker Boy, in another six. In the curtain-raiser of four rounds, Cary Wright meets Luther McCarthy, of Pittsburgh.

BOXING BITS' SELECTIONS—Paul to beat Sarron, Strickler to beat S. Finazzo, Overlin to beat J. Finazzo, Kirkwood to beat Schwartz and Wright to beat McCarthy.

Women to Compete Today in Twice-Delayed Tournament.

Play in the annual Phyllis Keeler Miller Memorial championship will claim the interest of a field of 125 women this morning at the Washington Golf and Country Club. The tournament twice was postponed on account of rain.

Mrs. A. S. Gardiner, of Columbia, will not be present to defend her title. The first threesome, composed of Mrs. Harrison Brand, Mrs. Frank R. Keefer, and Mrs. Douglas Tschiffely, will tee off at 8:30.

The tournament will be in the form of an 18-hole medal handicap, and the battle for the title promises to be unusually keen. Today's event is the first of importance on the District of Columbia Women's Golf Association calendar, the next outstanding tournament being the Mrs. Frank Royer Keefer Trophy at Chevy Chase May 1 and 2.

Germany Names Davis Cup Team; Dr. Prenn Ignored

Ban on Jews Leaves Bulk of Play to Von Cramm; Victory Over Egypt in First Round Seen Team's Only Hope.

By ERICK KEYSER.

BERLIN, April 24 (U.P.).—Germany today named her Davis Cup Team and announced officially that Dr. Daniel Prenn, a Jew, would not be permitted to compete.

Baron Gottfried von Cramm, Eberhard Nourney, Gustav Jaenicke and Fritz Kuhlman will represent Germany in the cup competition.

Announcements of the team and the bar upon Dr. Prenn were made by the German Law Tennis Federation which decided that Jews were ineligible to represent Germany in any international competition and that Jewish and Marxist tennis clubs were ineligible for federation membership.

Germany's cup team will make its first 1933 appearance against Egypt at Wiesbaden, May 5, 6, 7, and German tennis enthusiasts are hopeful that the home team will survive the first round.

Dr. Prenn, by far Germany's best and most reliable player, will be sorely missed. He was not left out because of a weakening in his form or poor health but because of the "gleichschaltung" which is now being carried through in all walks of life in Germany, including sports. Especially in German tennis this adaptation to the change of conditions is observed most rigorously and in accordance Daniel Prenn, even had he been a William T. Tilden, Jean Borotra and Henri Cochet at top form rolled into one, would not have made the grade this year, because he is a Jew.

With Prenn out, the German team will have to rely chiefly on Gottfried von Cramm. The young baron is an excellent player and has the makings of a star, but he is, as yet, not nearly so fine as Prenn. Moreover, one man does not make a winning Davis Cup Team.

With a view to this situation it is well for Germany that it is first pitted against Egypt, thus giving the less experienced members of the team a chance of working up against an easy opponent. Von Cramm, on form, should win both his singles. In the doubles, Germany's chances are not so good, for tandem play has always been the weak point of German teams.

CHURCH LEAGUE TO MEET.

Georgetown Nine Meets Temple

Sheedy Plans to Put Costello at Second in Game Today.

BACK from its disastrous Northern jaunt, but undismayed by the three defeats charged against it, Georgetown opens its home season today on the Hilltop with Temple University, of Philadelphia, as its guest. The Quakers measured the District Collegians for an 8-4 victory last Friday and are reported to have similar designs on today's fray.

Georgetown's erratic fielding in these games may be excused on the grounds that the boys had but five days of outdoor practice before the opening game. An appalling lack of practice was evident in all three games. Seven errors were made in the Temple fray and nine in the New York U. encounter.

Nor was there any cause for cheering the pitching. With the exception of Neslie, the moundsmen pitched in a fashion that would have shamed a class D sandlotter. Lindquist granted nine hits to Temple and Carpenter yielded a like number to St. John's. Neslie was the most effective of the trio, and he was nicked for seven by N. Y. U. But for the excellent work of the soccer ball infield he would have held the opposition to a much closer score.

Georgetown collected 20 hits on the trip, most of them rattling off the bats of Saverine, Costello, O'Rourke and Hargaden. Breaking into the lineup as a pinch hitter against Temple, the stocky infielder came through with a lusty single to center. He also tagged the apple for two hits in as many trips to the plate against N. Y. U.

Richmond Mayor Fights Pay Slash

Tells Council City Employes Face Increase in Living Cost.

Richmond, Va., April 24 (A.P.).—Vetoing a 15 per cent cut in city employes salaries, Maj. J. Fulmer Bright, in a message to the Richmond city council, today expressed the hope that the city would lead the way to an early restoration of salaries of city employes and school teachers alike.

He said he objected to any further reduction of city employes' salaries in the face of an almost certain rise in the cost of living which must follow currency expansion.

The mayor's message was distributed among members of the board of aldermen today.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

PARIS, New York, Hollywood, all may claim credit for setting styles for women and for popularizing certain types of dress, but whatever claims and counter-claims are made for the fad of wearing mannish clothes by women, remote Albanian women can assert themselves as among the leaders of Western women in the wearing of trousers.

For generations Albanian women have worn trousers, but unlike the trousers worn by their sisters farther west, the Albanian women use enough material in a single pair of trousers to make a whole wardrobe for the ordinary woman. One such garment may contain 360 square feet of material. By careful folding and pleating the Albanian woman's trousers, however, appear to be more or less compact. Pulled out on either side to their limits, they may stretch 25 or 30 feet across.

Albanian men wear skirts.

Strange as it seems, the better a substance conducts heat the colder it feels at ordinary room temperature. Try it with, for instance, wood and steel. A wood-handled steel knife may all be the same temperature, but the wood will feel warmer than the steel—and wood is a poorer conductor of heat than steel.

This is explained by the fact that steel, conducting heat better than wood, conducts the heat away from the hand much more readily than does wood. Hence the heat is drawn from the surface of the hand, giving the sensation of coolness.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

THE LOW-DOWN ON INFLATION.

IT is about time somebody explained all about inflation, the decline of the dollar, &c., in words anybody can understand. So here goes:

Briefly, the idea is to do away with the old Model T dollar and bring out one along snappier lines, with less wind resistance, quicker pick-up, wizard (F. D. R.) control, free wheeling and a new aluminum body or something. (Stop us if we get too technical.)

* * * *

The dollar now buys too much. You take oats, no, on second thought, let us not take oats. When you start talking about oats the conversation leads to horses and the first thing you are betting two dollars on the fifth at Havre de Grace. Take wheat. Wheat is so cheap that a man with wheat on his hands is worse off than a fellow with a penthouse.

* * * *

Take spinach. In 1928 a dollar would buy only enough spinach for two adults and nine children. Today the same dollar will buy enough spinach for 26 adults and 98 children, and the situation is aggravated by the fact that the adults are so sick of spinach they are more insistent than ever that the children eat it. Do we make ourselves clear? (Voices: "No!")

* * * *

Well, let us speak in terms of yachts. In boom times $50,000 would buy one yacht, without a tender or set of pilot rules. Today yachts are selling for $500, three for $2,500, with an extra pair of blue pants thrown in.

* * * *

Now what does this mean? Huh? It means that things are unbalanced. We've got to get the dollar lower so it will send goods such as wheat, spinach, yachts, copper, steel, beer, jig-saw puzzles and other essentials higher. (Even if this were easier to understand you wouldn't like it.—Ed.)

* * * *

So what? So we inflate commodities. We put 38 pounds in the front tires and 45 in back. And we deflate the dollar by letting out the air all around. Then what have we got? Have we got a dollar? No. The dollar is gone. What have we got in its place? In its place we have a flat tire.

* * * *

We trust we have made everything clear.

A REAL COMEDOWN.

That the dollar was sinking was known to most people, but only a few realized it would ever sink so low that folks would begin swapping it for common stocks.

Ima Dodo says her uncle has invested all his money in a riding academy so he can be assured of stable money.

VERY EVASIVE.

The difficulty in supporting the dollar doesn't surprise most people. They have had trouble keeping a dime.

What America needs, some statesmen seem to think, is a good ten-cent dollar.

"Congress Considers Gag Bill."—Headline. We hope it extends to radio comedians.

EASTERN HIGH THIRD REGIMENT CAPTURES BANNER AND SILVER

The third regiment of Washington High School Cadets, representing Eastern High School, captured the silk flag and silver trophy in the annual regimental drill held under sparkling sunshine at Central High School stadium yesterday afternoon.

Lieut. Col. Morris Krucoff, who commanded the winning regiment, was awarded a gold medal by the cadet fund. The trophy was received on behalf of the regiment by Sergt. S. Gerber.

Central High School, representing the first regiment, was given second place; Western (fourth regiment), third, and McKinley (second regiment), fourth. This was somewhat of a setback for McKinley, whose cadets have captured virtually every cadet honor of the year thus far.

Rifle Team Gets Medals.

Members of the Washington Cadet Brigade Rifle team, winners in the third corps area intercollegiate contest, were presented with bronze medals by Dr. Stephen E. Kramer, assistant superintendent of schools. The large silver rifle match trophy, presented by the third corps area, has been won for the third time in succession by the local lads. The cup will be kept at Western High School, as Hal B. Clagett, captain of the team, is a member of Company K, of Western.

Hargrave Military Academy is the only other school to have won the cup. Hargrave captured the trophy in 1930, the first year it was presented. The cup is now the permanent property of Washington cadets.

Tech Gets Stephan Cup.

A team representing Company A of McKinley High School, winners in the map problem contest, received the Gen. Anton Stephan Cup, while Robert B. McRae, captain of the team, received a gold medal.

The First Battalion of McKinley, winners of the battalion contest, received the Col. Wallace M. Craigie Silver Cup and a silk flag. Maj. Edward Evans, jr., commander of the battalion, was presented with a gold medal.

The Second Regiment Band of McKinley received a silver cup and Karl Krumke, the captain, a gold medal.

The Cadet Corps will now settle down to its last strenuous lap of drill in preparation for the annual company competitive drill at Griffith Stadium June 5 and 6.

Man Held for Jury In Traffic Fatality

Aloysius O'Donnell Drove Car Causing Death of New Jersey Visitor.

Aloysius D. O'Donnell, 31, of 3824 Garfield street northwest, yesterday was ordered held for action of a grand jury by a coroner's jury in the death of John McHugh, 22, of Atlantic City, fatally injured when struck by O'Donnell's car near First street and Pennsylvania avenue Sunday.

An inquest will be held at 11:30 a. m. today into the death of Miss Mary Coffee, 80, of 2548 Eleventh street northwest, who died yesterday at Georgetown University Hospital as a result of injuries received April 3, when struck by an automobile at Eleventh and G streets northwest.

Margery Montgomery, 22, of 1711 Massachusetts avenue, driver of the car, has been released in the custody of her attorney and will appear at the inquest.

North Capitol Body Asks Firemen Aid

Approves Promotions to Fill Vacancies in Department.

A resolution from the City Fire Fighters Association, asking that vacancies in the District Fire Department be filled by men now on the force who are eligible for promotion, received the unanimous approval of the North Capitol Citizens Association last night.

A letter setting forth reasons why the association believes Henry Gilligan, member of the Board of Education, is best fitted for District Commissioner, was read. A motion asking that the letter be written was passed at the March meeting and a copy has since been sent to President Roosevelt. Mr. Gilligan is a member of the North Capitol Association.

Elwood Street, director of the Community Chest, gave an illustrated lecture on the various welfare organizations. Mr. Street asked the association's aid in carrying on relief work, stating that unless substantial contributions were forthcoming before August 1, private relief organizations would be forced to cease operations.

Campaign Here to Help Reich Jewish Refugees

An emergency relief fund to aid Jewish refugees from Germany is being raised in Washington by representatives of the Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society, it was announced yesterday.

A committee of prominent local Jewish citizens has been enlisted in the fund-raising effort by Harry Pritzker, who is directing the campaign. On this committee are Morris Cafritz, Benjamin Meiman, John M. Safer, Charles Stein, Bernard Danzansky and Joseph A. Wilner. The local office of the Immigrant Aid Society is at 1115 Connecticut avenue.

City Relief Fund Asked By Georgetown Citizens

Immediate action of the District Commissioners to replenish welfare relief funds was asked last night in a resolution adopted by the Georgetown Citizens Association. It was declared all relief agencies were in need of financial assistance immediately, and that calls for relief were increasing.

In another resolution the association approved of the work being done by the Georgetown Garden Club in its sponsorship of gardening by the unemployed and needy.

Third Regiment, Eastern High School, yesterday won the annual regimental competitive drill staged by the Washington High School Brigade in the Central High School Stadium. DRY DECLARES BEER AIDS WAR ON REPEAL

W. C. T. U. Rally Is Told Fight for Temperance Is Unremitting.

"The coming of beer is not a setback, but an aid in the fight against the repeal of the eighteenth amendment," the Rev. Mrs. Alice Allan, retired, told the temperance rally last night at the Union Methodist Church under the auspices of the West End Unit of the Women's Christian Temperance Union.

"The W. C. T. U., in its fight for the cause of temperance, is not defeated," she continued. "There is a mistaken idea abroad that this organization is no longer doing anything. It is doing more than ever. It is doing it at a cost of only 2 cents a week. If we love our children and the future of our country, we can afford to carry on."

Miss Ruth Lockman, secretary of the Intercollegiate Prohibition Association, another to address the rally, made an appeal to the young people, a number of whom were present, to "keep the man of tomorrow out of the gutter."

"The term 'real beer,' seen so often now, does not seem right," she said, "for beer is not a real item of life. Children of today are the hope of tomorrow. Are they going to step backward by taking the spineless attitude of letting appetite rule reason?"

Other features of the program included a playlet by the children of West End, and another by Dorothy Buglass and Ellen Pifer. Amelia Overmiller and John Keefer entertained with readings.

2 Burned, 2 Saved In Gasoline Blaze

Janitor Is Hurt in Rescue Effort; Woman, 81, and Cripple in Peril.

Mrs. Margaret Rittenhouse, 52, who was badly burned yesterday morning when fire broke out in the kitchen of 3101 Thirteenth street northwest, was resting fairly comfortably at Garfield Hospital last night.

Marshall Terrie, colored janitor of the building, who attempted to smother Mrs. Rittenhouse's burning clothing, was also burned but less seriously. He was later released from the hospital.

The flames, which started when a can of gasoline exploded, rapidly climbed to the second floor, trapping Mrs. H. A. Blanchard, 81, owner of the house, and her crippled daughter, Stella, in a front room.

Passers-by turned in a fire alarm and upon arrival of the apparatus, the elderly woman with her pet chow puppy in her arms and her daughter were carried down ladders by firemen.

Northeast Bank Nears Goal for New Capital

G. F. Hoover, conservator and a vice president of Northeast Savings Bank, said yesterday that to date 6,650 of the 10,000 shares of stock for the reopening of that institution have been subscribed. The new stock would be sold at $25 a share and provide $250,000 new capital for the reopened bank.

The bank will again be open tonight and tomorrow night for the explanation of the reopening plan to depositors and receiving further subscriptions for stock. The plan for reopening this institution has received the approval of the United States Treasury Department, officials of the bank have announced.

Relief Group Employe Charged With Forgery

Horace M. Fox, an employe of the emergency relief committee, was arraigned before United States Commissioner N. C. Turnage yesterday on a charge of forging the name of a colored woman to a $14 relief check.

The woman, Cormilar Weathers, said that Fox called at her home and obtained the envelope in which a check had been mailed. She told friends of the incident and an investigation showed that the check turned up with the woman's name signed to it. Fox was held under a $1,500 bond when Assistant United States Attorney Roger Robb informed Commissioner Turnage that other charges were pending.

BATTLE OVER JURY SLOWS BARRY TRIAL

Joseph Barry, alleged slayer of Israel Seigel, went on trial yesterday in District Supreme Court before a jury composed of 12 men. Justice Daniel W. O'Donoghue is sitting in the case.

Bickering between Cedric Johnson, defense attorney, and John J. Sirica, assistant United States attorney, who is prosecuting Barry, delayed the trial yesterday. Because of the attempts of the two attorneys to select a "favorable" jury, the actual start of the trial was delayed for hours.

Barry is charged with shooting Seigal last December while the latter sat in an automobile in front of 3130 Eleventh street northwest. The two allegedly quarreled over the affections of Mrs. Ruth Goebel, who yesterday went on the witness stand and described her relations with Barry.

According to police, Barry was at one time head of a Baltimore firm of investment brokers. It is expected that the trial will last through tomorrow.

Man Badly Hurt in Fall On New I. C. C. Building

Robert Gamble, 25, 1754 Kilbourne place northwest, suffered fractures of his legs, arms and right hip yesterday when he fell 10 feet onto the concrete flooring of the new Interstate Commerce Commission Building. He was treated at Emergency Hospital. His condition is serious.

Miss Susan J. Korner, 5626 Western avenue northwest, told police yesterday that a diamond breast pin, valued at $400, was stolen by a burglar, who entered her home Sunday night. She said the pin had seven large center diamonds with smaller stones on the border.

CONGRESS ASSAILED AT MIDCITY SESSION

Foch Says City Deserves More Generous Treatment Financially.

Congress was criticized for its parsimonious attitude toward the District of Columbia by Representative Benjamin K. Foch, of Pennsylvania, former chairman of the House District Committee, at the annual dinner of the Mid-City Citizens Association last night at the Burlington Hotel.

Representative Foch pointed out that the District is America's city and therefore should be treated more generously.

The Pennsylvania House member was introduced by A. J. Driscoll, president of the association, who was toastmaster. Other speakers included Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police; James G. Yaden, president of the Federation of Citizens Associations; Robert E. Mattingly, judge of municipal court; Mrs. Elizabeth K. Peeples, general director of the Community Center Department, and Fred A. Emery.

Music was by Henry C. Nestor, of the Police Department, winner in the Atwater Kent audition, and Mrs. Elizabeth Gardner Coombs, accompanist.

EVOLUTION'S BASIC CAUSES PUSHED AS MAIN SCIENCE AIM

Search for the basic and active causes of evolution with the hope that the races of men may be directly benefited by the knowledge should be the problem of science, Dr. Thomas Hunt Morgan, of the California Institute of Technology, told the annual meeting of the National Academy of Science last night.

Missionary work to persuade to belief the many who do not believe in the evolutionary development of life should be abandoned, the noted geneticist declared, making several pointed sallies at those who attempt to prove evolution on a historical blackboard.

"Evolution," he said "is going forward and backward today as in the past. He declared that a knowledge of the laws should be used to control the process to the benefit of man, adding, however, that when this is accomplished, historians will continue to spin their fairy tales."

Examples of Development.

Dr. Morgan's subject was the relation of genetics to evolution. He cited many examples of the development of new species in the laboratory and herbarium through knowledge of transmission of hereditary characteristics.

Resumption of the old familiar theory that the great void in which the universe rests is filled with a substance called "ether" may be a result of a discovery presented at a meeting earlier in the day.

Acceptance of the theory by science will refute the Einsteinian and other complex theories of fourth dimensions, set up with the abandonment of the idea there was a substance in space.

The discovery presented yesterday was the result of 30 years observations by Dr. Clayton C. Miller, of Case School of Applied Science, as one of many scientific papers read before the academy.

Delicate Measurements.

The salient results of his experiments, which involve the delicate measurement of light rays from the stars, is that the earth, the sun and the other planets of its flock, are moving toward the south at a speed of 130 miles per second.

Because of this motion, and the motion of the earth around the sun, Dr. Miller deduces his evidence of the existence of "ether."

If the ether did not exist, he said, the speed of the "cosmic motion of the solar system" could not be measured.

For the first time, he said, he has measured the speed of the earth without an outside point of reference, in a way analagous to the measurement of a ship's speed by the log line dragging in the water, without an outside point of reference. His measurements compare fairly well with astronomical calculations.

Harlequins Give Last Performance Tonight

The Harlequins, dramatic society at Catholic University, will stage the third and last performance of their annual production tonight in the music building on the campus. The three plays constituting the program are "Nettie," a sophisticated comedy produced with the permission of the authors, "Winning an Heiress" and "The Laziest Man in the World." Adolf M. Wasilifsky, of the department of public speaking, has been directing the cast.

The list of patrons is headed by the Ambassador of Japan, Katsuji Debuchi, and the ecclesiastical sponsors are headed by the Most Rev. Michael J. Curley, Archbishop of Baltimore and chancellor of Catholic University.

Gas Merger Hearings To Be Started Tonight

The public utilities subcommittee of the House District Committee will open hearings tonight at 8 o'clock on the Public Utilities Commission's bill to merge the Washington Gas Light Co. with the Georgetown Gas Light Co.

Representative Loring Black, jr. (Democrat), New York, chairman, indicated the hearings will be brief. No action is contemplated on the legislation during the special session, but a preferential status may be sought for the bill when Congress reconvenes.

Courts Trial

Representative Shoemaker Waives Immunity in Punching Case.

Waiving his Congressional immunity, Representative Francis H. Shoemaker, Farmer-Laborite, of Minnesota, yesterday appeared in Police Court to answer a charge of punching Theodore H. Cohen, a neighbor, in the Chastleton Hotel, in the eye last week.

Unusual courtesies were extended to the Representative when he appeared. He was taken to the head of the arraignment line-up, and was permitted to plead out of turn. He was also allowed to leave without putting up any collateral, Judge Ralph Given holding that his personal bond was sufficient.

Representative Shoemaker drove to Police Court in one of the Congressional "exemption" cars. He parked in a zone that is marked "no parking" and when a policeman went up to him to inform him of the restriction, he pointed to his "Congressional" tag. That ended that, for the Representative stayed where he was.

The charge against Shoemaker is that he struck Cohen when the latter refused to shut off his radio. The actual trial was tentatively set for May 17.

PALMISANO ASSAILS BEER PERMIT DENIAL

Representative Says Board Is Guilty of Arbitrary Action on Licenses.

Indignant because the District's Beverage License Board refuses to grant an "off sale" beer license to Peter I. and Louis Veneziani, of 600 Third street northwest, Representative Vincent L. Palmisano (Democrat), Maryland, yesterday charged the Commissioners with "arbitrary" action.

Representative Palmisano, chairman of a special House District subcommittee investigating District affairs, wrote Commissioner Reichelderfer, protesting. He indicated that hereafter he will work to curb the powers of the Commissioners.

"I wish to say that as a member of the District Committe I have always felt that the Commissioners should have full away," he wrote.

"But their actions in this case, where they have arbitrarily refused to give an established place of many years standing an off sale license for a nonintoxicating beverage (which beverage is very much in demand), without any protest of the neighbors, make me feel that I have been proceeding in the wrong direction.

"In the future, I shall change my attitude."

Mr. Palmisano's letter was in response to a ruling of Corporation Counsel Bride, forwarded to the representative by Dr. Reichelderfer.

The District Beverage Permits Board yesterday approved 37 additional temporary licenses to sell beer, bringing the total to 1,478.

Investigations of the records of temporary permit holders are still under way, but no time has been set yet for the consideration of annual permits.

BIG FLEET FAVORED IN RESOLUTIONS OF COLONISTS SOCIETY

Resolutions against recognition of Russia and the reduction of appropriations for the Merchant Marine were adopted yesterday at the closing meeting of the twelfth annual general assembly of the Daughters of the American Colonists in the Washington Hotel.

Another resolution adopted without question held that the Merchant Marine is a necessary subsidiary to the Navy in time of war.

In the annual report of the president, Mrs. John Laidlaw Buel, the Colonists went on record against extensive internationalism.

"Internationalism is all right insofar as it creates good will and understanding between nations—thus far and not further. But internationalism which seeks to obliterate patriotism is not for us," Mrs. Buel said.

The report denied that the withdrawal of the organization from the Woman's Patriotic Conference on national defense in June was due to the issue of national defense.

* * * today we end one year and begin another of patriotic unselfish service dedicated to America and all that America stands for in the world today," the president said.

Delegates to the assembly were greeted by Mrs. William H. Wagner, State regent, District of Columbia, following invocation by Mrs. William H. Talbott, national chaplain, of Rockville, Md. Messages of greeting were given by honorary presidents, Mrs. George Thacher Guernsey, of Kans., and Mrs. Livingston L. Hunter, of Tidioute, Pa.

Recitation of the pledge of allegiance was led by Mrs. Henry Zoller, jr. This was followed by assembly singing led by Mrs. Clyde B. Aitchison, in charge of music. Mrs. Talbott conducted the memorial services which included a solo by Gertrude Lyons. Reports of committee chairmen were heard both in the morning and in the afternoon.

D. C. Heads Seek Relief Suggestions

The District Commissioners yesterday called on the Board of Public Welfare for suggestions as to composition of a recently proposed advisory welfare council in a letter addressed by Dr. Luther Reichelderfer to George S. Wilson, public welfare director. Mr. Wilson said that the matter will be placed before an early meeting of the board.

The proposal was made several weeks ago by representatives of the Washington Council of Social Agencies, the Associated Charities and the Community Chest.

Dr. Reichelderfer pointed out that while neither the Commissioners nor the Welfare Board can delegate their authority over welfare matters to another agency, such a council "might act as a clearing house for consideration of welfare problems in general." It would be concerned with both private and public welfare.
